PA Poultry Federation Meeting Set

HARRISBURG — The future of the egg industry in Pennsylvania could very well depend upon producer knowledge and involvement in a national commodity check-off program better known as the Egg Marketing Order.

That's why the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation is sponsoring "A Town Meeting," Monday, March 16, 1987.

Labeled as one of the most important meetings of the decade, it is scheduled to begin at 7:30 pm. at the Lancaster Farm & Home Center in Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

The meeting will feature three prominent egg industry speakers: Ms. Christine Bushway, president of Northeast United Egg Producers; Mr. Ed Houston, chairman of the American Egg Board and vice-chairman of the Egg Marketing Order Committee; and Mr. John Snader, an egg producer from Fredericksburg, Pennsylvania who is affiliated with Dutch Country Eggs.

Each presentation will feature both general and individual aspects of the Egg Marketing Order, with an audience question and answer session immediately following the full program.

Refreshments will be served at the conclusion of the meeting.

Kristi Nash, the 1986 National Pork industry queen, finished her reign at the American Pork Congress speaking for pork products just like she did all last year. Kristi also helped crown the new 1987 national queen on Thursday evening.

American Pork Congress Theme Upbeat

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Indianapolis, Ind. — The beat was up here at the 1987 American Pork Congress this week, and it was more than whistling in the dark. Everyone from farmer producer to exhibitor to the national pork queen was ready to proclaim the "On The Move" theme to signify an industry in motion and involved in change. In the executive committee's report, Ron Kahle elaborated, "The past year has brought many changes to the pork industry. The start-up of the new 100 percent checkoff was perhaps the most dramatic single event. It represents a major breakthrough for the nation's pork producers. And I am pleased that it has started off well with fewer than anticipated refunds," Kahle said. "The smooth start-up did not just happen.

"I am pleased," Kahle said, "to be able to report that the executive committee and the members of the pork board have already developed a good working relationship that I am convinced will mean the development and implementation of meaningful, cost-efficient programs and projects on behalf of the nation's pork producers for many years to come."

One of the main features here was the introduction of "The Other White Meat" promotional program. Peggy Fleming, acting as spokesperson for the pork industry, provides a positive image according to industry leaders.

Pork will have a light new image in the breakthrough 1987 campaign designed by the National Pork Producers Council. Recent consumer and industry changes have been taken as signs that the time is right for an aggressive, powerful message capable of cutting through the clutter. The theme's objective is simple, to cause consumers to think about pork in a new and positive way with all the benefits of white meat plus pork's unique taste appeal.

As a producer-funded program, the other white meat received

This National Queen Speaks For Pork

Editor's Note: Indianapolis, Ind. — We caught up with Kristi Nash, the 1986 National Pork Industry queen, this week here at the American Pork Congress. Kristi was spending the last few days of her reign promoting pork as she did all year. Of course, on Thursday evening a new queen was crowned. But on Tuesday morning Kristi Nash had these answers to our questions about the national pork programs and her year as the reigning national spokesperson for the industry.

National Corn Growers VP Calls For Increased Exports

BY JACK HUBLEY

CARLISLE — National Corn Growers Association vice president Al Tank says that Washington is so preoccupied with the Iran arms scandal that little meaningful work is getting done on the legislative front.

The keynote speaker at the Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers' Association conference held here on Tuesday, Tank told growers not to expect any substantial changes in farm legislation until after next year's presidential election.

Following the Iranian situation, other issues putting agriculture on the back burner are the $180 billion federal budget deficit and the $170 billion trade deficit. But Tank did predict quick action by Congress on the financially troubled Farm Credit System. "The system is in a serious financial situation, at least in most parts of the country," he said, predicting that Farm Credit legislation would be up for congressional vote by Easter.

Turning to corn, Tank pointed to exports and alternative uses as solutions to the surplus, which may reach a record 5.7 billion bushels by September, according to USDA projections. "If you can have healthy exports you have a significant key to the puzzle," Tank said.

While corn exports topped out at 2.4 billion bushels during the late 1970s, Tank said that exports this year may only reach 1 billion bushels. "We have to have that export market," he emphasized.

While the livestock sector's corn usage remains relatively stable, several alternative uses offer dramatic potential for absorbing production, said the speaker. A new corn derivative called CMA shows promise as a substitute for road salt and offers the advantage of being noncorrosive to roads, bridges and automobiles.

Using corn in the production of aviation fuel could account for up to 800 million bushels, or about 10 percent of the nation's annual production, Tank pointed out.

Another promising avenue involves burning ethanol in com-

Alpheus Ruth Honored At Testimonial Dinner

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

HARRISBURG — Nearly 200 people gathered to honor Alpheus Ruth, former president of Lehigh Valley Farmers and a nationally-known leader of the dairy industry Tuesday night here at the Americana Host Inn.

Ruth, who retired from Lehigh Valley Farmers board of directors after 27 years of service, received a check for $6,350 to establish a dairy scholarship at Delaware Valley College in Doylestown. William Stout, former general manager of Lehigh Valley Farmers, presented the check to Ruth in recognition of his contributions to the cooperative movement.

Ted Heck, master of ceremonies, noted that Ruth joined the board in 1960. At that time farmers received $5.60 per hundredweight for their milk. Ruth assumed the presidency of the Allentown based cooperative in 1968. "He is comfortable in the barn or the board room," Heck said. He added, Alpheus lists his greatest accomplishment as being as farmer.

Using the theme of "A man for all seasons," several friends commented on Ruth's long career

Norman Sollenberger, former secretary of Lehigh Valley Farmers, said, "He is a man who takes

National DHIA Convention Begins Monday

PHILADELPHIA — Over 500 people are expected to attend the National DHIA Convention and Trade Show slated to begin on Monday here at the Adams Mark Hotel.

A Biotechnology Conference held in conjunction with the convention runs from noon March 9 to noon March 10. The second day features discussions on somatotropin.

The meeting concludes Thursday, March 12 with the annual banquet. Dick Vermeil, former head coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, will be the main speaker.

Registration for the conferences will be accepted at the door.

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed higher across the board in good support by commercial buying. The corn basis was mixed and movement continues very light in the country. Deliveries of 1.8 million bushels brings us up to February 25th. Commercials stopped all of the deliveries which leaves the market in a very good overall tone.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures closed over 3 cents higher across the board today. Farmer selling picked up slightly this week, with expectations of loan redemption increasing. The market traded on both sides of yesterday's close. Yesterday and today appear to be a short covering rally with surprising good follow through.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Cattle futures closed sharply lower, touching limit down in the April live cattle futures. There were several discouraging ideas passed around the cattle pit today. Results of a study on salmonella were to be released today. This stimulated concerns causing the meats to have a very weak undertone. Yield grade #3 choice steers printed $88.00 to $89.00 at noon, a drop of $3.00 to $4.00 from yesterday.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Hog futures closed higher and pork belly futures closed sharply higher boosted by late commercial buying. The overall buying was attributed to ideas supplies will remain tight coming into the April/May time frame. Estimated slaughter today was 290,000 compared with 305,000 yesterday.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Thursday, March 5, 1987

Comment: Trading activity was light and very disappointing. Cutlets were fully adequate to ample, and while sellers were resisting prices under $1.70, it was difficult to get any more than this. Line-one breasts were in a little better balance, but product was still fairly easy to obtain at today's price levels. Rib breasts were ample for current needs, and most sellers were struggling with product. A fair call at best was noted on leg, and clearances still left a lot to be desired. Leg quarters were in the best position due to advanced committment; however, there was still some product available for immediate shipment. Wings were at least adequate overall, and most have not experienced the turnaround that was expected.

Thursday, Mar. 5, 1987

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was disappointingly light to fair and unaggressive. Offerings were readily available and usually noted as slow in clearing. Demand in the parts complex was little better. Best interest was noted on leg quarters and wings but even here some plants continued to struggle to maintain satisfactory clearances. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to lower at 45-51 cents, and most plants were willing to negotiate orders to enhance movement. Live supplies were at least moderate. Weights remained mostly desirable to heavy. Slaughter schedules were moderate. The undertone was mostly weak.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 3/5 1,921,000; Actual 2/26 1,970,000.

Actual 3/3 1,983,000.

Are you certain what your final income will be, when you agree to process your tobacco?

When you consider guaranteed price, are you receiving this price on green weight or processed weight? Processing will yield 50 to 60% of green weight.

Does your final process price compare to the income you could receive at the auction NOW? You must consider the time value of money received today versus money received in the future.

The auction warehouses will remain in operation to assist you in receiving THE BEST FINAL PRICE for your crop.

If you have any questions or concerns regarding processing, you may contact Ken Brubaker at the Keystone Tobacco Marketing Group, PO Box 267, Bird In Hand, PA 17505 - Phone 717-696-7561

OPINION

Boarish Optimism

Because you often get squeezed into your seat with not much elbow room on some of those commuter airplane rides out of Lancaster Airport, some travelers call these shuttle flights cattle cars. Edward Zuckerman, a writer for "Spy" magazine decided to share a ride with real cattle to judge the accuracy of this metaphor.

According to "USA Today" Zuckerman rode with a train of cattle cars from Florida to Texas and found that each cow was allowed 13.3 square feet. That would be equivalent to 2.7 square feet for a 160 pound person. People on air commuter flights are allowed 5.8 square feet per person. So people fair better than cattle. Unfortunately, Zuckerman says most of the air passenger space is taken up by tiny seats and passengers are forced by flight attendants to sit in them.

Of course since we flew to Indianapolis this week to see the Greenfield Swine Research Lab and to attend the American Pork Congress, it would not be appropriate to call the airplane a cattle car. Pig car maybe. Or does swine shuttle sound better? We don't know. But we had a good flight. The stewards and stewardesses fed us apple juice and cheese and the airways were smooth.

But most importantly, the American pork producers are in an upbeat mood. They have a new promotion program financed by new checkoff moneys. And pork prices are high enough to make farmers a little money for once. The convention's theme "On The Move" was proclaimed to signify an industry in motion and involved in change.

It certainly was worth the trip on Sow Air just to get a little dose of that boarish optimism.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Check Pastures

With March arriving and temperatures moderating, our thoughts quicken to early spring pastures. We need to be concerned with pastures and exercise lots along rural roads for discarded junk. Unfortunately, people still throw bags of waste from their cars into nearby fields. Some of the materials may be poisonous to livestock. Every producer should remove these materials before starting to graze. Also, in hay fields the materials should be removed before growth begins. Bottles and tin cans will damage equipment and be a threat to the livestock eating the hay. Be sure your animals are not poisoned through someone's carelessness.

To Plan Area For Tobacco Planting

We have been saying for years that animal and poultry manure is an excellent fertilizer. It still is... but not for tobacco. Research shows us that animal manure, particularly dairy, increases the chlorine content of the tobacco; this chlorine content reduces the "burn" quality of the tobacco, and buyers frown on that.

Locate the area that you plan to transplant your tobacco, and be sure not to apply any manure to that area this year.

We suggest that a soil test be taken as an indicator of your present nutrient level. Then apply fertilizer at the recommended rates. The fertility program recommended by our research agronomists for a 2,000 pound tobacco crop should consist of 80 pounds of nitrogen, 35 pounds of phosphorus (P_2O_5) and 165 pounds of potash from either sulfate of potash or potassium nitrate. This fertility program will increase quality and reduce buyer resistance.

To Plan Weed Control Program

Weeds continue to be one of the major factors in reduced crop yields. This is true in the garden as well as in the field. The battle to control weeds is not a new one; years ago cultivation was the only method of weed control. Now, herbicides are widely used for weed control.

However, we still have too much crop damage from weeds. An agronomist once said that for every pound of weeds produced, the crop yield was reduced by the same weight. Some weeds are so prevalent that they amount to several tons per acre; this means that much less of the desired crop. Follow the recommendations in the Agronomy Guide and plan for a better weed control program this year.

To Prune Fruit Trees

Whether you have a few or several hundred fruit trees, orchard pruning need not be delayed until spring. It may be started in colder weather. But it is a good practice to work on the hardiest trees first.

Early pruning can involve some problems from winter injury, but in many cases an early start will be necessary to complete pruning of large orchards before spring. By confining work to the older, hardier trees, fruit growers keep injury to a minumum.

Apple and pear trees are the hardiest of the fruits, with plums and sour cherries next in order. Because peach and sweet cherries are most tender, delay their pruning, particularly the younger trees, until later in March.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

TROUBLE IN THE VINEYARD

March 8, 1987

Background Scripture: Luke 19:47 through 20:26.
Devotional Reading: Luke 21:34-38.

The trouble in the vineyard was with the tenants, not the vineyard itself. They had been granted the privilege to tend their own places in the owner's estate, but, once he went away they began to act as if it were their vineyard, not his. Oh, they knew he had title to it, but he had gone away on a trip and they were there and they felt that they, not he, had control over it. Apparently they thought he was going to be away for a long time or, perhaps, that he would never get around to returning.

WHOSE VINEYARD?

After Jesus had told this parable, Luke tells us: "The scribes and the priests tried to lay hands on him at that very hour...for they perceived that he had told this parable against them" (Luke 20:19). And they perceived rightly! Jesus was telling this parable against them.. and anyone else who, like the scribes and pharisees, forgets whose vineyard it is. Given the responsibility and the authority to teach the people the Jewish faith, they had tended to forget that the religious heritage belonged to God, not to them. They were conveniently forgetting that they were but tenants in the vineyard, not the owners.

"How could they do such a thing?" we wonder from the perspective of the 20th century. From this distance we can all see what a mistake they made. (Despite all the revisionist histories that have been written, I've never read one that defended the scribes and pharisees as being "right" and Jesus "wrong.") But, if we can see their mistake in rejecting Jesus, we often are equally blind in failing to realize that we do much the same thing they did. Like them, we tend to regard the church - or whatever we may call our repository of religious truth — as our "vineyard." We tend to forget our tenant status and even if we realize there is somewhere an Owner of the vineyard, like the scribes and the pharisees, we behave pretty much as if we doubt that he'll ever return.

THE REJECTED STONE

So, God sends us prophets from time to time, but, like the scribes and pharisees of old, we don't heed them and we may use some violence to send them on their way. We may acknowledge that the church is Christ's vineyard, but we act as if it really belongs to us. Often, what we do in his church may have little or nothing to do with the "fruit" he expects from his vineyard. There are many times when Christ is still the rejected cornerstone of the churches we build in his name.

If there is trouble in the vineyard, the trouble is with us.

C. Lee Caldwell, 1st place, Region 3, Beaver County, Alfalfa Grass, with WL 313
John Reed Rodgers, 1st Place, Region 2, Miflin County, Alfalfa Grass, with WL 320
Rick Telesz, Telesz Bros., 1st Place, Region 4, Lawrence County, Alfalfa, with WL 315
Gary Truckenmiller, R & G Truckenmiller, 2nd Place, Region 2, Northumberland County, Alfalfa, with WL 316
Norman H. Graham, 1st Place, Region 3, Butler County, Alfalfa, with WL 320 shown with Dr. John Baylor of Beachley Hardy Seed Co.

We also salute the following special producers and achievements:

John Tautin, Top 10% in Region 4, Crawford County, was last year's champion with the same field. In four years of competition, this WL 316 field has yielded 27.5 tons, 6 tons crude protein, and 16 tons TDN.

Harold, Mark and Grant Gayman, Gaymere Farm, Franklin County, recorded an outstanding yield of 5.41 tons off a new seeding of WL 316, the highest yield of all new seedings entered in the competition.

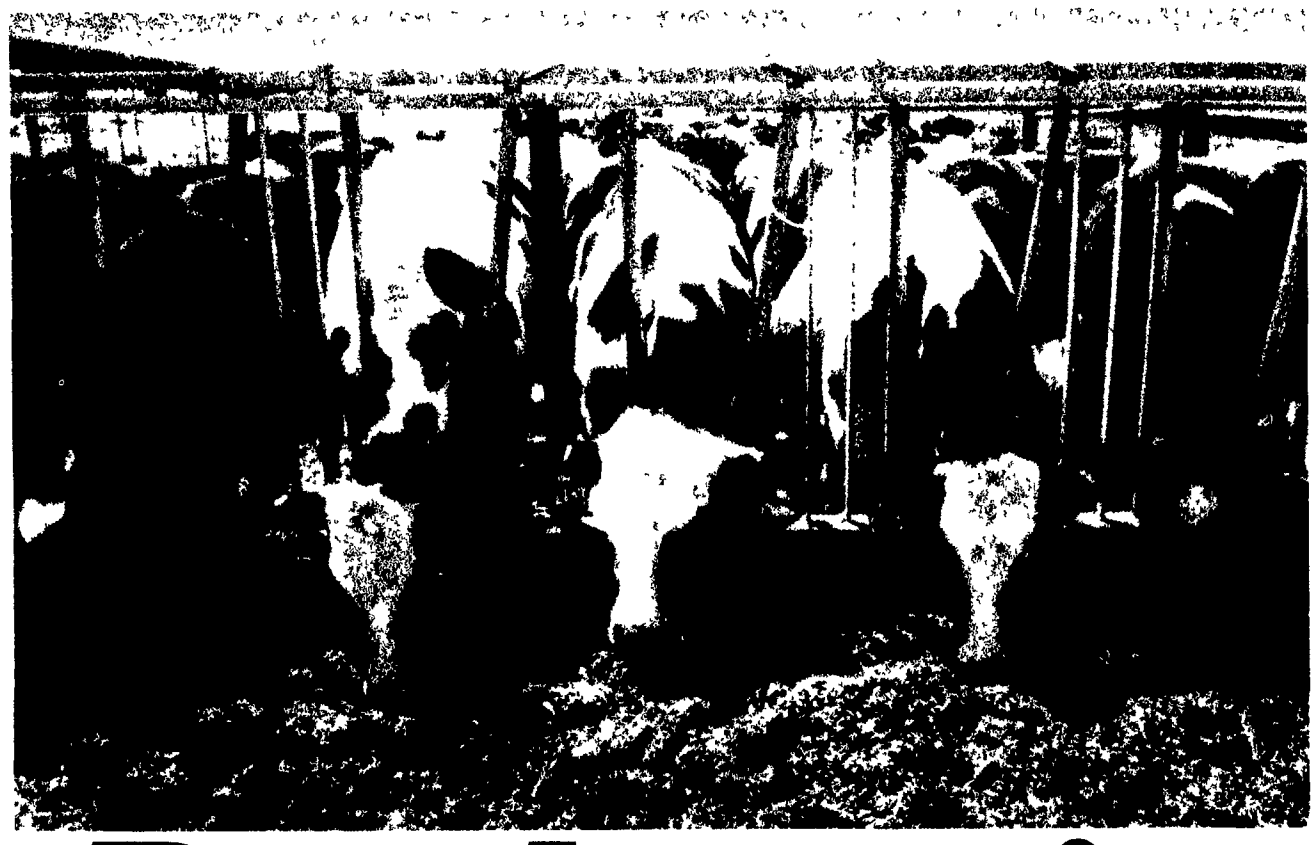
DEAL WITH THE LEADERS IN FORAGE PRE-SERVATIVE PRODUCTS

Lowest Prices! Early Order Now!
Ends March 31, 1987



Best bargain in the rack.

Beacon Pre-Serv really pays! Between cutting time and feeding time much of the nutritive value and palatability of hay can fade. Beacon Pre-Serv is a combination of stabilizers, antioxidants and selected flavors that helps you retain the fresh-cut nutrition and palatability you grew.

Besides protecting your hay from deterioration, Beacon Pre-Serv may give you greater flexibility in field work. It works consistently well on baled hay up to 25% moisture. There's less rain damage, less waiting to get into the fields, less curing time, less leaf and stem shatter.

Beacon Pre-Serv can mean more tons of hay per acre and more quality nutrients per ton at feeding time. Low application levels and ease of application make Beacon Pre-Serv an economical investment that pays for itself. Don't miss the chance to rack up the best bargain in haying. Stop in and pick up your supply of Beacon Pre-Serv today!

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS!

Due to low prices being offered for your 609 Tobacco, we recommend you consider having your tobacco processed now for sale at a later date. We have supported every effort to market your 609 Tobacco since early December, when marketing first began. Please remember that we paid some of the highest prices of the season during December & early January and will continue every effort to find a market price that is fair for you in the future. As a tobacco grower myself I realize that you must receive a better price for your tobacco in order to support your family. We will start receiving tobacco for processing on Thursday, March 12th. If you would like more information please call my office at 717-392-1281 on Thursday, March 12th or talk with me during the auction sales. We are located in American Cigar Building at 1397 Arcadia Rd., behind Landis John Deere Company on Manheim Pike.

IT'S A JUNGLE OUT THERE.

Weeds, grasses and trash in no-till corn can be a no-win situation for most herbicides. But not for Bicep plus Princep. They're an unbeatable combination for keeping no-till corn clean all season long.

With Bicep plus Princep in a program you get effective, long-lasting control of annual broadleaf weeds and grasses—even late germinators, like crabgrass and fall panicum. Put Bicep and Princep together on your team for dependable, economical control of no-till weeds and grasses all season long. And be king of the jungle. CIBA-GEIGY

WE NEED YOUR SUPPORT!

We asked for your support and you came through again! You helped us break a record for the most pounds sold over auction in one day with over 330,000 pounds sold. We will continue to offer auctions for those farmers who want to sell their tobacco now. It is important to attend the sale if you have tobacco here so you can compare your price with the market price for similar tobacco. With warm weather coming be sure to keep watch of your tobacco stored on the farm. Tobacco that was striped too damp can spoil if temperatures get too high. Remember! Auction makes the difference in marketing your tobacco and Garden Spot makes the difference in auctions!

Receiving Tobacco Six Days A Week:

Monday - Friday 7:30 to 5:00
Saturday - 8 a.m. to 12 noon

Sales Every Tuesday - 9 A.M.

Prompt payment for your crop - Checks available day of sale

Reproductive Management Tools Can Net Higher Profits

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

SADSBURYVILLE — Dairy farmers can increase their profits by adopting the latest reproductive management techniques. Cowside hormone testing and herd reproductive records are tools "you can use right now on the farm," Dr. Michael O'Connor, Penn State dairy extension specialist, told Chester County Dairy Day participants Feb. 26 at Sadsburyville.

For the greatest profitability the farmer's goal should be to achieve a calving interval of 12.5 to 12.8 months. Estrous detection through the milk-monitoring Progesterone Enzyme Ammunoassay should help with the 75-day conception goal.

According to O'Connor, the progesterone test is more accurate for heat detection than for pregnancy determination. It has proven 94 to 100 percent accurate in open diagnosis but only 65 to 85 percent reliable in showing pregnancy because conditions such as embryo mortality or uterine infection can cause a similar reading.

The test indicates heat because progesterone is low when estrogen is high. With one of about eight testing kits on the market a farmer can more accurately determine when to breed each cow. O'Connor suggested choosing a five minute test that includes tubes or bags for collecting samples. If samples are stored in the refrigerator, costs will be reduced by testing several with one kit, he said.

Additional suggestions are to use composite samples or last strippings, avoid infected quarters and check results carefully. Penn State found that milkfat variations did not affect results.

Another current reproductive tool is the prostaglandin injection followed by 80-hour appointment breeding. Benefits are fewer days open, efficient heat detection, less semen used and the advantages associated with more frequent veterinary exams. To be cost effective, O'Connor said, prostaglandin will have to be less than $3 per dose.

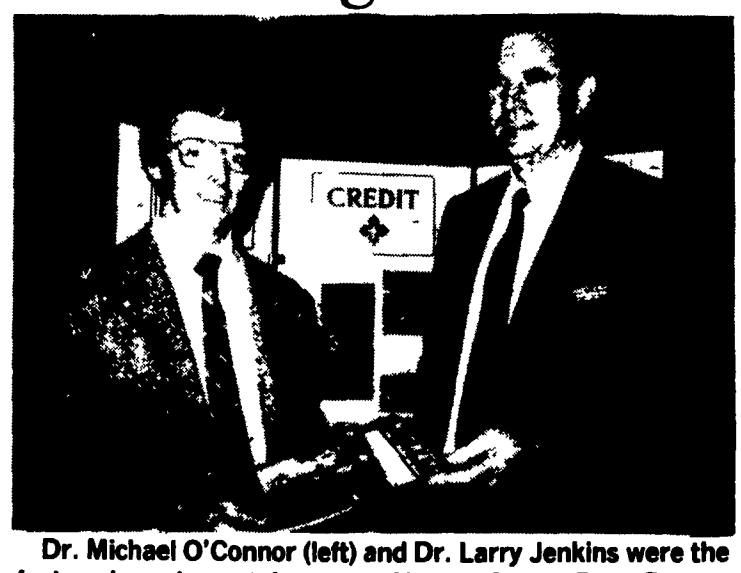
Not available yet are the more accurate L.H. test, indicating the exact time to breed, and Protein B, accurately diagnosing pregnancy, stated O'Connor.

O'Connor showed the audience how careful record-keeping can help diagnose potential problems in a herd. He observed that the essentials of a good system are that it be easily understood, easily updated and accessible to all employees.

Chester County Dairy Agent David Swartz said both quantity and quality of water are important for the dairy herd. A five month-old calf needs four gallons of water daily; a lactating cow giving 100 pounds of milk needs 55 gallons. The system supplying the animals should have 20-pounds pressure and 15 gallons per minute flow rate.

Where herd problems exist water quality must be considered. Swartz recommended obtaining a list of testing laboratories from the Extension Office and first having the supply tested for pH, Nitrates, total bacteria and total coliform. The second step is to check to see if sewage or manure is contaminating the water. Check in different seasons before investing in a new system, Swartz advised.

The most expensive tests are for toxic metals, such as lead and mercury, and for fuel and pesticides. Swartz cautioned the dairy families to choose a laboratory that does not also sell equipment.



Dr. Michael O'Connor (left) and Dr. Larry Jenkins were the featured speakers at the recent Chester County Dairy Day.

Dr. Larry Jenkins, Penn State farm management extension specialist, outlined income tax changes affecting the farm family. Jenkins also emphasized the need for good records as the foundation of financial management.

"The only way to enjoy your farm as a way of life," said Jenkins, "is to treat it as a business."

Atlantic Dairy District 18 Sets Meeting

SOUTHAMPTON — The Juniata Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 18 will hold its annual dinner meeting March 10 at 7 p.m. at Zimmies Diner, Mifflintown.

Larry R. Noss, Juniata Local president, will conduct the meeting. William H. Bradford, District 18 director, will report on cooperative business.

"We're bagging these hot hybrids for your farm"

There's no trade secret on how to produce a big shelling hybrid for your farm.

You start with a farm family like Doebler's. One with 52 years of corn breeding behind it. Then you stick with the basics—from testing inbreds to pulling tassels and grading seed. No shortcuts. And you test. At eastern ag colleges. At Doebler's seven research stations. On farms all across the East.

It works. Let our hybrids show you just how well.

Why not call your nearby dealer. He has the details to help you pick a winner for your farm. All Doebler hybrids come in the full bushel bag, of course. The price just could surprise you.

DOEBLER 89X-C, 120 days. A big sheller everywhere — 165.4 bu. average in 1986 farm tests, 152.5 in '85. Shakes off drought and leaf diseases. Good standup. Deep kernels. Hard cob.

DOEBLER 86X, 119 days. Excels where leaf disease major problem. Like southeast and southcentral PA . . . and south. Super stalks. Solid yields. 167.9 bu. average last year in 23 trials.

DOEBLER 75X, 113 days. Reco say it all. Pennsylvania's all time c champ with 281.6 bu. in 1986 state five-a contest. And stunning 170.3 bu. average 33 farm trials elsewhere.

DOEBLER 70X-C, 112 days. New 1987. And a real silo filler. "C" gives y bigger yields and a larger, greener plant th 70X-A. But retains good health and stu stalks.

DOEBLER'S Hybrids grown FOR THE EAST

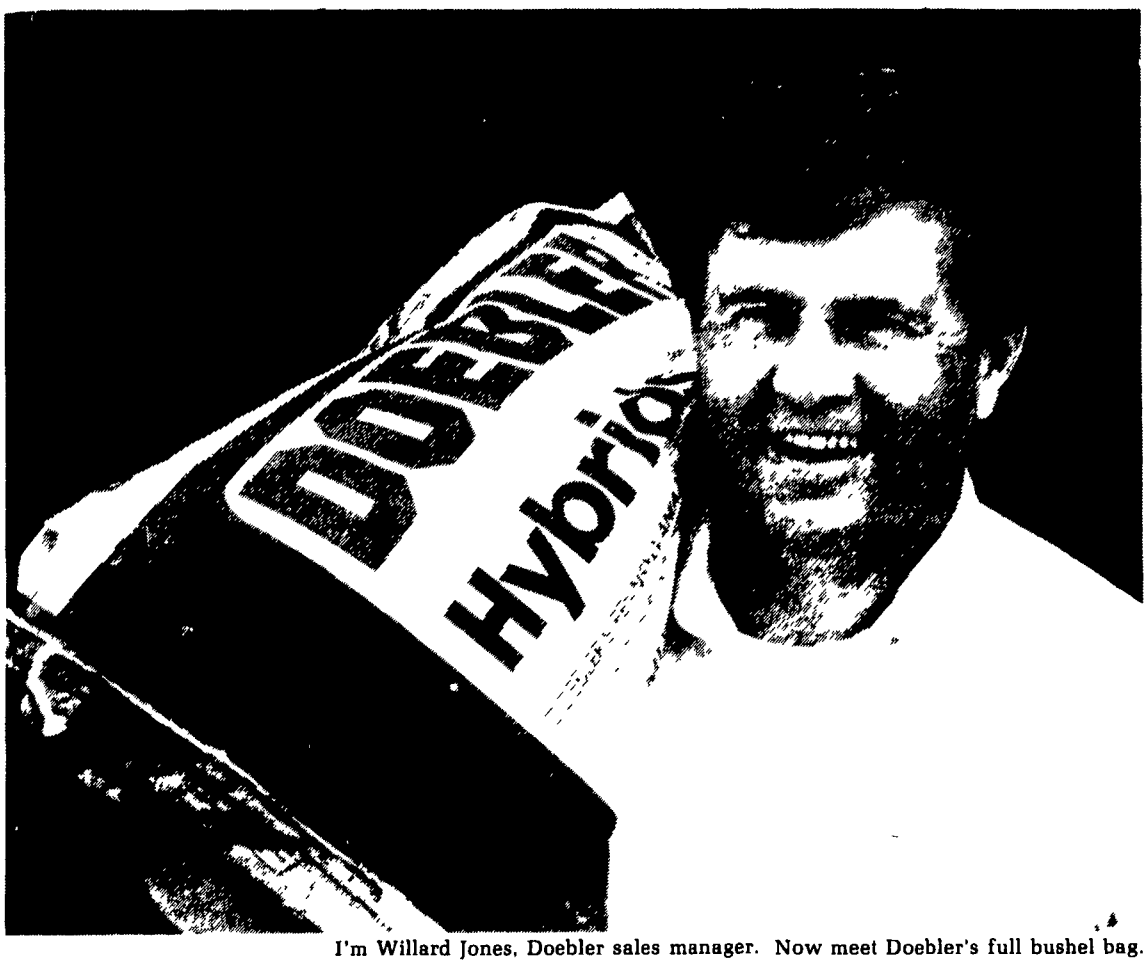
DOEBLER'S DOING IT.



I'm Willard Jones, Doebler sales manager. Now meet Doebler's full bushel bag.

DOEBLER 65X, 103 days. Chop or combine. Looking great at Cornell, Penn State, everywhere. 166.5 bushel average last year in 52 farm trials. Super stander. Good disease resistance.

DOEBLER 48X, 90 days. Big producer in Penn State and Cornell trials. And on area farms. Medium height. Excellent stander. Popped 156 bu. average last year in 13 farm trials.

DOEBLER 48X-E, 87 days. Quicker dry down than 48X. Same great stalks. And what a sheller. 150.8 bu. average last year in 13 tests, 159 bu. at Perry, NY, 157.9 bu. at Jersey Shore, PA.

DOEBLER 370A-3, 85 days. Another modern three way. Go two ways with this one. Fill silo, pick rest. Good standup. Healthy plant. Large ears. Averaged 151.9 bu. in 13 trials last year.

Lancaster Dairy Day

Rabies Poses A Serious Threat To Dairymen In Pa.

LANCASTER — Rabies, the disease has received its share of press recently thanks to the law which went into effective Feb. 13. The law requires all dogs and cats, with the exception of barn cats, to be vaccinated. The passing of the momentous date has not quelled concern for the ramifications of the disease to livestock.

Producers attending the first day of Lancaster County dairy days quizzed Dr. Lawrence Hutchinson, Penn State extension veterinarian, on the disease.

"I think that most everybody has heard that rabies is on its way to Lancaster County. We've had a lot of rabies in Southcentral Pennsylvania in the last three, four years. It's been an epidemic. Up until last year it was pretty much west of the Susquehanna River. We have it in Dauphin County and we can suspect we'll have problems in Lancaster County' Hutchinson said.

"It's a scary disease because it's fatal to almost every animal that contracts it," he said. Hutchinson suggested ways that dairymen can be "rabies-wise." Top on his list was vaccinating barn cats. "Unfortunately barn cats are the most susceptible, the most likely of the domestic animals to pickup rabies."

"If you're going to keep cats I think you should have them vaccinated. They are a risk to you, your children, and your cattle."

He recommended vaccinating cattle for rabies only if the immediate area has high levels of the disease. Prior to vaccinating, he cautioned, the producer should discuss the decision with the local vet who is aware of the individual circumstance.

The typical cow with rabies appears dull, depressed, dopey, unaware of surrounding and may or may not beller. When a female does beller, it may sound like a bull or make other unusual sounds, Hutchinson said. Sexually mature animals appear in heat at abnormal times for excessive periods. Animals have difficulty swallowing and sometimes produce excess amounts of saliva.

Furious rabies is uncommon. Dumb rabies are more common, he added. Some of these signs could also indicate other diseases, Hutchinson explained.

Rabid animals are generally not a threat to other animals, he said. However, Hutchinson cautioned, workers could be contaminated through a skin opening by the infected animal's saliva.

He recommended shooting any rabies-suspicious wild animals but not destroying the head. The body should be turned over to authorities to be checked for the disease. Authories should be called for any other animal, including dogs and cats.

BVD

Bovine Virus Diarrhea does not necessarily cause diarrhea — previously considered a major sympton. "Today we have a lot of animals that have BVD that don't have diarrhea. But they do have one or the other of these types (cytopathic or noncytopathic) and very often it affects their reproductive cycle," Hutchinson said.

He listed early embryonic death, weak calves and abortion as main signs of the disease.

The noncytopathic type is "really a little treacherous little guy," the Penn State vet said. This type of virus exhibits no signs in the infected animals and perpetuates the disease in the herd by causing the animal to be a silent carrier.

"We're realizing it's a significant cause of some of our reproductive problems that we've experience but couldn't explain before."

Sharing the podium at Tuesday's Lancaster County Dairy Day were Louis Moore (left), Joseph Hlubik and Lawrence Hutchinson, Penn State extension specialist.

Immunity

Animals deficient in zinc, copper, selenium, manganese and fat-soluble vitamins do not mount a good immune response when vaccinated, Hutchinson said. However, there is "no evidence that we can produce a better im-

The better buffer. Pure and simple.

For pourability and ease of handling, S-Carb feed grade sodium sesquicarbonate stands above the rest. When compared to sodium bicarbonate, S-Carb dramatically reduces caking and dust, providing clean, problem-free handling.

And S-Carb delivers results! It effectively neutralizes rumen acid and is research-proven to yield significant increases in production of 4% fat-corrected milk—equal to or greater than sodium bicarbonate.

S-Carb doesn't strain the feed budget either. For ease of handling, high quality and performance you'll find S-Carb a true value.

The choice is pure and simple.

Pork Congress

constant producer input throughout its development. Prior to its approval by NPPC's Consumer Product Marketing Policy Development Group, one on one interviews with producers in Iowa, Missouri and Nebraska were initiated. The producers were asked to look at a simple ad without being given any background information on the concept and respond to a series of questions. While most producers seemed surprised initially by the other white meat positioning, the positive response was fantastic. Nine out of ten felt the strategy would create awareness.

As always in recent years, the merits of somatotropin played a roll in the thinking of the attendees at the national pork producers' event. Dr. William Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska, said that genetic merit will be a more important factor in the pork producing industry in the future regardless of the availability of somatotropin. "Somatotropin is a growth-producing hormone found in all mammals," Ahlschwede said. "It is a large protein molecule, which is now being produced experimentally in research laboratories as a genetically engineered product. While the molecules are similar, each species has a specific hormone. Recombinant somatotropin is being produced for research trials but is not commercially available. Contrary to the first reaction of many pork producers and industry observers, Ahlschwede said he does not feel that somatotropin when and if it becomes available will remove all concern about genetics. "Somatotropin injected into finishing pigs has resulted in increased rates of gain, improved feed efficiency and reduced carcass fat. Because these are the same responses to genetic improvement the producers have seen for many years, it's natural that producers would see somatotropin as replacing a systematic genetic program," Ahlschwede said. "The pig is biologically more complex than that. So we should expect these new agents to multiply genetic affects rather than replace them."

Orville Sweet, executive vice president of the National Pork Producers Council, said the farmer producer does not need to be the victim of the trend toward integration. Sweet concluded that the following items would be among those to be considered.

–maintain a strong, well-informed, producer-oriented delegate-driven association to address industry issues –improve communications with markets, packers, retailers and consumers

–address consumers concerns whether real or perceived and produce a lean, hazard-free product

–address the problem of quality price differential

–develop the most direct consumer messages and maintain a high profile for pork through consumer product advertising –maintain strong cooperative state associations that are loyal to the national purpose –work to assure equal opportunity for all producers

–maintain adequate funding to achieve the national goals established by the delegates

–maintain a strong Washington base to educate and address regulatory and legislative issues that impact producers and export opportunities –insist on a highly professional staff that is loyal to the mission adopted by pork producers

"The animal welfare threat is real," Sweet said. "We are today victims of a well-organized campaign by activists who have energized thousands of consumers to protest our reasonable and traditional production practices. The attack today is against poultry and pork producers. In Michigan alone there are 30,000 members of these humane society sponsoring legislature to tax cut food five percent to finance their activities. This will generate $300 million to campaign against animal agriculture. I'm strongly recommending that we get serious about issues we have talked about for years," Sweet said. "The future of the industry and your stake in it depends on our maintaining a strong, collective force to address these problems."

background and experience.

A. I am from central Indiana, and I live on a purebred hampshire and yorkshire farm. We're seed stock breeders. I was a senior 4-H member and all the money from 4-H animals are what's sending me to school. I'm a senior at Perdue University where I'm studying nursing. After graduation I plan to work with cancer patients. I've had a great year this year traveling all across the United States and just spreading the good news about pork.

Q. Can you think of just one or two things during the year that stand out as something you will remember for a long time.

A. Honestly, the whole year stands out. There is not just one thing that's better. I would like to stress that all across the United States pork producers attitudes are up, and we have a lot to be excited about. Our industry is certainly on the move. From the east coast to the west coast, we should be excited about our product.

Q. Tell me a little about the promotional programs and the checkoff and all the things that are related to that if you can.

A. Oh, I certainly can. I think I could stand here and talk to you for days about that. The new white meat campaign is just going to take America by storm. For lack of a better term, "It's going to blow our socks off." I think we have a great spokesperson in Peggy Fleming. The 100% checkoff–it's time for that. It certainly is. We can see our checkoff dollars at work. We can see what all it does. To be competitive with those other commodity groups, we have to have that checkoff. It's as simple as that.

Q. Since so many of the commodities are now promoting their agricultural products and stomachs are only so big–they can only stretch so far–is there a danger of the competitiion between the commodities (milk, pork, beef and veal) that we might need to address?

A. I feel certain that there is competition. Good competition is just healthy.

Q. Even within the industry, you think?

A. Yes, it is. Competition is what will make us strive to be a better industry and strive to work for those goals that we have set for ourselves.

Q. I know you are involved, and have been here this morning, with the women's program of the convention. What part do women play in pork production and pork promotion?

A. Women play a very, very large roll. First of all, I am amazed at the number of women who help on the farm. Of course, we help on our farm. I guess I thought we were unique in that. But every where I've gone the women are right out there in the farrowing barn and this type of thing. And if they are not out there, they're out promoting they're product. That just makes me feel so proud. Perhaps they have a little bit more time than their husbands. Their husbands are out in the fields and this, that and the other. They can get out. They can do the grocery store promotions. They can do the cooking demonstrations. Women can get into the schools. They can get to the restaurants and talk to the restaurant managers about "Hey, we want more pork on that menu." I think without a women's organization... I just can't say enough for it.

Q. Evedently, you think the family farm is going to have a roll to play for years to come.

A. Oh yes. I am a big promoter of the family farm. I just have nothing but positive remarks to say about that.

Q. You're not ready to give it up to the corporate farms?

A. Oh, no, no, no! Not at all.

Q. You are coming through with your upbeat slogan this year. Do you think the farm economy has made a turn? How would you describe that in the west or in the central part of the U.S. so that our eastern farmers could get some feel for how you sense the farm economy?

A. First of all, I want to tell you that no where that I have gone have I sensed any negative attitude, not right after the 100% checkoff, not any time. I think that's important to stress. I do want to say I've covered most of the U.S. So I don't feel like that's unique just to the midwest. Hog prices are up. Corn–it's going to get there. We need to be patient. We'll just look at the winter. We've had a very, very easy winter here in the midwest. I just think people have a lot to be excited about. You know there are negative aspects in any industry. If you just sit around and draw on the negative... Our positive traits far outway our negative. That's what we need to concentrate on.

Q. If you had one chance to tell our farmers back east anything you wanted to say, what would you tell them?

A. I would tell them to keep up the good work. Keep producing the better products that the consumer wants. Keep promoting that product. Just join together and just do a little extra. Get a little more involved in your county or state or local organization. I think in 1987 we're going to see great strides in the pork industry. I think we all want to be part of that.

bination with high sulfur coal. "The potential's phenomenal," said Tank, speculating the nation's farmers may not have the capacity to meet market demands if such a usage were to be widely accepted. Industry would find it less costly to meet clean air standards by burning ethanol, Tank pointed out, since acid rain-causing sulfur emissions would be reduced.

Held at the Embers Restaurant,

Al Tank

Tuesday's conference included four afternoon workshops. One of the sessions showed farmers how to reduce corn drying costs by more than a third. Chaired by Penn State ag engineer Jon Carson, the panel discussion focused on innovative ways to incorporate heat exchange units with a grain dryer.

Panel members included Lycoming County corn growers Frank White and Curt Rakestraw and Mack Rine of Montour County, who designed the units in use on the White and Rakestraw farms.

Both designs enclose the grain dryer in a building which, White points out, provides the additional benefit of reducing deterioration from the elements. The heart of White's heat exchange unit is a rectangular bundle of aluminum tubes 3 inches in diameter by 10 feet long. The bundle's dimensions are 13 inches by 54 inches. Air leaving the dryer is expelled through the tubes, while incoming air passes along the outside of the tube walls and absorbs heat.

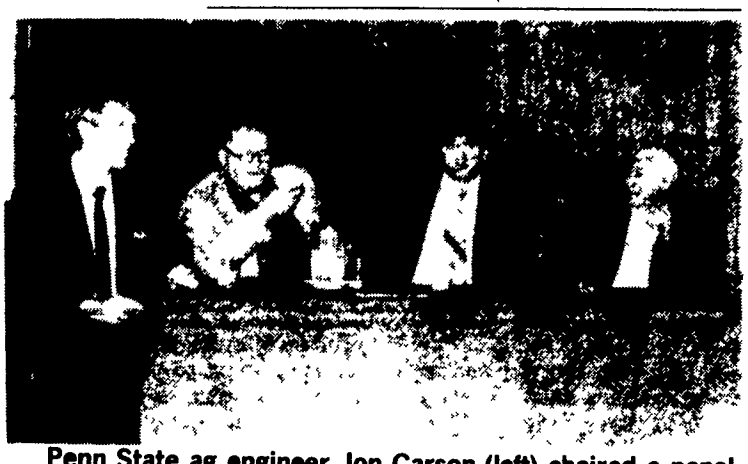
While White's unit cost $5,900 to construct, he's quick to point out that this method of reclaiming heat saved him $4,100 in fuel costs last year. "We figure we paid it off in about one and a half seasons," he says.

The Rakestraw unit consists of a stack of aluminum flashing fins separated by 1½-by-2-inch strips of treated lumber. Each of the two stacks of fins is 2 feet wide by 8 feet high. Rakestraw figures that he saves between 30 and 50 percent annually on energy costs with the unit. In 1983 he dried 52,000 bushels of corn at a cost of 9.2 cents per bushel. Since the unit was installed four years ago, his drying costs have dropped from an average of more than 20 cents a bushel to between 10 and 11 cents a bushel.

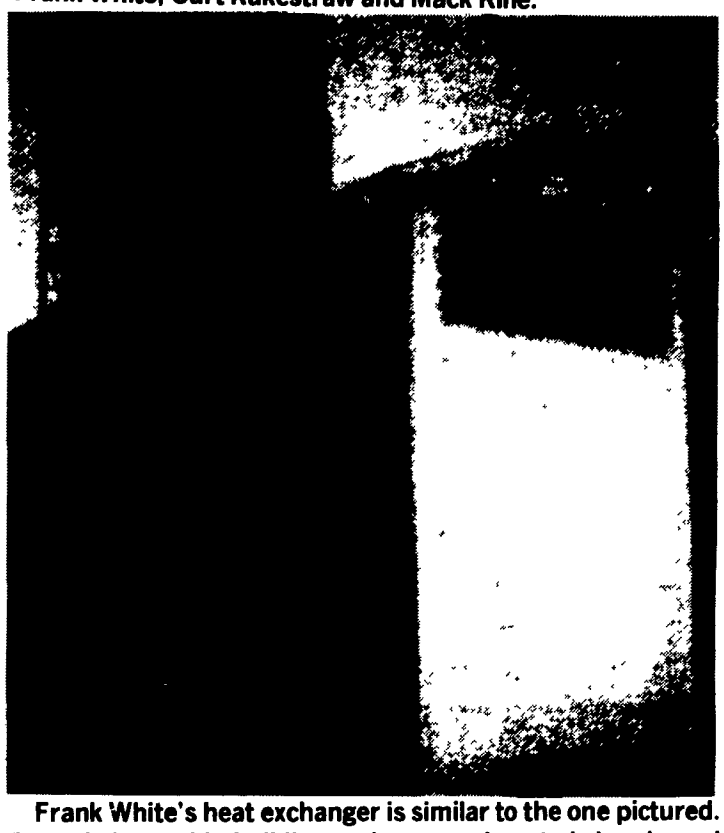
Maintenance on his heat exchanger has not added to his overhead, Rakestraw said, pointing out that he has dried about 250,000 bushels thus far without a service call.

Barry Pidcoe, the designer's son-in-law, has built six of the heat exchange units, including those owned by White and Rakestraw. Farmers interested in more information about the systems can contact Pidcoe at RD 3, Box 854, Milton, PA, 17847.

Other workshops included a discussion on reducing corn input costs by Crop Management Association coordinator Melvin Brown; nitrogen management techniques by Donald Johnson, an agronomist with Arcadian Fertilizer Company; and coping with triazine-resistant weed problems by University of Maryland pest management specialist Betty Marose.



Penn State ag engineer Jon Carson (left) chaired a panel discussion on heat reclaimers for drying cown. Panelists were Frank White, Curt Rakestraw and Mack Rine.



Frank White's heat exchanger is similar to the one pictured. Dryer is housed in building and warm exhaust air is released through honeycomb of tubes. Incoming air passes along tube walls and absorbs heat.

Lancaster Conservation District Offers Seedlings

LANCASTER – The Lancaster County Conservation District will be conducting a tree seedling sale on April 24. Pre-paid orders will be accepted to purchase evergreen, hardwood, and ornamental seedlings during the month of March. The seedlings, ranging in size from 6 to 24 inches depending on species, may be used for any purpose.

Evergreen species sold will include blue spruce, Norway spruce, Scotch pine, white pine, Douglas fir and Eastern hemlock. These are sold in packets of 10 for $4. Hardwood seedlings include white flowering dogwood, red oak and sugar maple. They are sold for $1.10 each. Two ornamental species are being sold. Redbud seedlings can be purchased for $2 each and pink rhododendron are available at $4 each or 3 for $10.

Order forms can be secured by contacting the Conservation District Office at (717) 299-5361; Room 6, Farm and Home Center, 1383 Arcadia Road, Lancaster, PA 17601.

Dairy Picture Clouded By Good, Bad News And Rumors

BY ED SHAMY
Northampton Co. Correspondent

RARITAN TOWNSHIP, N.J. — The way the American Farm Bureau Federation sees it, there's some good news, some bad news and plenty of rumors for dairy farmers to think about these days.

The tricky part is telling them all apart.

Hollis Hatfield, the director of the farm bureau's dairy division, traveled to this northern New Jersey town last week to try to interpret for about 30 dairymen what is happening on the national dairy scene.

First, the good news.

Food prices are rising, but the grocery store prices for dairy products are not rising as rapidly as those for many other foods, making the dairy foods increasingly appealing to consumers. The dairy buyout program is working, milk prices seem to be stabilizing and population growth is continuing.

Now for the bad news.

Bovine growth hormone, the highly touted daily injection that can increase dairy cow output dramatically, may prove unacceptable to the American consumer. Though the 1985 farm bill includes provisions for a second herd buyout to further reduce milk surpluses, if necessary, it isn't likely that it will be invoked. The current herd buyout has dairymen and beef ranchers locked in a bitter feud, said Hatfield.

And finally, the rumors.

As has become customary during times of depression within the dairy economy over the past half-century, there has been stepped-up talk of nationwide milk quotas being imposed on individual farmers. The mere suggestion of milk production quotas has many farmers adding to their herds to assure a larger base when, and if, quotas are imposed. The additional cows' production aggravates the glut of milk that has the dairy economy so troubled.

It's all enough to make a body's head spin, but Hatfield presented each factor influencing the dairy economy individually, and offered several predictions.

Perhaps most heartening was his reaction to news from the retail marketplace, where food prices have far outstripped dairy food price increases.

Hatfield said that between 1982 and 1986, all food prices rose 11.9 percent, while dairy food prices rose by only 4.6 percent.

To dramatize the relationship, he said that overall food prices rose by 3.4 percent in December. Cheese prices rose by only 1.2 percent during the month, he said. Cheese is generally considered one of the hottest prospects for the future of the dairy industry since it takes about 10 pounds of milk to make about a pound of cheese.

"I don't see anything to change that price relationship between the cost increases of all foods and dairy products," Hatfield told the dairymen in the Hunterdon County Extension Center.

He added, "Dairy prices can go up, but as long as other prices go up faster, we still have that relative advantage in the supermarket."

The United States population is continuing to increase, albeit moderately, and Hatfield said the rising number of people create a growing potential market for dairy products.

Still, a milk glut remains to darken the dairy economy, though Hatfield said the whole dairy herd buyout program has taken strides toward resolving the market imbalance.

The American Farm Bureau is predicting 1987 milk production in the country at 143 billion pounds, down about 2 billion pounds from last year.

Much of the decrease will be due to the herd buyout, now about 67 percent complete, that is taking some about 1.5 million of the nation's 11 million-cow dairy herd off the milking lines. Producers are being paid to slaughter or export the animals and to leave the dairy business.

The herd buyout may have even more of an impact, though, Hatfield predicted, because a very different type of dairy farmer enrolled in the program than what had originally been expected.

Dairy industry analysts expected older dairy farmers and those operating at a loss or marginal profit to take advantage of the herd buyout and to leave the business.

Instead, said Hatfield, the program "took out a very large percentage of the nation's very best dairymen," leaving the older and marginal farmers in the business.

If those expected to abandon milk production do so this year, the dairy economy may feel even more of a beneficial jolt from the herd buyout than last year.

But the buyout has seriously strained relations between dairy farmers and their counterparts in the beef industry, said Hatfield.

Of the 1,012,475 dairy cows that were removed from milk production because of the federal program between April 1 of last year and Jan. 23 of this year, 960,400 were slaughtered.

Despite the federal government's pledge to buy $400 million worth of beef to guard against a market glut of the meat, beef ranchers are bitter about the impact the herd buyout has had on their pocketbooks.

Likewise, dairy farmers are not fond of their inclusion in a beef check-off program that began last year, requiring the sellers of all beef animals to pay $1 per head toward a beef promotional and research campaign.

The American Farm Bureau's dairy committee several weeks ago proposed a meeting with the federation's beef committee.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

— Harry S. Sloat, associate county agent, has reminded the tobacco growers that this is the time of year to check the tobacco seed and get the seed beds ready.

In order to grow a better yield and quality, a good supply of strong, vigorous, healthy plants are needed to set in the field at planting time.

— Based on records of recent years, Governor George M. Leader today said egg production on Pennsylvania farms should reach its 1957 peak during the coming month at approximately 28 million dozen. He urged consumers to assist producers in observance of Pennsylvania March Egg Month.

"Eggs will be more plentiful during March and offered at more attractive consumer prices than in any other month of the year," the Governor said.

— "Farmers can make an extra $800 profit from 20 acres of corn if they grow 13,000 to 16,000 plants per acre instead of the usual 10,000." This statement was made at a Jersey Shore meeting of the Pennsylvania Seed Corn Producers' Association by L. L. Huber, corn breeder for the Agricultural Experiment Station, the Pennsylvania State University.

Huber declared corn yields increase as the number of plants per acre increase. He said each farmer must decide what is best for his farm.

— The practice of taking soil samples and using complete soil tests was emphasized at a soils and crops meeting at White Horse Fire Hall Tuesday night by County Agent Max M. Smith, Amos H. Funk, president of the Lancaster County Soil Conservation District and W. Martin Muth, U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Funk urged the 28 eastern county farmers attending to use the complete tests. He cited as an example an occasion when a crop on his farm showed a nutritional deficiency.

— Pennsylvania farmers received $11.4 million for vegetables produced last year for canning and freezing.

"This sum resulted from the sale of more than 568 million pounds of vegetables to processors," explained W. H. Gaul, Pennsylvania representative of American Can Company.

He noted that the amount paid to the state's growers for their 1956 processing crops more than $4 million above that of 1955. Crop production rose 244 million pounds above 1955 levels, he added.

New Jersey Dairy Meeting

Dairy committee members wanted to propose lobbying for legislation that would exempt dairy calves from the beef check-off.

"They (the beef committee members) told us to go to hell," said Hatfield.

He described the feud, most bitter in the far west, as "an intra-industry feud like none of us has ever seen before."

The debate makes it appear very unlikely that U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Richard Lyng will use his power, vested in him by the current farm bill, to call for a second buyout when the herd buyout ends in September.

Cow numbers are now down to about 10.5 million nationally, compared to 15.3 million in 1965 and 11.5 million a year ago.

But there are 41.1 heifers for every 100 cows on America's farms, according to the USDA's latest livestock industry, and that is a high number.

"It's still far more heifers than we need," said Hatfield.

Government purchases of surplus milk have also subsided, but probably not enough to prevent drops in the support price.

If the U.S. Commodity Credit Corporation buys more than five billion pounds of milk annually, the secretary of agriculture can drop the support price, now at $11.35 per hundredweight, by 50 cents per hundredweight each Jan. 1 until 1990.

Right now, said Hatfield, the CCC is buying about 7 billion pounds of milk each year. CCC purchases peaked at 16 billion pounds several years ago and have averaged 13 billion pounds annually since 1980.

"What we've had since 1980 (the milk glut) is an unusual situation," he said.

The glut has, in turn, fueled talk of a quota system, which Canadian dairy farmers have had for more than a decade. The talk, in turn, fuels more production, said Hatfield.

But, he said flatly, milk quotas won't happen in the United States. He said the dairy picture is not bleak enough to spur dairymen on to press for the politically explosive quotas.

The dairy picture is anything but clear.

Hatfield didn't say whether the positive or negative portents would prevail, but he said rumors will persist.

"The dairy industry is full of rumors," he said. "If there aren't any around, we'll make them up."

Domestic Cheeses Lead Dairy Sales Increase At 20.8 Percent

WASHINGTON — Dairy products posted a 10 percent increase in sales over the past three years, representing the largest three-year increase in the history of commercial dairy usage in at least 30 years, according to Joseph J. Westwater, chief executive officer of the National Dairy Board.

Leading the increase in dairy sales are domestic cheeses, up 20.8 percent since 1983. Total milk sales for the same period are up 10.3 percent, with a 3.7 percent increase for fluid milk also reported. Non-fat, dry milk is up 11.1 percent. Frozen desserts (sherbet, ice milk) showed a 4.4 percent increase, while ice cream sales were up 3.3 percent.

The beginning of the rise in dairy sales can be traced to 1983. That year, the National Dairy Board was congressionally established by the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act, and together with existing state and regional promotion groups began developing a coordinated program to expand dairy product sales. The success of the program has far surpassed initial expectations.

In addition to National Dairy Board and state and regional promotional efforts, Westwater cites other factors involved in the dairy products' rise, including relatively stable prices, increased real consumer income, and a better employment picture.

Nevertheless, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, Richard E. Lyng, attributes much of the recent dairy sales increases to the efforts of National Dairy Board, recently noting that "sales picked up after they started."

Financing comes from a mandatory assessment of 15 cents on each 100 pounds of milk produced and marketed in the U.S. However, about 10 cents of the 15 cents collected are used to fund state and regional dairy promotion programs. For the fiscal year ending April 30, 1987, the National Dairy Board invested $64 million in generic product advertising.

The success of the National Dairy Board's program has not gone unnoticed by other agricultural producers. In fact, it has become "the prototype for many other agricultural commodities," according to Ron Hamel, public affairs spokesperson for the National Dairy Board.

"The dairy industry is shifting from an emphasis on production, to an emphasis on marketing its products," he continues. "Dairy's success has been so significant that producers of other farm commodities are adopting the same approach to solving similar problems associated with marketing their products."

Some recent examples include the promotion for beef and pork, both financed by producers.

At a time when some people have questioned whether groups of farmers can market commodities on a generic basis, the National Dairy Board seems to be proving that the approach can be effective.

FLO-STAR™ claw

Bou-Matic®'s Flo-Star™ milking claw improves milk flow for:

- Better cow health
- Faster milk throughput, and
- Better milk quality.

Bou-Matic engineers designed the Flo-Star claw so milk flows smoothly and quickly out the bottom.

Less agitation equals less chance of milk "mist" carrying bacteria among teats. So the Flo-Star claw can mean less mastitis spread at milking.

Dairymen Inc. Announces Incentive Plan For Producers

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

SYKESVILLE, Md. – A bonus of one dollar per hundredweight will go to members of Dairymen Inc. for increasing milk production next fall over amounts shipped during the next three months.

And, just keeping fall milk production at the same levels shipped this spring will earn members 50 cents per hundredweight or more premium from August through September.

"Members have suggested that they would maintain fall production if they were paid a premium," says John Collins Jr., manager of the Middle Atlantic Division of Dairymen Inc." They indicated this plan would help eliminate the need to import milk during periods of lower production and strong Class I sales. And, they were heard."

According to Collins, every member will establish a daily production base during the months of March, April and May. Production during the months of August, September and October will be totaled, and premium payments calculated monthly.

Under Dairymen's Fall Production Incentive Plan, volumes of milk marketed August through October which are 90 to 95 percent above the three-month spring base will earn a premium of 50 cents per hundredweight.

For volumes 95 to 100 percent of the spring base, a 75 cent per hundredweight premium will be paid. And, at production levels over 100 percent of the spring base, members will earn the full one dollar premium per hundredweight.

"This plan is to financially encourage our members to meet fall sales needs without having to purchase milk from other sources, and pay transportation costs," Collins adds. "Members can take advantage of the program by increasing fall production or reducing spring deliveries during the base-building period of March through May."

The milk marketing cooperative suggests that each member study projected spring and fall production, and make adjustments as necessary to maximize returns under the Fall Production Incentive Plan.

Dairymen Inc. members with further questions on the incentive program are encouraged to contact their field staff representatives.

Dairymen Inc. producer Barb Taylor checks the daily milk weight at the family's Taylor-Whey farm in York County. Under Dairymen's Fall Production Incentive Program members of the milk cooperative can earn up to $1 per hundredweight next fall for milk shipped in volumes above their spring production.

Youth Conservation School Slated In Lancaster

LANCASTER – The Federated Sportsmen of Lancaster County and the Lancaster County Conservation District are sponsoring the 8th Annual Lancaster County Youth Conservation School from July 19 to 25. The week-long resident school is geared for boys and girls 14 to 16 years of age who have an interest in the environment. The school is held at the Northern Lancaster County Game and Fish Protective Association in West Cocalico Township. Students sleep in tents for the week and assist in the preparation of the food.

Natural resource professionals from government agencies and other knowledgeable outdoorsmen conduct classes on various conservation topics. Forestry, soil and water conservation, fish and game management, orienteering and survival are a few of the subjects covered. Students should be sponsored by a sportsman's club, environmental group or other civic organization. The cost is $75.

Three Farms Honored At Chesapeake Bay Program

GETTYSBURG — Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff presented three Susquehanna River Basin farms with Regional Clean Water Farm Awards for outstanding conservation and nutrient management practices as part of the Commonwealth's Chesapeake Bay program.

Wolff, who presented the awards at the Commonwealth's Chesapeake Bay Conference at Gettysburg College last Saturday, called the three award winners "excellent examples of the Pennsylvania farm community's dedication to the stewardship of two of our most precious natural resources – soil and water."

The regional winners were selected from county conservation district nominees and judged on criteria that includes soil and manure testing practices, pesticide, crop and nutrient management techniques and conservation planning.

The three Regional Clean Water Farm Award recipients are:

• James C. Muthler of Howard, Clinton County. Muthler operates a 155-acre dairy farm and has implemented a comprehensive manure storage and utilization plan, practices no-till plowing, has instituted a thorough pesticide application plan and participates in a soil testing program. Muthler has also installed diversion ditches, cropland terraces, waterways and contour strips.

• Earl Long of Patton, Cambria County. Long operates a 550-acre grain farm and has developed a comprehensive pesticide and herbicide application management plan, uses cover crops, practices no-till plowing, uses soil testing and follows a nutrient management plan, including split application and sidedressing of fertilizer. Long's conservation practices have resulted in a 100-bushel-per-acre corn yield and a 95-bushel-per-acre- oats yield.

• Donald Leatherman of Newville, Cumberland County. Leatherman, who operates a 97-acre dairy farm, has completed a conservation management plan, including a manure storage pit, strip cropping, reduced tillage, cover cropping and split and sidedress fertilizer application. Leatherman is participating in a Penn State/U.S. Department of Agriculture research project that analyzes groundwater beneath his manure storage facility.

Recipients of Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm awards at last Saturday's Chesapeake Bay Conference were (top to bottom) James and Violet Muthler, Donald and Lois Leatherman and Earl and Rosemary Long.

Atlantic Dairy Locals Set Meetings

SOUTHAMPTON — The Trappe Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 1 will hold its annual dinner meeting March 12 at 12 p.m. at Moorehead's Restaurant, Trappe.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect officers for the coming year. Paul Grater, Trappe Local president, will conduct the meeting. Penrose Hallowell, District 1 director, will report on cooperative business.

The Fulton County Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 21 will hold its annual dinner meeting March 13 at 7 p.m. at the Needmore Fire Hall, near McConnellsburg.

Robert B. McSparran, Atlantic's president, will be the guest speaker. McSparran will report on cooperative business.

R. Boyd Cromer, Fulton County Local president, will conduct the meeting. H. Karl Beegle, District 21 director, will report on behalf of the board of directors.

The Chambersburg and Mercersburg Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 26 will hold its annual dinner meeting March 13 at 7 p.m. at Kauffman's Ruritan Building.

Daniel D. Plinski, Holly Milk Cooperative's general manager, will be the guest speaker. Plinski will explain Holly Milk's role in the Atlantic marketing system.

Kenneth Schoenberg, District 26 president, will conduct the meeting. A report on cooperative business will be given by V. Myers Metcalfe, District 26 director.

In addition, Metcalfe will present a 25-year membership award to Kenneth S. and Edith G. Doyle, Dry Run. The owners of Martin Lane Farm — John D., Paul A., Edwin, Daniel and Michael Martin, Mercersburg — will receive a 50-year membership plaque.

Seeding Option On Set-Aside Acres

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa – This year's farm program would increase the percentage of idle acres in some states to as much as 20 to 30 percent of the corn base. For growers that can mean potential weed problems on land taken out of production. More weeds next year can mean more weed seeds and greater weed control costs in future years.

According to a weed science expert, growers should consider seeding clover or alfalfa on idle acres.

"The legumes can improve soil structure and help to control erosion. Plus a good stand of established clover or alfalfa can compete well with weeds," says Dr. Ellery Knake, professor of weed science at the University of Illinois.

Knake suggests using an herbicide to provide grass and some broadleaf control for the legumes early in the growing season.

"Treflan fits well with this program. At one-and-one-half pints per acre at a cost of about $4.50 per acre, it's the most cost-effective weed control option available," Knake says. "Some of the other herbicides can help with postemergence problems but the cost is generally higher."

Knake advises growers to follow the recommended application procedures on the product label for crop and soil types.

Planting set aside acres to clover or alfalfa and using a preplant herbicide to control weeds can also save on commercial fertilizer expenses for the next crop of corn, Knake adds.

"Commercial nitrogen averages about 20 cents per acre," Knake says. "The 60 to 80 pounds of nitrogen you get back from the legume with proper weed control can pay for the seed and chemical application."

If the acres are to be used for grazing, Knake advises consulting with the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for restrictions.

Knake concludes that this system is a cost-effective option to letting acres sit idle in the Acreage Conservation Reserve Program.

"It beats frequent mowing and can make your weed control much easier and cheaper in future years."

munity by going to extra high levels," he explained. Excess level can have detrimental effects.

Cryptosporidiosis

Cryptosporidiosis is a problem in Pennsylvania. It causes scours in calves from one week to three or four weeks of age. By itself, it is not very serious, Hutchinson explained. "But it does make them (calves) stand still," he said.

In the weakened growth stage the calves are susceptible to other, possibly fatal, diseases. A problem with the disease is that no treatment works, Hutchinson noted. Also, humans can contract the disease from working around infected animals.

Drug Restrictions

The federal government and consumer groups concerned about residues in milk and meat have have instituted tighter restrictions on residues in milk and meat, Hutchinson noted. He urged producers to test for antibiotics if they suspect a problem. "The risks are so great if you don't test, that it's worthwhile to take the precautions."

In Pennsylvania the Food and Drug Administration had tightened regulations concerning the sale of prescription drugs, Hutchinson noted. It is illegal to have prescription drugs unless a licensed veterinarian ordered the use of the drug, he added.

He speculated that more drugs would enter the prescribed list and be unavailable over the counter.

Profit Increases

Joseph Hlubik, Penn State extension dairy specialist, listed several items which dairymen can consider to improve profits on their farms.

"There is no one magic thing. Pay attention to many things not just one thing to increase profits," he advised.

Hlubik suggested looking at how other dairymen, competitors, are doing by looking at average numbers and then going beyond the numbers to see why the numbers differ on an individual basis. This provides the dairyman with an idea of why and where they are at in relation to their competitor.

"Increasing production per cow is an easier way to increase profits than increasing the number of cows," he commented.

He listed areas of profitability to consider for improvement: genetics, reproduction, nutrition and feeding, labor and crops.

Outlook

"The dairy business looks good right now," said Louis Moore, Penn State economist. The combination of a 3 percent reduction in production and a 3 percent increase in consumption last year has had a tremendous impact on the dairy situation. he added.

He predicted the dairy industry would continue to concentrate on a geographic basis. Lower return on capital investment and the constant price-cost squeeze battle would eliminate dairymen in the coming year.

The European Economic Community will spend $6 billion on dairy products in the next year. This organization has had quotas sinces 1984, Moore noted. "Quotas don't answer all the questions," he added.

March 10

The second day of Lancaster County Dairy Days will be held on March 10 at the Farm and Home Center from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Dr. Austin Belschner of the Cumberland Veterinary Clinic in Wisconsin will be the featured speaker. He will discuss how a complete reproductive program helped Wisconsin dairymen reduce days open, improve first service conception rates, reduce culling rates, and improve heat detection.

The agenda also includes presentations on manure, fly control, progesterone tests and housing options.

Last Call For Jersey Meeting

STRASBURG — Members of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club District 3 have finalized plans for the state-wide annual meeting of the breed organization.

Slated for March 27 and 28 at the Historic Strasburg Inn, Strasburg, the meeting will open Friday with a family-style dinner at 7 p.m. at a cost of $13 per person. Square dancing for the entire family follows the evening meal. Charles Wollaston will call the dance.

Farms in the area will open their gates for informal tours during the two-day meeting.

Saturday's meeting begins with the sale of 15 young animals at 10 a.m.

The annual meeting banquet follows the sale at a cost of $14 per person. Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County extension agent, will be the guest speaker. On the agenda are production and youth awards, the distinguished service award and the crowning of the Pennsylvania Jersey Queen.

Meal reservations will be accepted until March 20. Reservations should be mailed, with a check for the appropriate amount, to Roger Shaub, 62023 Street Rd., Kirkwood, PA 17536, or call 717-529-2066.

CONSISTENTLY OFFERS YOU A WINNING GAME PLAN

- The BIG 10 Blitz: BIG 10 gets off to a quick start producing higher yields in the long run. Tests run at Lake City, Michigan experiment station show that BIG 10's fast start was 25% better than all other varieties tested.
- Special Teams: Other key features of BIG 10 include a broad spectrum of multiple disease resistance, fineness of stem, high leaf to stem ratio and high crude protein content.
- A Strong Defense: BIG 10 provides a high level of resistance to bacterial wilt, phytopthora root rot, anthracnose, and fusarium, and it stands up to the harsh winters with a minimum of plant loss with its good winterhardiness.
- A High Scoring Offense: BIG 10's university test record attests to it's high tonnage and fast regrowth. In fact after achieving the world record yield of 10 tons per acre, two years in a row, BIG 10 continues to be at or near the top of every test it enters.

Alpheus Ruth Honored

problems and turns them into successess." Sollenberger noted that one of Ruth's greatest accomplishments was putting together the merger between Lehigh Valley and Inter-State to form Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

"Some etch their names in stone, some in wood, Alpheus has etched his name in the dairy industry," Sollenberger concluded.

Also on the program were Royce Seifert, general manager of Atlantic Processing; Robert Keller, vice president of Lehigh Valley Dairies; and Daniel Martin, vice president of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative.

Stout revealed that around the processing plant Ruth was known as "the great white father." Stout added, "He was concerned for people and tried to guide them. He was always supportive of the employees." The former general manager described Ruth as a open-minded, strong, determined, fair, conscientious, courteous friend.

"This is an honor but also a humbling experience. I think it's too much of an honor for one person," Ruth said in response to the accolades. He noted that he had the privilegé to work with many people during his tenure who attributed to his successes.

"I'm especially grateful for the scholarship you created," Ruth said. Although he noted his formal education ended in eighth grade, "I was determined I would not stop learning."

Comments from friends in the audience included, "He was a great leader. He deserved this tonight." "I never met a finer man."

Ruth will now pursue a career in real estate. "I've got to keep working with people," he explained.

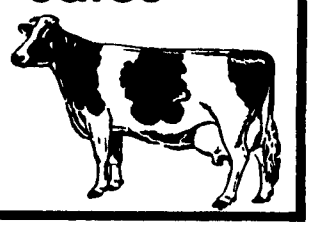
Major Dairy Sales And Dispersals Nationwide



Reports from three sales for the week of Feb. 18 to 24 had top prices of $9,600, $4,000 and $2,400. The sales were held in Virginia and Texas. Here is a brief look at the results of these sales

HOLSTEIN

The DANE COUNTY OPPORTUNITY SALE held in Wisconsin averaged $1,385 on 38 lots.

An 83-point, 3-year-old, Chairman daughter topped the sale with a bid of $3,050.

Just-fresh and producing 100 pounds of milk a day, she completed a first-calf lactation of 22,160 milk and 832 fat in 360 days.

Her dam, sired by Fond Honor produced a high record of 25,000 milk and 1,163 fat.

Sired by Trailblazer, the second high lot sold for $3,000. She is a bred heifer due to Valiant in May.

Her dam, VG-86, produced a top record of 23,000 milk and 732 fat. The next dam, GP-83, produced a top record over 27,000 milk and 1,000 fat.

Morris and Hoskens auctioneered the sale and the Dane County Holstein Club managed the sale. Pat O'Brien of the County Club noted the sale averaged $400 higher than the last sale held in October 1985. He credited the increase to the improved economic times in the area.

The SOUTH CAROLINA QUALITY HEIFER SALE averaged $918 on a total of 26 head. The 13 heifers averaged $838, six open yearlings averaged $945, and six bred heifers averaged $1,100.

An August 1986 calf topped the sale by selling for $1,400. She is a Rotate out of a Bell dam.

The second highest animal sold for $1,300. A bred heifer due mid-March with a Royalty calf, she was sired by Valiant. She owns a PTPI of 556.

Her dam, an 80-point Ruffin daughter, produced a record of 17,920 milk with a 3 percent test in 305 days.

Lee Ward, of the South Carolina Holstein Association, said over 200 people attended the sale held on a cold, wet, rainy day. He noted that seven inches of rain fell in the two days prior to the sale and the sale day. The average was down $100 from last year's average, but, he added the group of animals sold was also much younger than the previous sale.

Wendell Christopher served as auctioneer and the South Carolina Holstein Association managed the sale.

Heistand To Address Luzerne No-Till Meeting

WILKES-BARRE — Gerald Heistand will be featured as a main speaker for "Profitable Farming the No-Till Way," a workshop to be presented by Luzerne County Conservation District on Wednesday, March 11. The special seminar, scheduled for 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., will offer an overview of conservation tillage techniques and be held at Luzerne County Community College, Nanticoke, in the Educational Conference Center, Room 119.

Gerald Heistand

Heistand, currently employed as Chesapeake Bay specialist with the Lancaster County Conservation District, will discuss "Creating the Environment: Building and Maintaining the Corn Stand."

Heistand's prior work involved coordinating a no-till corn planter rental program. During that time he was responsible for the maintenance and scheduling of four no-till corn planter rental units; setting up several no-till demonstration plots; and planning of the Annual Lancaster County Conservation Tillage Conference.

The conservation tillage specialist also produced prime farmland maps and served as erosion and sediment control technician for several years. Presently, he is in charge of an assessment project to evaluate how each of the watersheds in Lancaster County contribute to Chesapeake Bay pollution.

In addition to a discussion of environmental conditions, the no-till program will review economics, weed control and spray technology. A slide show and discussion on the sodbuster-swampbuster provisions of the 1985 Food and Securities Act will follow.

Paula Valunas, manager for Luzerne County Conservation District, encourages farmers and other interested persons to contact her office for further information. Reservations for the no-till clinic can be made by calling 825-1703 or 735-8700. A $2 registration fee includes a variety of refreshments.

4-H Dairy Clubs Post Meeting Dates

LANCASTER — Youth who are interested in dairy cattle are invited to join one of four Lancaster County 4-H Dairy Clubs. The four clubs, their meeting times and meeting places, are listed below:

The Lancaster County 4-H Holstein Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday evening, March 10. The Ayrshire, Jersey, Brown Swiss Club will meet 7:30 p.m. on Monday, March 9. Both of these clubs are county-wide 4-H clubs and both of them will hold their first meeting in the basement meeting room of the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The 4-H Guernstein Club generally meets in the Willow Street area. Their first meeting will be at the home of Peter Witmer at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 10. The Witmer farm is located along Route #222 near Refton, first farm south of the Pequea Creek.

Future Of Ag To Be Discussed In Lancaster

LANCASTER — What is the future of agriculture in rural communities in southeastern Pennsylvania? This becomes a major concern in the southeast, where industry, business and residential development is occurring at a more rapid pace than anywhere in the Commonwealth.

A Future of Agriculture conference will be held at Lancaster County's Farm and Home Center on March 19 to address these concerns. This conference is one of five regional conferences being held in March as a followup to the statewide conference held in Harrisburg last year. The event is directed to those involved in production agriculture, agribusiness, industry and government, as well as anyone else with an interest in agriculture.

The Lancaster conference list of speakers includes Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, and Robert D. Spencer, executive vice president of Philadelphia National Bank. Serving as conference moderator will be James Huber, chairman of the Lancaster County Commissioners.

A registration fee of $6 is due by March 13. For more information contact Lancaster County Extension director Jay Irwin, 394-6851. Shown below is a schedule of the day's events.

Crop Disaster Payments Total $400 Million

BY MARTHA J. GEHRINGER

WASHINGTON — Nearly $400 million in crop disaster payments were distributed nationally at the end of last week, said a U.S. Department of Agriculture spokesman. Pennsylvania producers received $543,000 in disaster payments.

Payments were distributed in the form of Commodity Credit Corporation generic certificates to over 120,000 producers nationwide, said Ray Waggoner, spokesman for the UDSA.

The payments were for crop losses — in excess of 50 percent of the anticipated production — due to excessive heat, excessive moisture, hail or floods in eligible counties, Waggoner said. Eligible counties included counties designated disaster areas by the Farm and Home Administration and the contiguous counties.

Approximately 1,700 counties, or half of the agriculture counties nationally, in 39 states qualified, Waggoner said.

In Pennsylvania 15 counties qualified for disaster payments, according to Alarie Fleming, program specialist for the Pennsylvania Agricultural Stablization and Conservation. "These counties were mostly in the Southcentral portion of the state," he said.

Many producers in the counties did not apply or qualify. "There wasn't a substantial enough loss in most cases," Fleming explained.

In Lancaster County, one of the counties to receive disaster status, no one qualified for payments, said Ray Brubaker of the county ASCS office. Even though it was dry, sufficient rain fell in late summer to bring production to near normal levels, he explained.

Producers in York County received the largest payments in Pennsylvania, Fleming noted. While they qualified for $422,000 in total earnings, they will receive $312,000. "There was not enough money allocated to cover the total losses," Fleming said.

Payments were made at 74 cents on the dollar, Waggoner explained, or 73.9 percent of the total claims. Over 200,000 eligible claims nationally totaled $535 million. Funding for the program came via the 1986 Crop Disaster Payment Program. The program was enacted by Congressional approval on Oct. 18, 1986, he explained. Sign-ups for payments ended on Jan. 30, 1987.

Producers will be able to use the CCC certificates to pay CCC loans in part or full, Fleming explained. "Many end up selling the certificates...usually at a premium," he noted. Possible buyers for the certificates include feed mills who then use the certificates to buy grain from the CCC.

Payments were divided in to two categories — program and non-program crops — with some producers qualifying in both groups Each category had a payment limitation of losses up to $100,000, Waggoner noted.

Program crops included corn, grain sorghum, barley, oats, wheat and soybeans. Fleming listed non-program crops as every other cash crop such as hay, kidney beans and cantaloupes.

Maryland producers received approximately $1.9 million in payments, Waggoner said. Texas producers netted the largest portion of the allocation. Certificates going to those producers totalled $132 million.

Producers who were declared ineligible have the right to appeal the decision until March 9 at the county ASCS office, Fleming said.

Of the $400 million allocated for the program, the Federal ASCS kept $5 million for lawsuits, errors and other problems that may develop, Waggoner said.

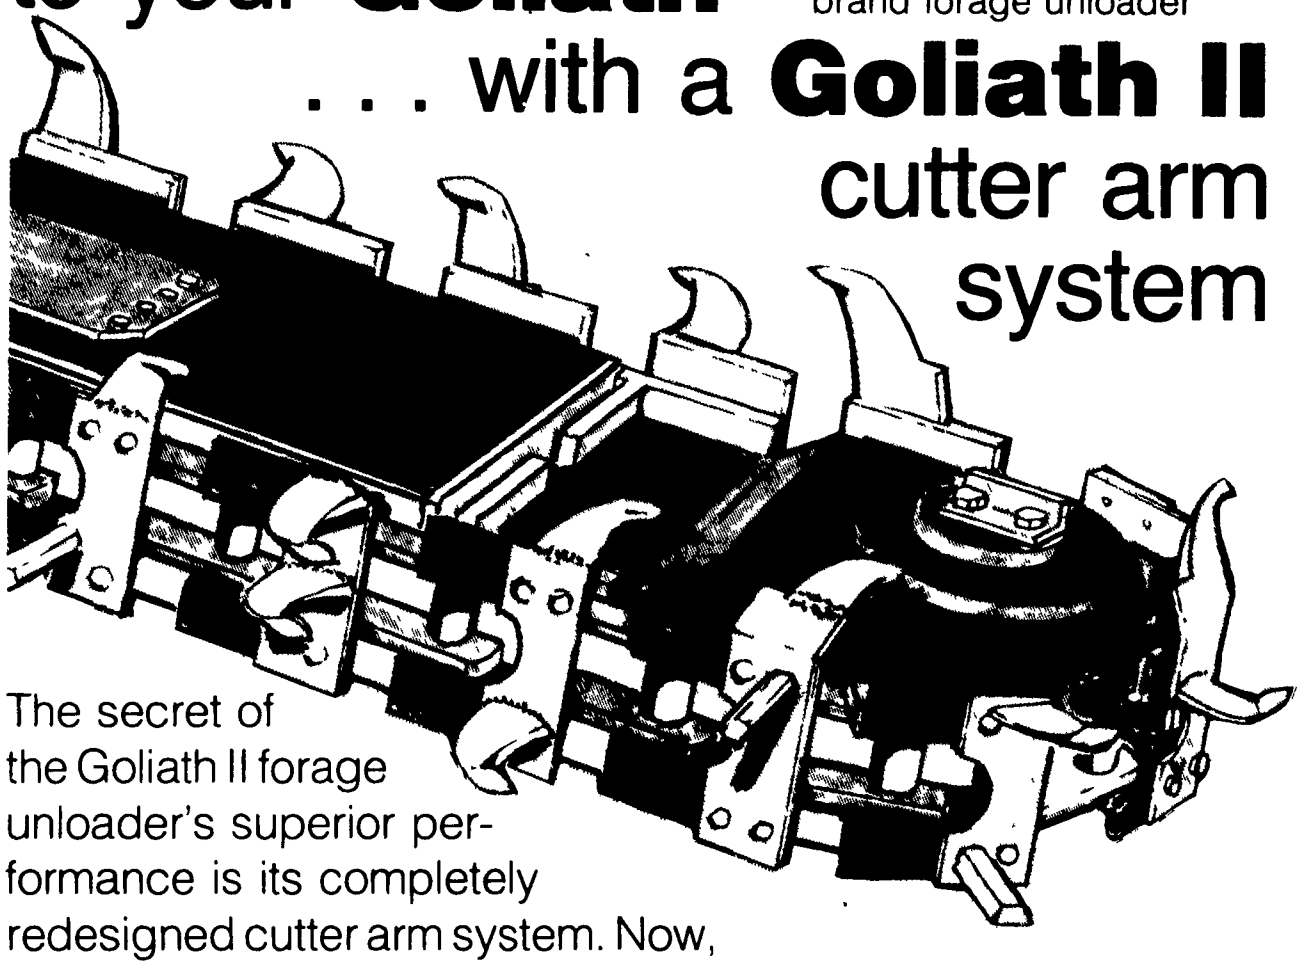
Give NEW STRENGTH

to your Goliath® brand forage unloader . . . with a Goliath II cutter arm system



The secret of the Goliath II forage unloader's superior performance is its completely redesigned cutter arm system. Now, you can upgrade your qualifying older model Goliath unloader, by adding a new Goliath II cutter arm system.*

The new cutter arm system features stronger chain sprockets with additional teeth for smoother action. It comes with the new Olympic™ brand cutter chain with bigger, more aggressive cutter hooks and stainless steel bushings that last. Thanks to these and other design improvements, you'll get faster forage unloading—even in hard spots and tough-to-handle feeds such as grass haylage.

If you've ever wished for faster, more efficient performance from your Goliath unloader . . . your wait is over. Call your authorized, independent Harvestore system dealer for details.

*Unloaders that are excessively worn and/or certain model Goliath unloaders may not be upgradable

Farm Woman Knits Homegrown Wool Into Best-Of-Show Jacket

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LIMEKILN — A hand-knit garment is always special, but a hand-knit garment made with wool from your own sheep is out of the ordinary.

It was such a hand-knit jacket that was recognized at the State Farm Women Convention during Farm Show as the Best of Show. Made completely by Ruth Hartman, the jacket was a beautiful piece of workmanship. Its uniqueness lies in the fact that she raised the sheep that produced the wool, cleaned it, spun it into yarn and then knitted it.

Ruth has been a member of Berks County Farm Women Society #6 for just the last two years, but she has become an active and avid member. When she heard about the state project, which was designed to showcase creative talents of Farm Women members, she decided to be a part of it. After a stop at the Berks County Convention, the jacket represented that county at Harrisburg.

The project was not easily accomplished. Once the decision was made to use her own wool, Ruth began looking at appropriate patterns. She wanted to make it two ply, and had to rip it apart twice before she decided to go with 17 needles for the knitting.

She recalls, "It hurts your arms. With my wool you can't knit tight because it gets so heavy." Indeed, the finished product is a jacket which offers warmth as well as beauty. The only wool not raised on Ruth's farm was a deeper color which was knit in for variation.

When the Best of Show announcement was made, Ruth admits, "I was shocked. I thought maybe I would get third, but when they passed third, second and first I figured I didn't get anything. My Society was very nice about it."

She said the garment was completed in about four days. "When you use big needles, it goes very fast."

Ruth lives on a small farm near the village of Limekiln and raises sheep, Sicilian donkeys and a pony. She and her husband moved there just seven years ago, but she says, "I always wanted animals. My husband says I am out in the barn more than I am in the house."

Corriedale are the sheep of Ruth's choice. "They have a nice temperament and a highly desirable fleece for spinning and weaving. Crimping in fleece is what makes it good." She said her ram, Bill, has six to seven inches of fleece, "all crimped." His fleece is of such consistent high quality that she hopes to enter it in fairs.

One advantage of Corriedale fleece is that it is very white. "Other breeds don't produce wool that gets white like that," Ruth explains.

When she first raised sheep, Ruth says she sold all the wool. "People were coming because they found out about the crimping."

To prepare a fleece for spinning, it must first be washed by hand with detergent. Then Ruth lays it in the sun to dry. She adds, "You get the vegetable matter out of the fleece by carding it." Now she prepares only the fleece she will use herself. "Spinners and weavers buy the others. I sell it by the pound," she explains.

She points out that she now has some of the fleeces cared for at Ewesful Spinning, a local business which washes and cards by machine. It was there that Ruth learned to spin, and she did the spinning for the wool in her winning jacket. She adds, "I don't have a wheel of my own. I can't get into spinning."

Despite her own lack of enthusiasm for the art of spinning, she says, "Spinning is getting to be a big thing. It is growing."

Her small flock of Corriedale sheep bring Ruth much pleasure. Here she spends some time with Puffin and Noel outside the small barn on her Berks County property.

This sweater was hand knit by Ruth Hartman, a member of Farm Women Society #6 in Berks county, and was selected as Best of Show at their state convention. Ruth raised the sheep which produced the wool, spun it and knitted it on 17 needles.

Ruth Hartman plays with two of her five Sicilian donkeys, Pacco, left, and Passo. The donkeys join a pony and a flock of sheep on her small farm near Limekiln in Berks County.

It is knitting that she loves, and Ruth says, "I mostly knit sweaters, but I've knitted afghans. I always knit for myself, but I don't end up wearing the garments."

She gave some advice on washing woolen clothing, saying, "You must be very careful. Always wash in cold water and you must block it." Referring to the prizewinning jacket, Ruth says, "I think I'll get this dry cleaned."

When Ruth got into the sheep business, her enterprise consisted of raising orphans from nearby Mill Acres Farm, where she was friends with the herdsman who is responsible for about 600 sheep. She recalls, "He called me about a lamb whose mother died and it was neglected. I raised it in the house on a bottle." Over the years she has lost just one ram, which was a twin. "All the rest I was able to save and keep."

Her soft heart has added to her flock in other ways. She has been moved by young 4-H'ers in tears when they need to sell their market lambs. After seeing one little girl in tears at the Oley Fair as her lamb was being auctioned, Ruth bought it, adding, "I paid awful for it. I can't tell you how many market lambs I have bought. I pity the kids. I usually end up giving them away." She gives them away, however, primarily because they are not Corriedales.

Because of her soft spot for children, she has since become a sheep 4-H leader, an activity she thoroughly enjoys. Often she will register her sheep in a 4-H'er's name, so they can show the animal. "I get the ribbons; they get the money," she explains.

Partly because of her strong belief in the value of 4-H, she is now a member of the Berks County 4-H Development Board. "I was just installed, and I find it very interesting."

A 4-H'er herself in fourth, fifth and sixth grades, she said it was through 4-H that she did projects in cooking, sewing and knitting. She attended a country school, and it was in fourth grade there that she learned to knit. "Then we moved to the city," she says with what sounds like a twinge of regret.

Corriedale sheep produce a highly prized fleece, which is why Ruth enjoys raising them. Here she shows off two of her fleeces which she is keeping for her own knitting. The crimping which characterizes the Corriedale fleece distinguishes it from other breeds of sheep.

Working with young people is not new for Ruth — she was a health and physical education teacher until her retirement three years ago. However, she says, "I missed the kids so much I decided to substitute. I love it." Almost all her substituting is done at Reading High School.

In addition to teaching, Ruth is a softball coach for the Reading High girls softball team, a team which "is usually good enough to be in the state playoffs. We've been district champs several times."

Ruth says, "I love coaching. I try to get a lot of my kids into big schools. I have a lot at Rutgers, Temple and Penn State." Playing softball is a natural for Ruth, who played professional softball in Fort Wayne, Ind. and played in the Reading area for 17 years. While girls' softball is still strong, she observed that slow pitch seems to be growing for men.

She has also coached the Reading High swimming team, volleyball and track.

The lovely garment that won recognition for Ruth will continue to give her much satisfaction. But the most deeply satisfying part is continuing to raise her beloved sheep, watching them thrive and enjoying the beautiful fleeces they produce.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

When it all began, I don't rightly recall.

It's a mysterious malady, the germs lying dormant for varying lengths of time, then suddenly erupting at the most unlikely and inopportune moments. Symptoms range from elevated blood pressure to extreme fatigue to emotional swings, especially toward frustration and aggravation.

Not penicillin, nor any of the "mycins" (terramycin, neomycin), nor sulfa, not even plain old aspirin, has the slightest curative effect. Even the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta can't get a handle on this toughie.

Around here, we whisper about this affliction. The Great Household Appliance Plague. Highly contagious, it's rumored to be.

The latest sweep of this lingering illness goes back to the onset of the flu season — last fall. That's when the dishwasher first started ailing, retaining water and leaving the semi-clean contents in a sweat. Adequate sloshing was followed by inadequate pump out. Still, with a bit of patience and extra button pushing, the thing remained usable.

Then the lethal bacteria slipped to the basement, and infected the washing machine. It seems to work just like the chicken pox currently sweeping through families in our neighborhood: the seriousness and numbers of red spots doubled with each successive kid catching it.

No problem, proclaimed the wise appliance healer who came through the door bearing a black bag of operating tools and proceeded to perform surgery on the faithful dishwasher. Plus, we got cosmetic surgery to boot. He demonstrated how running a cup of powdered orange breakfast drink (honest!) through the wash cycle removes the ugly dark mineral buildup from our hard water that discolored the interior. Strange medicine — but it works.

Alas and alack, however, for the washing machine. After prefunctory exam with stethoscope, scalpel and screwdriver, the affliction was deemed terminal. Unfortunately, the cure resulted in an emaciated checkbook balance, side effect of a trip to purchase a new washing machine. Mud and manure caked barn jeans simply don't come clean by beating them on a rock in the creek. Thank goodness.

No sooner had the household budget damages from that appliance health crisis started to mend than the vacuum cleaner carpet attachment died of cardiac arrest. There had been plenty of warnings, and restorative belt and motor CPR administered by the farmer had delayed the inevitable by many months. While the main motor is still operable, cleaning a living room carpet with a 6-inch-wide upholstery attachment is just not very efficient.

That was still minor, compared to the severity of the next hit by the appliance plague.

"Mom," came an ominous-sounding voice early in the morning over a hotel phone, where we were away overnight attending a dairy meeting. "I think the pump just broke."

The pump moves the entire supply of water on the farm. Until restored, repaired or replaced, there would be no drinking water for cattle, no dairy cleanup water, no washing, no anything if it had to do with water. Instant, total, mechanically-induced farmstead drought.

A pump paramedic responded soon after their frantic call. His skilled emergency surgery restarted the lost circulation, lowered the high motor fever, and restored the pump into its prime of life. And, once again, the lifeblood, er, water, of the farm flowed freely.

Each day I shudder, and glance furtively at the appliances for signs of failing health. No insurance company around seems interested in writing health and life policies for household appliances. But, perhaps with research, some bright young technological whiz out there could someday develop a vaccine.

I'll fight to be at the head of the line when the first Household Appliance Plague immunization clinic opens its doors.

Barefoot Treadlers Plan 1987 Events

In March, the Barefoot Treadlers will have a combined meeting with the Lancaster Guild. The meeting will feature Joy Girard, who will discuss tailoring and finishing hand woven items. Before and after the speaker, members will have a "swap meet" and show and tell.

Non-guild members interested in attending the combined meeting should contact John Zerphey at 533-1719 or 653-4064 for more information.

In February, the guild met in the Agway Building in Lebanon. During the meeting, the group prepared their calendar for 1987. The group will offer several events, speakers and demonstrations every month.

In April, the Barefoot Treadlers will host a sheep shearing course and a beginning spinning workshop in addition to their regular meetings.

The Barefoot Treadlers Spring Show will be held May 15 and 16. The public is invited to the show to view member's handiwork. The show will also offer weaving and spinning demonstrations and displays of finished garments. Show coordinators are Barb Hehnley, Myerstown, and Diane Dilger, Lebanon.

Franklin 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club

Members of the Franklin County 4-H Seeing Eye Puppy Club met Feb. 23 at the Franklin County Extension Building in Chambersburg.

On Feb. 10, club members walked their puppies through the Chambersburg Mall to help them become accustomed to entering stores. They were welcomed into several stores.

Club members met Jan. 26 to elect the following officers: Kelly Boyd, president; Chris Richards, secretary; and Dan LaBonte, news reporter.

The club meets the last Monday of each month at 7:30 p.m. New members from the Franklin County area are welcome to attend. For further information, contact Donna Boyd at 264-9192 or the Extension office at 263-9226.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

The other day, while the snow still lay on the ground, I walked up our lane to a summer cottage that we have for sale.

I took a snow shovel along as I intended to take the snow off of the top deck. Before I started I took a few minutes to appreciate the view from this high vantage point. Across the river lay several Amish farms and far beyond them a new development with houses on the side of a hill.

A downy woodpecker was working on some tall weeds nearby and two squirrels chased each other in the beech trees that surround the cottage. Shoveling the snow and throwing it from this great height into the Conestoga River was a new experience. I'd never shoveled into the river before and I was surprised that it did not melt immediately.

After I was finished I made a snowball and threw it against a tree. Noticing the quality of the snow, I decided it would make a great snowman, so I rolled three balls and used sticks for his arms and face.

This was an unusual undertaking for me, so I walked home to get my camera to take his picture. On the way back, I took a picture of our 15 big, white geese as they paraded to our corn crib to fill themselves. I also took a photo of our homestead as one of our sons wants to have a picture painted of the farm.

Before I went in the house to prepare supper, I dragged several very large limbs from a pine tree near my garden. The weight of the heavy snow has broken off many limbs this winter. Other folks are anxious for the snow to melt but I am not.

Red Lion Grange To Celebrate

RED LION — The honoring of long-time members will highlight the 68th anniversary meeting of Red Lion Grange #1781, beginning at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, March 7, at the Grange Hall.

Receiving recognition for 55 years as a grange member is W. Russell Hoover. Awards for 50-year memberships will go to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, Naomi Bupp, Helen Sweitzer, Emerson Knaper and J. Edward Lanius. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Runkle are members for 25 years.

State Grange Master, Charles Wismer is the guest speaker for the anniversary program, with musical entertainment provided by the Southern York County Male Chorus.

For Nutritious Stir-Fry Entrees, Combine Lean Meats, Garden-Fresh Vegetables

If a variety of vegetables are an important part of your diet — and they should be — you've probably already discovered the technique of stir-frying. Most often, stir-fry dishes call for several fresh vegetables combined with thinly sliced pieces of lean meat.

With a few simple spices and flavorings added, the combination becomes irresistible. Some of the most common vegetables to lend their color and flavor to stir-fry recipes are broccoli, water chestnuts, carrots, onions, green peppers and mushrooms.

Lean meats such as chicken, beef and pork, cut into thin slices while still partially frozen, are added as is, or are marinated in flavorful sauces.

The meat is browned quickly in a very hot pan (no-stick surfaces are a bonus) and vegetables are added later and cooked to tender-crisp perfection. Served alone, or with rice or pasta, these main dish delights will add endless variety and nutrition to your diet!

SWEET 'N SOUR BROCCOLI CHICKEN

1 bunch broccoli
2 whole chicken breasts, boned and skinned
1 egg
1 teaspoon salt
Vegetable oil
1 8-ounce can chunk pineapple in juice
⅓ cup brown sugar, packed
⅓ cup catsup
¼ cup white vinegar
1 8-ounce can water chestnuts, drained and sliced
½ yellow onion, cut in ½-inch cubes, parboiled
½ red bell pepper, cut in ½-inch cubes
½ green bell pepper, cut in ½-inch cubes

Cut broccoli into flowerets, rinse and drain. Cut chicken into 2-inch pieces. Combine 6 tablespoons cornstarch, egg and salt. Add chicken pieces and mix well to coat. In wok or large skillet, heat 2 cups oil to 375°F. Fry chicken (adding one piece at a time) until crispy, about 3 minutes. Remove. Stir-fry broccoli in 3 tablespoons hot oil for 1 minute. Cover, steam 2 minutes. Remove. Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add enough water to juice to make 1½ cups liquid. Add to wok with brown sugar, catsup, vinegar and 3 teaspoons cornstarch. Stir and cook until thickened. Add broccoli, chicken, pineapple, water chestnuts, onion and bell peppers just before serving. Stir and cook to warm through. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

ZUCCHINI AND TOMATO STIR-FRY WITH HERBS

⅓ cup sweet cream butter
½ to 1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sweet basil leaves
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
½ cup green pepper strips
2 medium zucchini, sliced thin
1 onion (sweet or Bermuda), sliced thin
1 cup seasoned stuffing mix
4 tomatoes, cut into 8 wedges each, or 1 cup cherry tomatoes
2 teaspoons sugar

In heavy 10-inch skillet, melt butter; add seasonings. Saute green pepper and sliced onion uncovered over medium heat until crisply tender. Add sliced zucchini, cooking until almost tender. Add stuffing; toss. Add tomatoes and sugar. Toss gently. Cover; and continue cooking until tomatoes are hot, yet firm. Serves 6.

GINGERED VEGETABLE STIR-FRY

1 tablespoon salad oil
1 cup broccoli flowerets
½ cup diagonally sliced carrots
¼ cup sliced green onion
1 medium clove garlic, minced
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
½ cup sliced mushrooms
1 10¾-ounce can chicken with noodles soup
½ teaspoon sugar

In 10-inch skillet over medium-high heat, in hot oil, cook broccoli, carrots and onion with garlic and ginger, stirring quickly and frequently (stir-frying) until vegetables are tender-crisp, about 2 minutes.

Add mushrooms. Stir-fry 1 minute more.

Add soup and sugar. Heat thoroughly, stirring occasionally. Makes 3½ cups or 4 servings.

STARTERS' STIR-FRY

1 tablespoon oil
1 medium green pepper, cut into thin strips
½ pound boneless sirloin steak or boneless chicken breasts, cut into thin strips
1 8-ounce can whole water chestnuts, drained and sliced
2 envelopes onion cup-a-soup
2 teaspoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon ground ginger
½ cup water
Hot cooked rice

In large skillet or wok, heat oil and cook green pepper 1 minute. Add beef and cook, stirring frequently, 2 minutes. Add water chestnuts and instant onion soup mix, sugar, cornstarch and ginger blended with water. Cook, stirring frequently, 1 minute or until sauce is thickened. Serve with hot rice. Makes 2 servings.

STIR-FRY CHINESE LAMB

1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 pound lean lamb leg, cut into ½x2-inch strips
4 tablespoons cooking oil
1 clove garlic, minced
½ teaspoon ground ginger
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
1 cup sliced green onions and tops
⅓ cup diced celery
1 5-ounce can sliced water chestnuts
1½ cups bean sprouts
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
¼ cup chicken bouillon

Combine cornstarch and soy sauce in one-quart bowl. Add lamb and mix until lamb is thoroughly coated. Place wok on high heat or set electric skillet at 450°F. Add 2 tablespoons oil. Add lamb and stir-fry until brown on all sides. Add remaining 2 tablespoons of oil and reheat. Add remaining ingredients except bouillon. Stir-fry for 3 minutes. Add bouillon. Cover and steam a few minutes. Preparation time is 35 minutes, cooking time 18 minutes. Serves 4.

STIR-FRY CHICKEN AND VEGETABLES

8 broiler-fryer chicken thighs, skinned and boned
2 tablespoons cooking oil
2 carrots, thinly sliced
2 ribs celery, diagonally sliced
1 medium onion, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
1 tablespoon brown gravy sauce
2 tablespoons soy sauce
¼ cup chicken broth
1 16-ounce can bean sprouts, drained
1 cup cooked rice

Freeze chicken thighs slightly to make cutting easier. Cut chicken into bite-size pieces. In large frypan, place oil and heat to medium high temperature. Add chicken and stir fry about 3 minutes or until chicken loses pink color. Add carrots, then celery and onions, continuing to stir throughout entire cooking process, about 5 minutes. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; add brown gravy sauce and soy sauce. Pour chicken broth over contents in frypan. When liquid begins to boil, add bean sprouts and rice. Heat about 2 minutes or until thoroughly heated (vegetables should remain crisp; be careful not to overcook). Makes 4 servings.

STIR-FRIED PORK WITH MANDARIN ORANGES

1 pound boneless pork
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon grated orange peel
½ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 teaspoon grated ginger root or ground ginger
2 cups fresh pea pods or 1 6-ounce package frozen pea pods, thawed
1 11-ounce can mandarin orange sections, drained

Partially freeze pork, slice thinly into bite-size strips. In a small bowl, blend soy sauce into cornstarch; stir in orange peel and orange juice. Set aside.

Preheat a wok or large skillet over high heat; add cooking oil. Stir-fry gingerroot in hot oil 30 seconds. Add pea pods; stir-fry 2 minutes for fresh pea pods or 1 minute for thawed frozen pea pods. Remove pea pods. (Add more oil, if necessary.) Add half of the pork to hot wok or skillet; stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from wok. Stir-fry remaining pork 2 to 3 minutes. Return all pork to wok or skillet. Stir soy sauce mixture and stir into pork. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Stir in pea pods; cover and cook 1 minute more. Remove from heat; stir in drained oranges. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR PORK

1½ pounds lean pork shoulder cut into 2x½-inch strips
1 large can pineapple chunks
¼ cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup green pepper, small chunks or strips
¼ cup thinly sliced onion rings

Brown pork slowly in 2 tablespoons hot fat. Add ¼ cup water; cover and simmer about 1 hour. Drain pineapple. Combine brown sugar and cornstarch; add pineapple juice, vinegar, soy sauce and salt. Cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly. Pour over hot cooked pork; let stand 10 minutes. Add pineapple, green pepper and onion. Cook 2 to 3 minutes. Serve over rice.

Mrs. Kitty Wagner
Elizabethtown

RED PEPPER SPICED PORK

1 fresh pineapple
1 pound boneless pork loin, cubed
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 yellow onion, sliced
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 tablespoon minced ginger root
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup chicken broth
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 red bell pepper, julienne-cut
Hot cooked noodles

Cut pineapple in half lengthwise

Planning and preparing nutritious meals is important year round, but during March, designated National Nutrition Month, it is paramount.

For those who have been advised to be extra careful with their diet due to health problems creating nutritious meals that are also appealing can be a challenge. To help homemakers meet that challenge, the American Heart Association has published a cookbook featuring low-sodium, low-cholesterol recipes.

While heart patients on restricted diets are compelled to lower their intake of these substances, the population at large also benefits from following the Association's dietary guidelines. The recipe below is just one of many delightful recipes featured in the book.

For more information on cooking for a healthy heart, (and more recipes) turn to the story in this section.

Baked Cod

1 pound cod fillet, cut in 2-square-inch pieces
4 medium potatoes, peeled and quartered
4 medium carrots, scraped and cut into 2-inch pieces
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon margarine
Freshly ground black pepper
½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese (made from partially skimmed milk)
1 to 2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Slightly grease a 13x9-inch baking dish. Put fish pieces into the dish and sprinkle with lemon juice. Place carrots and potatoes between pieces, and place dabs of margarine and pieces of potato over fish. Season with pepper.

Sprinkle cheese over all; cover and bake at 375°F. for 40 minutes. Serve garnished with chopped parsley. Makes 4 servings; approximately 330 calories per serving.

Even at 3300 rpm, there's no spilled milk to cry over

A vibrating engine can do more than make a milky mess. It can punish your ears, Torture tractor parts. And transfer the shakes to you. John Deere 100 Series Tractor engines do none of the above. In fact, they'll hardly ripple a goblet of milk. At full throttle with mower engaged, our single-cylinder 17-hp 180 runs smoother than the 2-cylinder engine a competitor brags about.

And most of ours feature overhead valves for more power and fuel efficiency. And pressurized lubrication for cool-running durability.

John Deere 100 Series Tractors are more than smooth-running 9- to 17-hp engines. They're sleek, thoughtfully designed tractors. With 5-speed gear or hydrostatic drive. Plus 30-, 38- or 46-inch mowers. See us today for a smooth-running 100 Series Tractor. Then have yourself a milk shake on the competition.

CORRECTION: Last week's Cook's Question Corner contained a recipe for zucchini relish from Mrs. Mary Benner of Thompsontown. The recipe contained an error and the corrected version of the recipe appears below. The recipe, as published last week, called for 2½ cups white sugar. It should have read 2½ cups white vinegar.

Zucchini Relish

10 cups zucchini
4 cups onions
2 large peppers

1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon tumeric
1 teaspoon celery seed
1 teaspoon dry mustard
5 cups sugar
2½ cups white vinegar

Cook to a boil, then add above mixture and let boil again 15 minutes. Jar while hot.

ANSWER - Mrs. Martha King, Kinzer, requested a recipe for chili soup. Thanks go to Sylvia Martin, Manheim, and Cindy Brackbill, Middletown, for the following recipes.

Chili Soup

2 pounds hamburger
1 large onion, chopped
1 cup diced celery
2 teaspoons salt
2 cans red kidney beans
1 quart canned tomatoes
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup brown sugar
½ to 1 teaspoon chili powder

Fry first 4 ingredients in pan until meat is browned. Drain. Pour into large kettle or crock pot and add remaining ingredients. Simmer for 1 hour. Note: We sometimes add diced potatoes.

Chili Soup

3 pounds hamburger
2 medium onions
2 cups kidney beans
4 cups tomato juice
½ cup sugar
3 tablespoons chili powder
6 tablespoons Heinz 57 sauce
2 cans cream of mushroom soup
Salt and pepper to taste

Fry hamburger and onions. Add remaining ingredients and simmer 1 hour or more.

through crown. Remove fruit; core and dice. Refrigerate half for another use. Brown pork in oil. Stir in onion, garlic and ginger root until soft. Season with salt and pepper. Stir in chicken broth and pineapple. Cover, simmer 15 minutes. Combine small amount of pan juices with cornstarch. Pour back into pan along with red pepper. Cook until sauce thickens and pepper is tender-crisp. Serve with noodles. Makes 4 servings.

STIR-FRY BEEF AND VEGETABLES

2 tablespoons oil
1 pound boneless round tip steak, cut on the diagonal thinly
4 cups combined vegetables, such as broccoli, onion and green pepper
1 clove garlic, minced

Sauce:

½ teaspoon ground ginger
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons soy sauce
½ cup beef broth
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon sugar

Combine all sauce ingredients in a bowl. Quickly saute vegetables in 1 tablespoon of oil until tender crisp (about 3 to 4 minutes). Stir constantly. Reserve on platter. Stir fry beef in the other 1 tablespoon of oil until no longer red. Stir constantly.

Add vegetables back into pan with the beef. Pour the sauce ingredients over all. Stir until well coated. Serve immediately over almond rice.

Recipe Contest

LEESPORT – Area cooks have a chance to cash in on their best beef recipe this spring by entering the Beef Cookoff sponsored by the Berks County Cattlemen's Association. According to contest chairman Sheila Miller, the winner of this year's county contest could win almost $200 in prizes.

"The Berks County Cattlemen will pay $65 for the first-place recipe," explained Miller. "This winning beef dish will then be eligible to compete in the state Beef Cookoff, where a top prize of $125 will be awarded."

Miller urged anyone with an interest in entering the contest to contact the Berks County Extension office for an entry brochure explaining the contest rules. Brochures should be requested from Clyde Myers, county agent, 215-378-1327.

"It's really fairly simple to throw your favorite recipe into the ring for consideration," Miller added. "The recipe must use a minimum of one pound and not more than five pounds of beef. No other meat can be used in combination or substitution. And the total preparation time cannot exceed four hours, excluding marinating time if called for in the recipe.

"Recipes, which must be for conventional cooking, not outdoor or microwave cookery, must be received by April 10, 1987. If two people send in the same recipe, the one with the earliest postmark will be considered. And, only one recipe per person will be accepted."

Miller noted that three top recipes will be selected and the contestants will be required to prepare these beef dishes on Friday, April 24, 1987, beginning at 1 p.m. at the Berks Vo-Tech West. The finalists will be judged by Carmen Paone, agriculture editor of the Reading Eagle, and Fay Stricker, Berks County home economist. All three finalists will receive cash awards: first place, $65; second place, $45; and third place, $30.

"The winner of the Berks Beef Cookoff will be part of the Penn Square Farm-City Day to be held Thursday, Aug. 6, in Reading," Miller added. "The first-place winner will be asked to prepare samples of their recipe which will be served up at the Berks County Cattlemen's Association display. We want everyone to have the opportunity to sample and savor Berks beef at its best."

Recipes must be submitted with an official entry blank and sent to: BERKS BEEF COOKOFF, c/o Sheila Miller, R.D. 1, Box 325, Womelsdorf, PA 19567.

Busy Sky Highways Plagued With Bottlenecks, Detours

LEESBURG, Va. – "Delta 429, proceed direct Pulaski on course. Continental 615, climb and maintain flight level 310 (31,000 feet). American 946, increase your descent. USAir 410, contact Washington Center now."

It's the start of afternoon rush hour in some of the nation's busiest airways.

The crisp commands from a controller at the Washington Air Route Traffic Control Center near Leesburg are part of the nationwide system that keeps planes from flying into one another while in the most heavily traveled airways in the world — the skies over the conterminous 48 states.

1986 Marks New High

The 20 federal air route control centers responsible for the safe flow of traffic together logged a record 33.6 million flights in 1986. The four busiest centers, Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, and Washington, each handled more than 2 million.

A complicated network of invisible highways and superhighways is suspended in midair — complete with aerial equivalents of underpasses, overpasses, access lanes, dangerous intersections, bottlenecks, detours, and morning and evening rush hours.

Unlike highways on the ground, airways are three-dimensional and multilayered, stacked one on top of the other up to 45,000 feet. Above that altitude, only the Concorde, special military aircraft, and spy planes routinely fly.

More than 330,000 nautical miles of controlled airways crisscross the skies as part of the National Airspace System. The Federal Aviation Administration has divided them into nearly 900 numbered routes.

Are we running out of airspace? "No, it's a big sky up there," says Charles R. Reavis, manager of Washington Center. "But there are times during the day when the system is taxed in places." In Washington Center airspace, which extends from northern New Jersey to South Carolina, about 60 percent of the traffic funnels through the airways between 2 p.m. and 7 p.m., Monday through Friday.

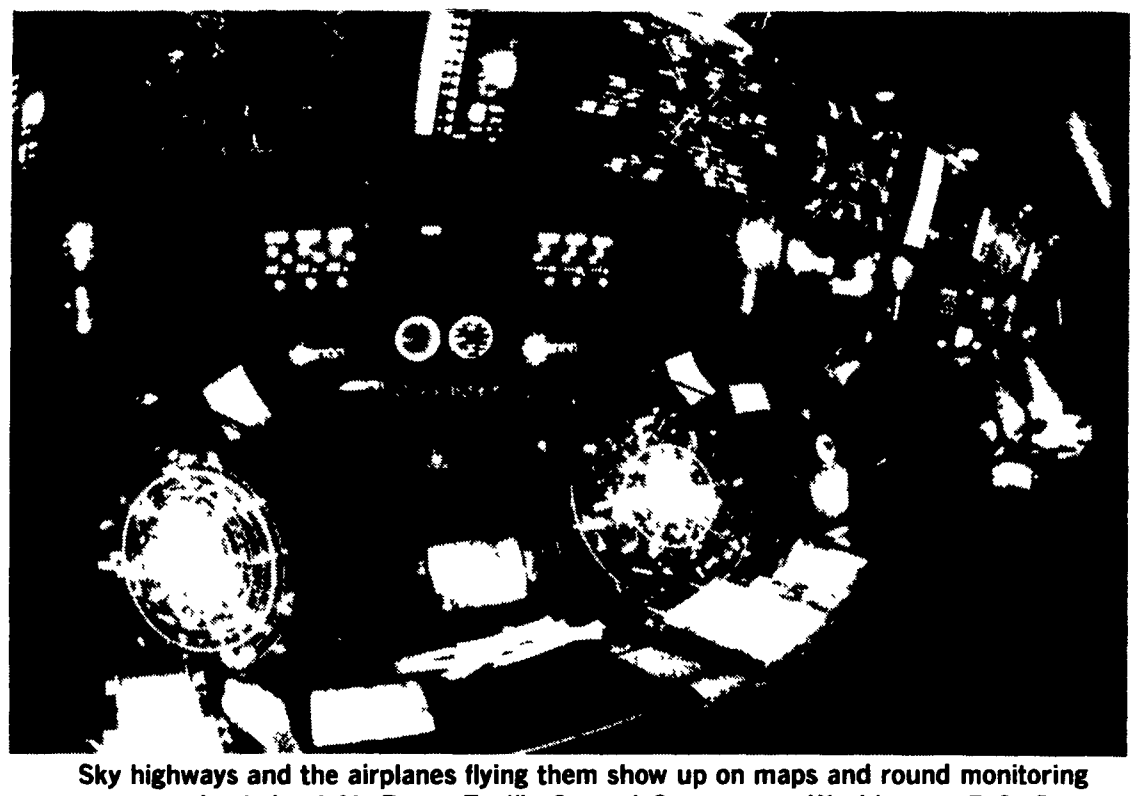
Sky highways are officially 8 miles wide, and planes are supposed to fly straight down the "centerline," or as close to it as possible.

Airways are split into low-altitude victor (V) routes, below 18,000 feet, and high-altitude jet (J) routes, both with their own sets of maps and rules of the road.

Non-commercial pilots flying low-altitude routes, for instance, are not required to file flight plans and frequently fly under visual flight rules: "see and avoid" other aircraft. At high altitudes, all aircraft fly under instrument flight rules, requiring an approved flight plan and en route radar control by the 20 FAA centers.

Casanova Comes First

Airline jets taking off from Washington and Baltimore airports — heading west or southwest — must first fly over Casanova, Va., and then head out J42 to Dallas, or turn left onto J48 for Atlanta, or bear right to J149 for Chicago.



Sky highways and the airplanes flying them show up on maps and round monitoring screens at the federal Air Route Traffic Control Center near Washington, D.C. Controllers at 20 such centers throughout the contiguous United States are responsible for the safe flow of traffic in the nation's airways. Together they handled a record 33.6 million flights in 1986. The 330,000 nautical miles of U.S. airways are the busiest in the world.

Casanova is a "fix point," along with Pulaski, Va., and more than 1,000 other VORTAC (visual omnidirectional range tactical) stations throughout the country. These ground-based radio navigation aids signal pilots and their traffic controllers with the precise position of the plane. Air routes run from VORTAC to VORTAC, and planes fly from one station to the next, unless cleared by the controller to bypass when traffic is light.

To keep aircraft safely separated while in the airways, the FAA requires them to stay at least five miles apart — fore and aft, wing tip to wing tip. At jet speed, five miles is just seconds of flying time.

Aircraft flying below 29,000 feet must be 1,000 feet apart vertically; up where the air is thinner, above 29,000 feet, a minimum of 2,000 feet is considered safe.

To avoid head-on midair collisions, eastbound planes fly at even altitudes (22,000 feet, for example); those heading west fly at odd altitudes. But, above 29,000 feet, they fly only at alternating odd altitudes.

The two biggest influences on the airways in the last decade have been the 1978 deregulation of the airlines and the 1981 air traffic controllers strike.

With more planes in the sky and fewer controllers, aircraft are being kept farther apart than the minimum five miles, often 10 to 20 miles, sometimes as much as 40 miles. The airline industry is pressuring the FAA to reduce these "in-trail" restrictions and move more planes more speedily through the airways.

Safer Waiting On Ground

For safety's sake since the strike, The FAA also has stopped airborne holding. Instead it has put the "bumper-to-bumper" traffic on the ground, waiting at airports.

"If there's bad fog in New York, we'll hold a transcontinental flight

Have You Heard?

Impulse Purchases May Ruin Budget

Shopping at the supermarket requires more — not less — skill than it did a decade ago.

The corner grocery store of past years with its limited stock has long disappeared. Today you make your choices in a serve-yourself-store that may carry 15,000 to 20,000 food and nonfood items.

With such an array of merchandise, with most items sporting ever higher prices, do you find that you often come home with more than you planned to buy? If so, you could be an impulse shopper, lured to the attractive, colorful, well-designed displays or packages that prompt you to buy, whether you need to or not.

National surveys show that many purchases made inside America's stores are impulse decisions. High on the list of these unplanned purchases are candy, gum, snacks, books, magazines and toys. Close behind are first aid and beauty supplies, slippers, sneakers, plants, pots and kitchen utensils.

A large outlay for these and similar items will throw the most careful "food" shopping list out of kilter.

When you reach for these non-food items in the grocery store, consider your need, your budget, the item's quality, and whether the item is worth the price.

Make a careful list of the foods you need to buy before you go to the store. Follow it through if at all possible. Keep in mind that not all in-store decisions are spur-of-the-moment purchases. You need to be flexible in order to take advantage of unadvertised specials, seasonal foods and special buys.

Money Matters Mean Management

If all your money seems to be spent before you get it, maybe it is because you are thinking of money as an end rather than a means. Managing money doesn't come naturally.

May I suggest that you look at why you spend your money, not just how, if you really want to take control of your spending. Spending plans often overlook the most important factors that have shaped a person's spending habits. These are learned behaviors and many forces affect the use of money including emotions, values, skills and advertising.

When a family begins to work out a financial plan, it helps to realize that money means different things to different people. This can make the hard decisions a little easier to work out and provide a framework to resolve differences.

Looking at what money means may seem somewhat strange at first, but understanding the whys often leads to better family relations. For example, I know of a young couple where the husband was trying to control his wife by withholding money and controlling the family finances. His wife retaliated by going on shopping sprees. However, once the couple began discussing their "two money personalities" they were able to work out a spending plan that took into account their different values.

What the couple began doing was looking at their income as a resource subject to the principles and concepts of management. Remember, there's more to money than just spending it. Management includes planning, spending, adjusting, and evaluating.

Planning involves more than just discussion. It means being as informed as possible by reading and considering effects of various strategies.

Successful money management means mediating differences with "fair fight rules." Open and free planning is the first essential step to coping with the realities of sharing and spending together.

'Horsemen's Hoedown' To Benefit 4-H

TIMONIUM, Md. — The Maryland 4-H Foundation will sponsor a 'Happy Horsemen's Hoedown' Friday, March 13 in the Exhibition Hall at the State Fairgrounds in Timonium. The event, slated to begin at 7 p.m., will benefit the Maryland 4-H horse and pony program.

The Hoedown will feature casino gambling, simulated races, open pit barbecue, country music, dancing to the Stardells and entertainment by "The New Beginning," a nationally recognized Maryland 4-H singing group.

An auction to benefit the 4-H program will feature goose and turkey hunting trips, horse equipment and sporting art. "Pecos," a registered international miniature stallion will be raffled.

The event is co-sponsored by the Maryland Horse Breeders Association and WCAO Radio 60. For tickets, contact the MHBA at 301-252-2100. Tickets cost $25 and checks are payable to the Maryland 4-H Foundation.

on the ground in Los Angeles. If New York can land only 20 planes an hour, we'll make sure only 20 get there," says James H. Loos, FAA technical adviser for air traffic.

Such decisions are made by Central Flow Control at FAA headquarters, which monitors airways nationwide and has taken a more active role since the strike.

To open up congested East Coast coastal airways, where traffic is the heaviest in the nation, the FAA added some new routings in early 1987.

"On the ground, it would be like putting parallel interstates along the New Jersey Turnpike from New York to Washington," Reavis says. "There was only one jet route in the Shenandoah Valley, above Interstate 81. Now there are three."

Farm Women Societies

Lancaster Society 5

Members of Lancaster Society 5 met Feb. 28 at the home Mrs. Hostetter in East Petersburg.

Twenty-five members participated in a sing-a-long.

Convention reports, delayed when the January meeting was cancelled, were given,

Lancaster Society 6

Members of Lancaster Society 6 met in February at the home of Mary Lee Spangler. The group read I Corinthians 13 from the Living Bible for devotions.

Susan Haldeman of Manheim provided the program. She came as neighbor "Vilma" and helped members reminisce about the way things used to be, especially Monday washday.

Sara Myer and Muriel Saylor reported on the state convention.

Lancaster Society 11

Members of Lancaster Society 11 met Feb. 26 in the home of Edna Champney. Betty Geiger led devotions.

Benny Kreider sang old-time favorites and recited several inspirational poems.

Fifteen members responded to roll call by giving a bible verse containing the word love.

During the business meeting, members offered four suggestions for the county project. Members will vote on the options at the March meeting.

Society 13 will entertain Society 11 March 14 at the Farm and Home Center for lunch at 1 p.m.

Reservations for the Spring Rally will be taken at the March meeting, which will be held March 26 at the home of Mary Nolt, 931 Virginia Ave., Lancaster.

Berks Group 11

Berks Group 11 met in February at the home of Fran Dubble.

New officers were elected during a short business meeting. They are: Fran Dubble, president; Judy Swope, vice president; Wendy Lingle, secretary; and Cathy Olesh, treasurer.

A fashion show is scheduled for March 23 at 8 p.m. at Boscov's in the Lebanon Valley Mall.

Starview Group 7

Starview Society 7 of York County met Feb. 11 at the home of Gladys Glatfelter; Mary Rohler served as co-hostess.

Donna Hoover read scripture, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer; members saluted the flag.

The secretary and treasurer gave reports. President Edna Brothers reported on the County Board meeting.

The March 11 meeting will be held at Mary Rohler's home. A representative of Met-Ed will be the guest speaker.

The April 8 meeting will be a Sugar 'n Spice party at the Starview UCC Church at 8 p.m.

The group received thank you notes from The Four Diamond Fund and Pleasant Acres.

Cumberland Group 17

Cumberland Group 17 recently reviewed their accomplishments in 1986. Activities during the busy year included making favors for Carlisle Hospital patients for Lincoln's birthday, providing food tables at four farm sales, making donations to Claremont Auxiliary, Pa. Farmer's Association and the dairy princess contest.

Members also contributed to two families to help help them with medical expenses and to the Liberty Restoration Fund.

The group had a bazaar table at M.J. Mall and entertained patients at the County Home who had birthdays in December.

The group received a certificate of achievement for 100 percent participation in the safety program.

Chester Co. 4-H'ers Attend Southeast Regional Teen Weekend

A group of Chester County 4-H'ers attended the Southeast Regional Teen Weekend, held early in February at the YWCA Blue Mountain Camp near Hamburg. Theme for the event was "4-H Teen Ambassador."

In addition to fun activities like movies, aerobics, and a talent show, the 4-H'ers attended workshops on using audio visual equipment, telling the 4-H story, forming personal relationships, coping with eating disorders, making decisions and speaking in public. All Chester County 4-H'ers assisted with the workshops.

Sunday, the 4-H'ers met to create an idea to advertise 4-H. The Chester County group decided to have 4-H'ers call potential members on the phone to talk about 4-H and the opportunities the program offers.

York Quilters Guild Members Stitch Colorful Works Of Art

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — York's Quilters Guild keeps its members in stitches.

The Guild is a fledgling organization, in official existence less than two years. But, while the group may still be in a novice stage, many of the members are accomplished artisans working with needle, thread and fabric shapes to create stunning, colorful works of art.

It was June 1985 when eight York-area quilting enthusiasts first discussed the possibility of a Guild. Several knew one another through classes they had taken at the Calico Patch shop in Spry. And, while they would become familiar with what classmates were beginning to work on in a class, few ever got the chance to see the finished quilting projects. A structured group, they felt, would lend ongoing support and encouragement, and a place for sharing ideas.

One of that initial group of Guild founders was Carol Blevins of Red Lion. Now serving as the first president of the group, Carol remembers that a "show and tell" was chosen as the type of meeting to introduce the Guild idea and encourage quilters to come and share their talents.

Posters were designed and put on display in area fabric-craft shops, local newspapers lent support with publicity and "word of mouth" got the message out to quilting hobbyists.

"I was awed," says Carol of the turnout of 75 quilters at that first Saturday afternoon meeting in September 1985, held at the Otterbein United Methodist Church in Spry.

The initial "charter" group of eight agreed to serve as a board and officers, with Carol elected president. They established by-laws and goals which have been altered and refined in the ensuing year.

"We're still feeling our way," Carol adds. "But our thrust is to encourage both the craft and the art of quilting. We're serving as a forum for learning new methods and techniques, and of the appreciation, encouragement and stimulation of quilting.

Meetings over the first year have covered a range of quilting-related topics, including slide lectures; demonstrations on various methods of design and quilting techniques, and additional show and tell sharing opportunities. Business portions of the meeting are kept to a minimum to devote as much time as possible to learning and sharing programs.

During the York Fair in September, the Guild set up a display in the fine arts area and provided quilting demonstrations. That community outreach furthered the connectional system which the Guild is working to establish. Members manned the display, answered questions and served as a resource for individuals interested in learning the craft or in having treasured heirloom pieced tops finished by other quilters.

A mini-show of quilts at the York Historical Society was an initial project. Newspaper coverage of that display of quilts provided additional publicity and helped generate interest in the Guild from quilters around the county.

Several York Guild members also joined a bus tour last year, sponsored by Lancaster's Red Rose Guild, to attend the Great American Quilt Festival at Pier Nine in New York City. In addition to the impressive display of quilts from across the nation, that festival included a quilt fundraiser to benefit the refurbishing of the Statue of Liberty.

"There's a resurgence of interest in quilting; and we hope it hasn't peaked yet," Carol says "We have experts in the Guild, and we have members who don't even quilt, but they 'applaud' for the rest. They range in age from in their seventies to a 10-year-old young lady. We have had one man attend one of the show-and-tell meetings, but have no male members yet."

"Quilting is a very relaxing activity if you enjoy it. You can put it down and pick it up with no worrying about counting stitches. It's being seen in more contemporary ways, in art and fashion. Even quilting fabric is more accessible than before; wholesalers are providing retailers with much greater selection," adds the Guild president.

Increasing numbers of magazines aimed at quilters are turning up on newstands, and even videotapes are available. Channel 33, the Public Broadcasting System from Hershey, airs a show for quilters at 2 p.m. every Saturday.

Carol began quilting about ten years ago after admiring a quilted pillow she saw while browsing through a magazine. A "friend of a friend" was teaching quilting, and eventually Carol was also invited to instruct. Her abilities are largely self-taught and she admits to "experimenting a lot."

A home economics graduate of Penn State, Carol pursued her degree with a main emphasis on clothing. She enjoys the teaching aspect of leading quilting classes and is justly proud of the enthusiasm of the Guild membership.

Now, members are channeling that enthusiasm into more community outreach, with their own first show in the planning stages. Scheduled for the last weekend of April 1988, the York Guild's first quilt show, "A Celebration of Quilts" is booked for the downtown Hotel Yorktowne. It will be a judged show, with invitational displays in addition to those of the York members.

Recently, the York group joined as a local society of the National Quilt Association, headquartered in Ellicott City, Md. The American Quilt Society is another national organization serving quilting interests. Both sponsor national quilt shows, the NQA in Easton, Md. and the AQS in Paducah, Ky.

Initial interest in the Guild has held strong and continues to grow, with current membership of more than 60. Potential Guild members may attend two meetings before joining, and there is no required attendance. Meetings are held the third Thursday of each month at Luther Memorial Church on Hollywood Drive. Annual dues of $10 include a newsletter.

Quilters interested in additional information may contact Carol Blevins, 244-2505, or Cindy Martin, 764-0987, and are invited to attend upcoming meetings. Carol will be teaching methods of drafting, enlarging and reducing quilt patterns at the March meeting. April's meeting features Ina Jacobs, Cochranville, who will talk on the history and symbolism of quilts. In May, members will participate in a hands-on project of shadow quilting, and June's topic focuses on setting up and organizing a quilt show, with a speaker from the Lebanon Quilting Guild.

President Carol Blevins encourages crafters interested in learning to quilt or in developing greater quilting skills to attend.

"Where quilting is concerned, there are no strangers," she smiles. "They always have something to talk about."

A teddy bear quilt, partially pieced and finished in knotting, is Sheila Arnold's favorite baby gift.

Members of the Westminster High School FFA presented a live animal exhibit in the school's lobby. The exhibit was part of their recognition of National FFA Week.

Westminster Students Celebrate FFA Week With Live Animal Exhibit

BY SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

WESTMINSTER — It's hard to say which squeals were loudest — those coming from behind the picket fence, or in front of it. Westminster High School's Future Farmers of America set up a live animal exhibit in the school's lobby as part of their celebration of National FFA Week, complete with squealing piglets and squealing suburbanites.

"I'm not going in there," proclaimed one student. "There's a cow in there!" The week-old hereford calf that was on the inside peering out blinked his long lashes as Tessie Stephan scooped him up in her arms to lift him for the braver students to pet. A second calf wandered freely inside the pen that was fluffy with straw bedding.

"Feel how soft it is," said another student of the long-eared French Lop bunny.

The rooster periodically flapped around the pen. Some students were able to identify the different animals, and demonstrated their savvy. "Hey, that's what we had for dinner last night — chicken."

The 35 members of the Westminster High school FFA, under the guidance of vocational agriculture teachers Charles Schuster and Joel Rosen put together the exhibit and brought in their animals to bring attention to the vo-ag program.

"We presented the animals to the student body to provide the non-farm students an opportunity to see the animals that are raised here on Carroll County farms, and to celebrate National FFA Week," explained Schuster. "It was my suspicion that many students have not been close to farm animals, and judging from their reactions, I was right."

There were lots of wide-eyed kids at the exhibit. Goat kids and human kids examined each other with curiosity.

The exhibit drew a steady crowd of onlookers and visitors who wanted to know something specific about the animals. "Won't it bite you?" asked one student of Chris Johnson who was feeding the baby goat from a bottle.

As cute and cuddly as all the baby animals were, the most popular, by far, was the squealing piglet. For students whose closest association to swine has been through reading "Charlotte's Web," it must have been a surprise to discover that pigs don't just grunt a little. They squeeeal LOUD and long at an ear piercing pitch — almost as loud as the girl who was scared of the calf with the big liquid brown eyes, like Bambi.

The squealing piglet was the main attraction at the Westminster High School live animal exhibit. Holding the pig is Tammy Stephan. Chris Johnson holds the kid next to her while students look on.

Schuster said the first-ever exhibit "was very successful and the students responded in a very positive manner. Next year we hope to have a greater variety of animals along with fitting and showing demonstrations," he added.

Petal Prints Help Scientists Identify Roses

WASHINGTON — Scientists can now "fingerprint" rose leaves so that each of the thousands of rose plant varieties sold can be specifically identified, thereby protecting patents for this $44 million-a-year industry.

"For the first time, we can now accurately distinguish one rose variety from another," said Charles R. Krause, a U.S. Department of Agriculture plant pathologist.

Until now, the only way to identify varieties was to rely on a specialist's expert opinion.

Krause magnified a rose leaf 10,000 to 20,000 times with a scanning electron microscope, which projects onto a screen an electronic image that can be photographed. This highly magnified image shows that openings in the leaf, called stomata, have different shapes depending on the plant variety.

"These research results should aid in patent application as well as patent infringement law suits," said Krause of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. "Also, the cost of producing rose varieties may be reduced, as a nursery must pay royalties to patent holders for growing their plants."

Consumers now pay about $4 to $20 for patented rose plants, depending on the variety.

Krause also discovered other identifying characteristics in his fingerprinting research: the subsidiary cells around the stomata can be raised or recessed; glandular hairs can be spherical with a bulb at the end or flat; and wax arrangement on the leaves and thorns can be smooth, lacelike or any variation in between Twenty Rosa hybrida varieties — including South Seas, Antigua, Color Magic, Spellbinder and Promise — were fingerprinted by Krause at the agency's Nursery Crops Research Laboratory, Delaware, Ohio.

"The identification technique can be used on other rose varieties and on trees and other nursery plants," Krause said.

Well-Balanced Diet Will Leave You With More Pep

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. – Do you feel as if your get-up-and-go has gone? One remedy is to eat well-balanced, regular meals containing the right vitamins and minerals. And if you really want to make sure that you don't run out of steam, the "Reader's Digest" suggests these five ways to eat for more energy:

1. Watch when you eat. A pastry for breakfast, a salad for lunch and then a big binge at night is like filling your gas tank at the end of the trip. This pattern is a leading cause of those familiar midafternoon lags; with too few calories, the body may feel it is starving and preserve energy by lowering the basic metabolic rate, the speed at which you burn fuel. An evenly balanced distribution of daytime calories raises the metabolism and helps stave off evening overloads. Many nutritionists recommend eating four times a day, with the extra meal, a light snack, coming in midafternoon.

2. Watch what you eat. Fats are out of favor. They make it easy to gain weight, contribute to heart disease and may play a role in certain cancers.

Quite useful, on the other hand, are starches, or complex carbohydrates— rice, pasta, grains and cereals, beans and bread. Starchy foods help prevent the blood-glucose level from rising too high and may keep it from falling below the fasting level between meals.

3. Balance your energy foods. To combat daily fade-outs or to get a faster morning start, the best Rise and Shine.

There's something richly rewarding about getting up long before the sun does and working hard to get the most from your land and your livestock. We at Bank of Lancaster County salute you who have made farming your chosen field. We've been here in Lancaster County for more than 120 years helping farms like yours grow strong.

Bob Badger and the Bank of Lancaster County's Agricultural Loan Division understand farming from the ground up. For years now, Bob has been helping area farmers grow with loans for machinery, livestock, construction, mortgages, and other operating expenses For whatever your needs, visit Bob at our Strasburg office, or give him a call and he'll visit you He gets up pretty early too.

Well-Balanced Diet

weapon is a balance of carbohydrates and proteins. Add proteins such as milk to the breakfast cereal, and turkey or fish to the noontime salad. And don't drink any alcohol during lunch. Alcohol is a depressant and a relaxant.

4. Go easy on caffeine. The danger here is dependency. When heavy users skip a dose, they can experience headaches, anxiety, muscle tension and energy dips. Recommended are no more than three six-ounce cups of coffee a day— or four cups of strong tea or four cans of cola.

5. Start with a few simple steps.

• Write down what you eat and when.

• Plan a strategy. Cut down on fats; add a midafternoon snack; supplement carbohydrates with proteins at breakfast and lunch. Then experiment. In the morning, try a protein-fortified cereal, a low-fat cheese or an omelet made with egg whites (high in protein) and only one or no yolk (to cut down on fat and cholesterol).

• Learn to compromise. If steak is your weakness, just eat less of it. Even small changes in how you eat can help you feel better.

• Get moving. Aerobic exercise— anything that keeps the heart pumping faster than normal for at least 20 minutes— probably has the strongest enlivening effect. For a sedentary person, a brisk daily walk can do wonders for an energy slump.

Cancer, Osteoporosis Pose Major Threat To American Women

SOUTHAMPTON — American women may be at strong risk for two major health problems: cancer and osteoporosis.

Women should examine their lifestyles — smoking, diet, exercise, weight, alcohol consumption — to see if these areas can be changed, says Dairy Council Inc., Southampton, Pa.

Lung cancer has recently overtaken breast cancer as the number one cancer killer among American women. Smoking is responsible for upwards of 75 percent of lung cancer cases and 30 percent of all the cancer deaths among women, according to the American Cancer Society.

While a well-balanced and varied diet is the best nutritional defense against cancer, eating well will not undo harmful effects of unhealthy lifestyles characterized by smoking and high alcohol intake.

Some studies suggest that dietary fat is a culprit in breast cancer, but other studies fail to validate that increased fat causes or promotes breast cancer. Nevertheless, it is wise to cut back on total fat intake — both polyunsaturated and saturated. Cancer studies also point to cruciferous vegetables, such as cauliflower and broccoli, as containing a protective agent against the disease.

Uncontrollable factors in breast cancer may include having a first child late in life, a low number of children, a high number of years between onset of menses and menopause, and incidence of fibrocystic disease. Family history causes a two-fold risk.

Osteoporosis is a widespread problem affecting millions of Americans, mostly women. Usually the onset of symptoms occurs late in life, but the condition, known as a "silent disease" is frequently caused by gradual bone loss over the years.

It is easier to prevent osteoporosis than cure it. Important preventive measures include an adequate calcium intake and plenty of exercise throughout life.

Bone loss is a natural phenomenon of getting older. It begins about age 35, when calcium and other minerals are removed from your bones at a faster rate than they can be replaced.

Women should remember they need calcium at every life stage. Studies show many women after 15 don't get their Recommended Dietary Allowances (RDA) for calcium.

Milk and dairy products provide over 70 percent of the calcium present in the American food supply. The grain group provides 4 percent, meat group, 9 percent, and fruits and vegetables, 10 percent. Milk also contains other nutrients, including vitamin D, which helps calcium absorption and bone development.

Studies show women who take large doses of calcium supplements late in life to prevent osteoporosis cannot compensate for life-long calcium deficiency. Building toward peak bone mass — reached at about 35 — requires continued attention to calcium intake and weight-bearing exercise, such as walking, jogging, or tennis. Once peak bone mass is reached, calcium is leached from the bones, resulting in bone loss. Unless a woman has strong bones as a young adult, it's nearly impossible to catch up calcium intake with calcium loss. And swallowing handfuls of calcium tablets isn't much help because there is a limit on how much calcium the body can absorb and use to restore bone loss.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

How To Avoid The Real Dangers In Your Microwave!

Microwave radiation and pacemakers are not really safety problems with a microwave, as we discussed last week. There are, however, other safety problems with microwaves that are quite real!

These are simple, every day matters of burns, steam vapor, and accidental fires that you encounter with every form of cooking. Here are some tips for avoiding the real dangers from your microwave!

Burns

Burns may come from steam, unexpectedly hot containers or hot spots in the food.

— When removing lids or plastic wrap from containers, lift side away from your body first, so steam is directed away from your face. Protect hands with potholders.

— If plastic wrap is bulging upward, carefully poke a hole in the wrap with a long handled cooking fork to let steam pressure escape.

— Remove plates and containers from the microwave with potholders. The heat of the food heats up the containers, and sometimes they are burning hot!

— Stir food during cooking, or let food stand after cooking to even out the temperature. This will help you avoid burning your mouth when you bite into something. Remember, sugary foods get extremely hot. Watch out for the filling in sweet rolls!

— Be extra careful when warming baby formula or food to stir and let stand. Always check the temperature of the food before feeding the baby.

Explosions

Explosions in your oven may come from food bursting, from steam bursting tightly sealed containers, or from boiling liquids. Never try canning in the microwave. (I just read that when a sealed canning jar exploded in a microwave it blew the door off!)

— Food encased in a shell or skin, (potatoes, whole eggs, squash or even little pieces such as peas and beans) may burst as the steam builds up inside. Poke holes in the skins of large foods like potatoes and egg yolks. Turn the power level down if small peas and beans start bursting.

— When using plastic wrap, leave one corner or side loose or open (called venting) so extra steam pressure can escape.

— When using oven cooking bags, tie the opening loosely closed, leaving enough room for one or two fingers to get in. This vents the bag so it won't burst. When you do this, cutting slits in the bag is not necessary.

— Boiling liquids, such as a cup of water you've heated up for tea, may suddenly bubble up. This may happen when the cup gets jiggled as you remove it from the oven, or when you stir it or add a tea bag, honey, etc. Keep cup on a saucer, or stir through once with a spoon before moving out of oven.

Fire

Fires are caused by overheating food or by pieces of metal arcing (sparking) and lighting nearby plastic or paper.

— Most fires are caused by those little metal twisties accidentally left on bags of food put in the microwave to thaw or defrost. Always remove them! Staples on cardboard cartons (carry-out food) will set the carton on fire. Check wicker baskets, etc. carefully for wire frames.

— Other fires are ignited by overcooked food resting on paper products, like napkins or plates. Carefully check cooking times (it's easy to accidentally hit an extra 0 with digital ovens, which would change 2 minutes of cooking time to 20 minutes!) If you pop popcorn in paper bags, stay by the oven during microwaving, and stop oven if you see smoke!

— If you have a fire in your microwave, stop the oven and unplug it. For a larger fire, leave the door closed until it goes out.

Electrical Shock

— Make sure your microwave is installed properly, in a circuit rated for at least 15 amperes of current.

— The outlet should be properly grounded. If you've used one of those adapters to plug your microwave into a 2-prong plug, have the outlet replaced with a grounded outlet as soon as possible.

Microwave Leakage

Leakage should not be a problem if the door, hinges and seal are intact. If the oven door has been damaged, have a repairman fix it properly and check for leakage.

— There are microwave detectors for sale for consumers, costing from about $10 to $30. However, the Food and Drug Administration, which tested these meters, found them extremely unreliable. Servicemen should have reliable meters (which probably cost over $500!).

Survey Gives U.S. Elderly Good Grades For Nutrition

WASHINGTON — Contrary to long-held assumptions, most U.S. elderly are generally well nourished in spite of their waning appetites, scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University report.

Based on a survey of nearly 700 healthy Boston-area residents over 60, "the elderly are better nourished than any nutritionists or physicians would have guessed," said Dr. Robert B. McGandy with the center's program in nutritional epidemiology. The center is funded by USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Principal investigator Stuart Hartz said the survey "establishes norms for healthy middle-class people throughout the aging process." The study is the first to look at the nutritional status of the elderly in their 60s, 70s, 80s and 90s, he said, but it lacks information about those in low-income or minority groups "despite our efforts to recruit these people."

As expected, the elderly had a much lower calorie intake than middle-aged people—averaging 200 to 400 fewer calories per day, said McGandy. "Therefore their intakes of some vitamins and minerals were on the low side compared with the middle-aged. But the levels of essential vitamins and minerals in their blood samples were within normal ranges."

McGandy and Hartz attribute this to a high use of supplements and to the fact that "many elderly—at least those who volunteer for such studies—make pretty good dietary choices even though they don't eat much. They don't consume a lot of soft drinks or alcohol."

Overall, 50 percent of the healthy elderly took supplements—45 percent of the men and 55 percent of the women. And about three-fourths of those who took supplements used a multivitamin, multimineral preparation, said Hartz, noting that this accounted for the big difference in vitamin and mineral intakes between users and nonusers.

He said that "a reasonable level of supplementation—around the Recommended Dietary Allowance—appears to be helpful rather than harmful, even for frail elderly." But he cautions against megadoses of 10 to 20 times the RDA, which can be toxic for some vitamins.

The most popular vitamin supplements were C and E, with many elderly taking megadoses. Iron and zinc were the minerals most frequently used by both sexes, and calcium was popular with women.

Those who had the lowest calcium intakes were on low-fat diets, said McGandy, either to lose weight or reduce risk of a heart attack. In such diets, "dairy products are among the first to go, and, unfortunately, calcium goes with it," he said, adding that skim milk and yogurt could furnish the calcium without the fat calories.

McGandy said that a separate survey of 350 elderly confined to nursing homes for chronic illnesses yielded the most surprising results. "We found no deficiencies. Their nutritional status was quite comparable to the healthy volunteers." He noted that nursing home menus are, by law, planned by dietitians.

Hartz said findings of the larger survey, published in Nutrition Research, are only the early dividends. Other scientists at the Boston center are sifting through the survey data to find any effects of individual nutrients, to look for an impact of alcohol consumption, smoking or medicines on blood levels of individual nutrients, and to answer a host of other questions. Later, the data will be released to any interested scientist. "It could generate as many as one hundred scientific papers," he said.

Combat Heart Disease With Low-Sodium, Low-Cholesterol Diet

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — With heart disease listed as the leading cause of death among Americans, at least one person in your extended family has probably been affected by this killer disease. Nearly one of every two Americans die of cardiovascular disease.

According to the American Heart Association, the single biggest cause of heart and blood vessel diseases is atherosclerosis, or "hardening of the arteries." In layman's terms, that translates into a buildup of fatty deposits on the inside walls of the arteries. These deposits obstruct and sometimes completely block the flow of blood to the body's vital organs.

One way to reduce your risk of heart disease, stroke and atherosclerosis is to reduce the amount of cholesterol and saturated fats in your diet. Along with a healthy diet, doctors also encourage people to lower their blood pressure and to stop smoking.

While it is important for people who already have a heart disease or who have a family history of heart disease to follow these guidelines, they're a good idea for the entire family, including the youngest members.

"We feel that in order to make any impact on coronary prevention, we need to start with young children," says American Heart Association dietician Lee Glatfelter. Fat buildup in the arteries is a cumulative process that may begin early in life, she explains.

Homemakers who want to offer both young and old family members healthy meals need to understand the role of cholesterol in heart disease. Cholesterol is a soft, fat-like substance found among the fats in the bloodstream called lipids. Hyperlipidemia, a high level of lipids in the bloodstream, is a major risk factor for coronary heart disease.

Although some cholesterol is produced by the liver each day, it is dietary cholesterol, found in foods from animals, such as egg yolks, meat, fish, poultry and whole milk dairy products, that is of concern.

Saturated fats, found primarily in animal fats and coconut and palm oil, also tend to increase the amount of cholesterol in the blood. They can also be produced from unsaturated fats through a chemical process called hydrogenation.

While saturated fats and hydrogenated fats should be limited in the diet, not all fats are necessarily bad. Polyunsaturated fats from vegetable products such as safflower and sunflower seeds, corn, soybeans and cottonseeds, actually help lower blood cholesterol by helping the body get rid of excessive, newly formed cholesterol.

To reduce the risk of heart disease the American Heart Association offers the following dietary guidelines:

- Limit intake of saturated fat to less than 10 percent of calories. Reduce animal fats, coconut oil, palm oil and cocoa butter, while increasing polyunsaturated fats.
- Keep total fat intake below 30 percent of calories. (One gram of fat contains 9 calories.)
- Maintain a cholesterol intake of less than 100 mg. per 1,000 calories, not to exceed 300 mg. per day. Decrease intake of red meat, organ meats and egg yolks. (One average egg contains 252 mg. of cholesterol.)
- Aim for a protein intake of approximately 15 percent of calories. (One gram of protein contains 4 calories. 280 calories of protein per day meets the needs of the average person.)
- Obtain 50 to 55 percent of your calories from carbohydrates with emphasis on increasing sources of complex carbohydrates. (One gram of carbohydrates contains 4 calories.) Increase intake of vegetables and grains.
- Reduce sodium intake to approximately 1 gram per 1,000 calories, not to exceed 3 grams per day. (1/8 teaspoon salt equals .3 grams sodium.)
- Limit calories obtained from alcoholic beverages to 15 percent of total calories, not to exceed 50 cc of ethanol per day.
- Consume enough calories to maintain the individual's best body weight. Reduce calories and increase exercise to achieve ideal weight.
- Consume a wide variety of food. Variety provides more essential nutrients and allows more interesting food choices.

To meet these guidelines, Glatfelter said, people should limit their intake of meat, seafood and poultry to no more than 5 to 7 ounces per day. Chicken and turkey without skin or fish should be the basis of most meals.

Choose lean cuts of meat, trim away any extra fat and throw away fat that cooks out during food preparation. In addition, Glatfelter suggested limiting fats and oils for cooking, baking and salads to no more than 5 to 8 teaspoons per day.

Low-fat dairy products are recommended and egg yolks should be limited to two per week. The use of shrimp, lobster, sardines and organ meats should also be limited.

"What we're really saying is not to eliminate these items, but to eat leaner cuts of meat," Glatfelter explained. She added: "We encourage the use of dairy products as long as they are low fat."

For some, following the dietary guidelines requires a drastic revision in eating habits. "All changes should be gradual. To go from whole milk to skim milk is an unrealistic goal," says Glatfelter, who was raised on a Wisconsin dairy farm. She suggests taking the change in gradual steps, going from whole milk, to 2 percent, to 1 percent to skim.

To reduce the amount of sodium in the diet, she suggests cutting out table salt first. About one third of total daily sodium intake is accounted for at the table and in cooking.

With that achieved, the next step is to learn the sodium content in foods you eat and adjust your

The following recipes, excerpts from the American Heart Association Cookbook, are just a sample of the low-cholesterol, low-sodium alternatives health conscious cooks can select from.

OVEN BARBECUED CHICKEN

1 2½- to 3-pound frying chicken, cut into serving pieces
¼ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
3 tablespoons oil
½ cup chili sauce or catsup
3 tablespoons worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon dry mustard
Freshly ground black pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion (optional)

Combine all ingredients except chicken in a saucepan; simmer 10 minutes. Wash and dry chicken and place in a large baking pan. Pour half of the barbecue sauce over chicken and bake at 350°F., uncovered, for 50 to 60 minutes, basting with remaining sauce every 15 minutes. Or, chicken may be immersed in sauce, then removed and cooked over charcoal, basting frequently.

Makes 4 servings. Approximately 260 calories per serving.

DUTCH HONEY BREAD

2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup buttermilk
1 well-beaten egg (or 2 egg whites or egg substitute equivalent to 1 egg)
¼ cup honey

Mix all dry ingredients together. Add the buttermilk, egg and honey; blend well. Pour into an oiled 9x5-inch loaf pan and bake at 350°F. for 45 to 60 minutes. When done, this bread has a very firm crust. Makes 1 loaf (16 slices). Approximately 90 calories per serving.

Diet Important In Treating Nation's Number 3 Disease - Diabetes

Recipes For Diabetics

The following recipes, published in the Lancaster Exchange List, the newsletter of the Lancaster Chapter of the Diabetes Association, are suggested for diabetics on restricted diets. For more information about the newsletter, contact the association's Lancaster office at 1042 Columbia Avenue, Lancaster.

TOMATO-GLAZED FISH

1 medium onion, thinly sliced
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
1 4-ounce can mushrooms, drained
1 pound cod or haddock fillets
½ teaspoon garlic salt (or garlic powder)
½ teaspoon lemon rind
¼ teaspoon dill weed
1½ cups tomato juice
4 teaspoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon flour
1 packet sugar substitute
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Heat oil in skillet. Add onions and saute about 5 minutes. Add mushrooms. Arrange fish over onions. Sprinkle wtih garlic salt, lemon rind, and dill weed. Add tomato juice.

Bring to a simmer, cover and cook over moderate heat for 10 minutes or until fish is cooked. Remove fish to a heated platter. Blend lemon juice and flour together. Gradually add ½ cup of the tomato sauce. Stir back into the sauce. Add sweetener, stir and cook until thickened, about 2 minutes. Serve ½ cup sauce over each fillet and sprinkle with parsley.

One serving equals 2 vegetables, 3 lean meat exchanges and 216 calories.

CHICKEN BREASTS IN MUSHROOM SAUCE

8 ounces fresh sliced mushrooms
¼ cup chopped green onions
1 tablespoon margarine
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup water
½ cup plain low fat yogurt
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
Dash pepper
1 teaspoon instant chicken bouillon
2 whole boneless chicken breasts, halved, skin removed

Combine mushrooms and onions in one-quart casserole. Cover and microwave at high, 3 to 4½ minutes or until mushrooms are tender. Drain well. Place margarine in a 4-cup measure and microwave on high, 30 seconds to 1½ minutes, or until melted. Blend in flour. Add water, yogurt, salt, pepper and bouillon. Stir in mushrooms and onions. Arrange chicken in 8x8-inch baking dish. Pour sauce over chicken. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) 14 to 20 minutes, or until sauce thickens and chicken is tender and no longer pink. Turn and rearrange breasts and stir sauce every 5 minutes during cooking. Serve sauce over chicken. Serves 4.

Per Serving: Calories: 249. Sodium: 527 mg. Cholesterol: 65 mg. Exchanges: 1 veg, 3 low fat meat, 1 fat.

Editor's Note: Nutritious meals are important for all families, but they are of special significance in families with members on restricted diets. In recognition of National Nutrition Month, we offer menu planning suggestions for people who suffer from two of the nation's leading killers — heart disease and diabetes.

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — National Nutrition Month focuses attention on good nutrition for everyone as a means to a healthier, happier life.

For some segments of society, good nutrition and proper diet are critical every day as a means of controlling or preventing disease.

Diabetes is a disease which forces attention on a proper diet since it affects the way a body uses food and converts it into energy. Normally, during digestion, the body changes sugars, starches and other foods into a form of sugar called glucose. The glucose is then carried by the bloodsteam to the cells, and with the help of insulin, a hormone produced by the pancreas, glucose is changed into energy or stored for future needs.

In diabetes, this process is interrupted and while food is changed into glucose, there is a problem with insulin. Either the body does not produce insulin or what is produced is not used effectively. When the glucose in the bloodstream cannot be used by the cells to make energy, it collects in the blood, leading to the high sugar levels that mark diabetes.

Diabetes with its complications, is now the number three cause of death by disease in the United States. One in every 20 Americans has the disease, and it is the number one cause of new blindness in adults.

The two main types of diabetes are insulin-dependent and non-insulin dependent. Insulin-dependent diabetes results from the pancreas not making insulin or making just a small amount, and occurs most often in children and young adults. The hormone insulin must be injected every day, and must be used in conjunction with regular exercise and a balanced meal plan that limits sugar.

Non-insulin-dependent diabetes occurs mostly in adults. In this type, insulin is produced, but it is not used effectively. It is treated with an individualized diet plan that restricts calories. Treatment also includes regular exercise and restriction of sugar. If blood sugar is not controlled through diet and exercise, then prescribed pills or insulin may be needed.

Warning signs for insulin-dependent diabetes include frequent urination accompanied by unusual thirst; extreme hunger; rapid weight loss with easy tiring, weakness and fatigue; and irritability, nausea and vomiting. These symptoms occur suddenly, and a doctor should be seen immediately.

The onset of non-insulin-dependent diabetes is often gradual and undramatic, and often people are unaware they have the disease until after they develop one of its life-threatening complications such as heart disease, kidney disease or eye problems.

Warning signs may include one of the following: any of the insulin-dependent warning signs; over 40, overweight and have relatives with diabetes; blurred vision or any change in sight; tingling or numbness in legs, feet or fingers; frequent skin infections or itchy skin; slow healing of cuts and bruises; recurring or hard-to-heal skin, gum or bladder infections; and drowsiness.

The causes of diabetes are still a mystery, but many researchers believe the tendency for diabetes is present at birth. So far, insulin-dependent diabetes cannot be prevented. Non-insulin-dependent diabetes can often be prevented by maintaining proper body weight and keeping physically fit.

Further information on the disease can be obtained by writing to the American Diabetes Association, Two Park Avenue, New York, NY 10016, or by checking your phone book for your local chapter.

In Lancaster County, there will be a Diabetes Awareness Day to be held on Tuesday, March 10. The theme is "Lick Diabetes," and members of the Lancaster Chapter and the Lions Club International will have volunteers and information at six locations in the county. They will be distributing sugar-free lollipops.

Information tables will be at Park City, East Town Mall, Quarryville, Ephrata, and Mountville from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and at Penn Square in Lancaster from noon until 2 p.m. There will also be a free screening on Tuesday, March 17, at the local chapter headquarters at 1042 Columbia Avenue, Lancaster, for those who may discover symptoms.

"All I have to say is that Pounce® guarantees cutworm and true armyworm control at about half the price of Lorsban. So you can use all this space to figure out how much you're saving."

Heart Disease

menu accordingly. When purchasing packaged convenience foods, check the labels for sodium content, Glatfelter said. These foods are often high in sodium.

Generally, the dietician suggests planning red meat meals three times a week, with the remainder of the meals relying on fish, chicken or meatless dishes.

When selecting meats at the grocery store, Glatfelter says the homemaker should look for lean cuts. "We've been conditioned for prime, well-marbled cuts of meat," she says. "But what have traditionally been considered the less desirable cuts of meat are really more desirable."

Even more fat can be eliminated by choosing a wise cooking method. Broiling is generally desirable since fat that is removed during cooking is directed away from the meat. Stewing and braising are also acceptable as long as the fat is removed, Glatfelter said. The worst alternative, she said, is cooking on a flat griddle where the fat remains on the surface.

Prepare stews and roasts ahead, she suggested, and skim off the fat which forms at the surface when cooled. Remove chicken skin before cooking or at the table.

A healthy diet doesn't have to be complicated or distasteful. In fact, eating right can become an enjoyable challenge.

The American Heart Association has developed a number of materials to help homemakers shop, plan and prepare healthy meals. Among them are "The Heart Association Cookbook," available for $10 from your local association, and "Cooking Without Your Saltshaker," available for a $5 donation.

The South Central Pennsylvania Chapter is offering an "Options in Cardiac Therapy" heart patient seminar next Saturday, March 14, at the Olde Hickory Inn in Lancaster from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. For more information, contact the association at 610 Community Way, Lancaster.

Recipes For Diabetics

FISH WITH ZUCCHINI AND RED PEPPER

¼ cup minced celery
½ cup minced onion
½ cup shredded zucchini
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 pound fish fillets
1 small sweet red pepper, cut in thin strips

In a small bowl, combine celery, onion, zucchini, parsley, lemon juice and black pepper. Set aside. Place fish fillets in a 12x8-inch baking dish. Top with vegetables from small bowl. Place red pepper strips over vegetables. Cover with wax paper. Microwave at 50 percent (medium) 10 to 15 minutes, or until fish flakes easily with fork, rearranging fillets once during cooking. Let stand covered, 2 to 3 minutes. Serves 4. Per Serving: Calories: 135. Sodium: 46 mg. Cholesterol: 63 mg. Exchanges: 1 veg, 2 low fat meat.

ORIENTAL CHICKEN WITH VEGETABLES

¾ cup thinly sliced onion
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
3 cups diagonally sliced celery
1½ teaspoons minced fresh ginger
1 cup uncooked peas, or ½ of a 10-ounce package of frozen peas
1½ cups chicken broth or bouillon
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 3-ounce cans mushrooms with broth
¾ pound diced, cooked chicken

In large skillet or wok, cook onion in oil until transparent. Stir in celery and ginger and cook 1 minute. Stir in peas, cover, and cook 4 minutes. Vegetables should be crisp tender. Remove vegetables and set aside. Combine broth from one can of mushrooms, broth, soy sauce and cornstarch; pour into skillet. Cook, stirring constantly, until sauce thickens.

Stir in mushrooms, vegetables and chicken. Cover and cook until hot (about 5 minutes).

One serving equals 2½ vegetables, 2 meat exchanges and 217 calories.

4-H Dairy Club

Members of the 4-H Dairy Club met Feb. 19 at the home of Amy Phillips to elect officers. They are: president, Chris Dietrick; vice president, Jeff Davis; secretary, Susan Hollenbach; treasurer, Amy Phillips; news reporter, Kelly Mulligan; scrapbook, Jennifer Davis; and song and games, Mike Davis and Sandy Goss.

Each member talked about their cows. The next meeting will be held March 19 at the Shartlesville Grange Hall.

First Case Heritage Expo Scheduled

SILVER SPRING, Md. – Followers of North America's agricultural heritage from the United States and Canada will converge on Pawnee, Okla., May 1-3 through for what is shaping up as the most exciting display of steam and gas engines "in action" ever held.

The occasion will be the first International J.I. Case Heritage Exposition hosted by the Oklahoma Steam and Gas Threshers' Association. The event honors the memory of J.I. Case, one of America's foremost agpioneers who was known in the 19th Century as the "Threshing Machine King" and shepherded the development of the first agricultural steam engine.

Scheduled in cooperation with the broadly-based International J.I. Case Heritage Steering Committee, the Oklahoma event will serve as the launching pad for the formation of the new worldwide J.I. Case Heritage Foundation. The group will hold its first membership meeting on the evening of May 2 at Pawnee.

Exhibitors, bringing vintage steam traction engines, gas tractors, farm machinery and even Case cars to the expo, will be coming from Idaho, Washington, California, Florida, North and South Dakota, Manitoba, Maryland, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. A feature of the three-day event will be the display of the state and provincial flags from the United States and Canada.

A detailed brochure on the Case Heritage Expo and Foundation is availablt to persons who send their name and address with 22 cents in U.S. postage to Expo-Info, 204 East Melbourne Avenue, Silver Spring, Maryland 20901.

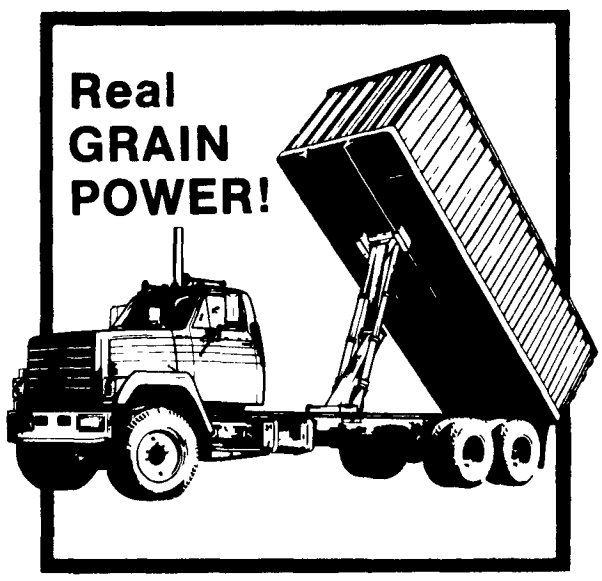
"CLEAN FLOW"
Stakeless Bodies
by OMAHA STANDARD



- 52" or 60" heavy gauge sides give you more hauling capacity for grain, sugar beets and other commodities
- "Clean Flow" design of the extra deep 30° sidewall corrugations allows complete emptying with no sharp corners for grain to hang up
- Greater inside width and length make this an ideal body for hauling bagged or palletized products
- Standard three section full opening rear doors
- Complete your "Grain Power" package with an Omaha Standard work-proven hoist Choose from the most complete line of scissor or stabilized "Olympic" telescopic hoists
- Compare any of Omaha Standard's full line of steel, aluminum or wood grain bodies and rugged hoists you'll know why Omaha Standard is the most respected name at work on the farm today

Let Eby Custom Build One For You!

When you've got livestock to haul, you don't want to worry about your trailer.

Consider one made of aluminum from M.H. Eby. They're built tough - tough enough to stand up to years and years of hauling. And they're nearly maintenance free. They'll never come apart at the seams or need expensive paint jobs.

Eby custom builds all-aluminum hog trailers in nearly any size or shape - from bumper hitch models like the one on the left to 48' possum bellies. Please give us a call or write for more information.

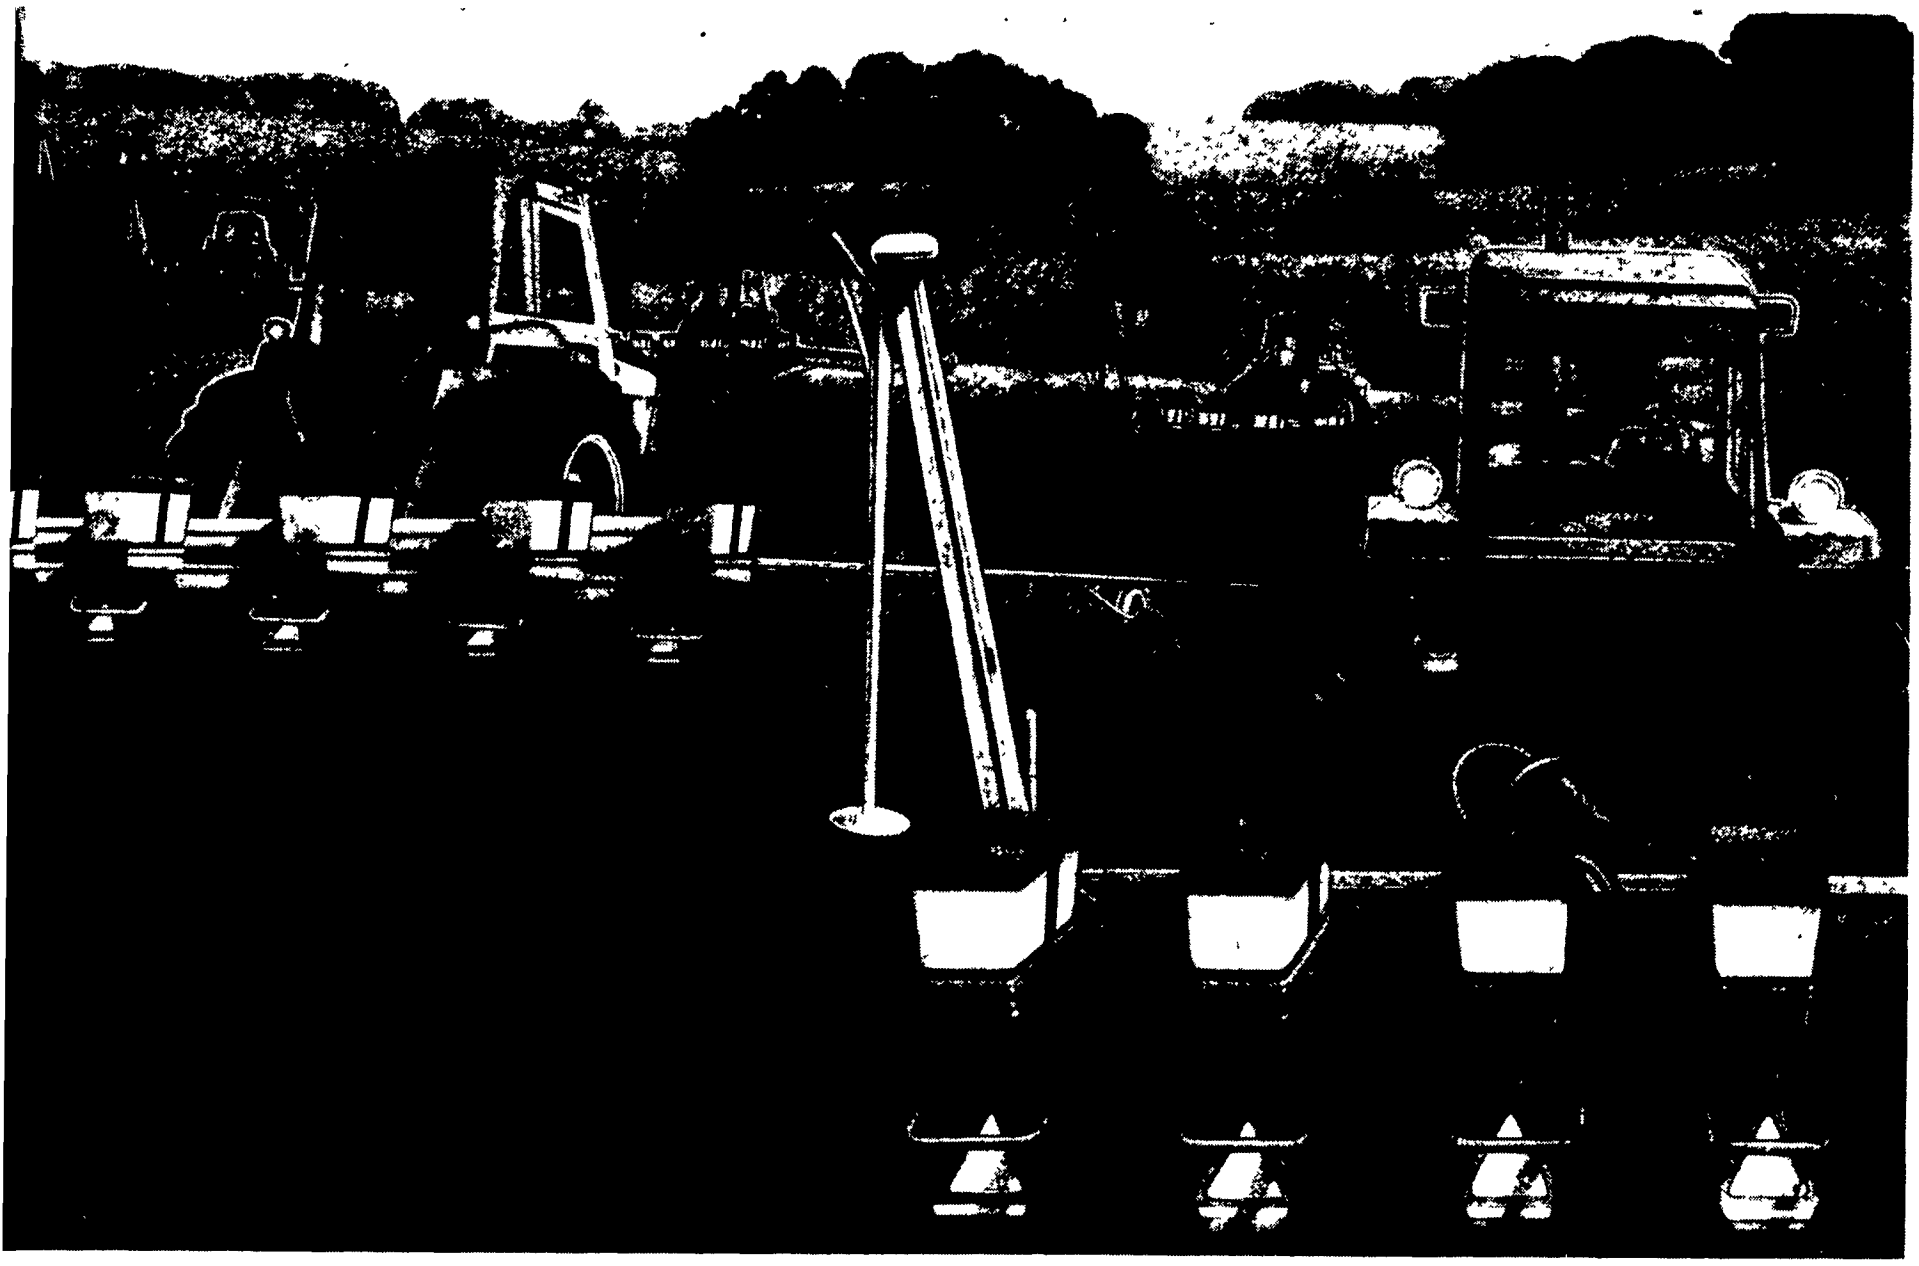
CARTER 1987



We Put More Men In The Field Than The United States Army.

Currently, Uncle Sam keeps around 300,000 army soldiers on active duty.

Farm Credit, on the other hand, helps keep over 2 million farmers on active duty. With more loans for more farming needs than any other lending institution.

For many of you, we've been there from the beginning. With money for land, as well as your house and barn.

We help stock the farm, too. With loans for everything from cows to catfish. Seeds to saplings. Fertilizer to fencing.

And when it's time for a new tractor or pick-up, just call us to get the wheels turning.

Farming has been our only field of interest for seventy years. That's because we're farmers too. Farm Credit is owned and controlled by the same farmers who use its services.

What's more, come rain or shine, we'll stick by you in any kind of weather. And when you think about it, that's reason enough to join our ranks.

Select Corn Hybrids For Early Planting

DeKALB, Ill. – Hybrid selection and early planting are key management decisions that go hand-in-hand, says agronomist Ron Christensen.

"Early planting is a major contributing factor to better yielding, drier, and better standing corn," the DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics specialist said. "The correct hybrid to be used for early planting is equally critical to the complete success of the practice."

The agronomist explains that the recent trend toward no-till farming encouraged seed research companies to select only those inbred lines that did well in very cold soil environments. "Inbred lines were tested under plantings as much as one month before normal planting dates," he adds.

Christensen says emergence abilities, plant characteristics, and the actual performance history with early planting are all factors to consider. Careful study of this important management decision can avoid potential problems and assure the desired performance.

Emergence rating of a hybrid is an important factor to consider for early planting. Christensen observes that some hybrids under stress conditions tend to lose population more than others. The emergence problem may be due to crusting soils, herbicide damage, poor coleoptile elongation or many other factors.

"Farmers should be cautious when analyzing harvest population counts on plots planted with conventional corn planters," he warns. "Differences in seed size and shape of various hybrids can cause significant planting variation."

Researchers who use special 'cone planters' have the most reliable information on populations. Cone planters sow an exact amount of seed in each plot, Christensen explains. Actual plant counts after emergence of these plots give excellent information when the process is replicated through a wide variety of early planting conditions.

Stalk size and ear height are two more plant characteristics affected by planting date, Christensen adds. "Early planting generally results in a girthier, shorter stalk type," he says. "Ear height is lower. These features will generally reduce stalk and root lodging." However, growers concerned about too low ear height should select hybrids with higher ear height ratings.

"If you conduct your own hybrid tests, compare early planting situations," Christensen concludes. "Separate early planting data from general performance summaries and review data over several years. Careful study can lead to the desired results from early planting."

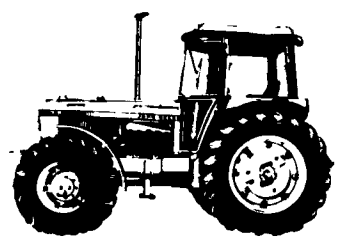
A NEW 95-HP ALL-PURPOSE TRACTOR



- A 6-cylinder, 359-cubic-inch, naturally aspirated engine lets the new 3150 produce 95 PTO hp*.
- Compared to the "classic" 4020 Tractor, factory tests indicate the 3150 is about 5 percent more fuel efficient and has more torque reserve.
- Features for the 3150 include 16-speed top-shaft synchronized Hi-Lo transmission for no-clutch, power shifting on the go. Caster/Action™ MFWD offers terrific traction and tight turning.

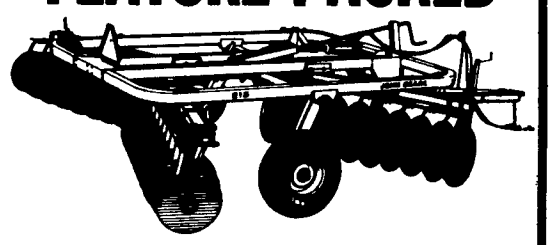
NEW LOW PRICE, FEATURE PACKED



- The new John Deere 215 Standard Disk is packed with quality and features at a new low price. Look what you'll get:
- Level-Action™ design for smooth disking. Dura-Flex® bearings for long-lasting performance. Strong, rigid scrapers to work in a variety of field conditions. A choice of blades on 9-inch spacings.
- Crank-adjust fore-and-aft leveling. And John Deere's double-offset design lets all the gangs work as a team for level disking performance.

GEHL®
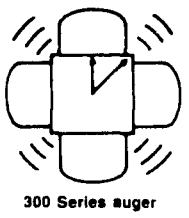
THE ONE SPREADER FOR A TWO-SPREADER FARM

THE NEW 300 SERIES GEHL LINE OF QUALITY SCAVENGER SPREADERS

From Liquid To Stable Manure To Make Hauling A Pleasure

HANDLES ALL KINDS OF MANURE — LIQUID, SEMI-SOLID, PEN PACKED, EVEN FROZEN

The Big Difference: A Square Auger



300 Series auger

Conventional auger

The right pitch is important because round augers with unusually large pitches often move manure too quickly to the front of the spreader where it overflows before the discharge is able to spread it

Hydraulic power helps the auger solve two of your biggest spreading problems. Move the auger up and down to chop through bridging. And in winter, park the auger in the up position, then power down to slice through frozen material

- MODEL MS524 -2400 Gal./257 Bu., Tandem Axle w/16.6x16.1 10 Ply Flotation Tires, Splash Guard, Tag No. 1602, $6,995
- MODEL MS312 -1255 Gal. $6,595

Fewer Moving Parts, Fewer Breakdowns

Let's face it...no one likes to handle manure. Or worse, struggle with broken-down manure handling equipment.

A Gehl "300" is a simple spreader. One with no unreliable flails. No leaky endgates. No brittle apron chains. A solid, durable spreader. With sealed, welded Unibody construction. Ruggedly built to give you top performance... year after year.

With a full 10-year warranty against rust-through on the tank.

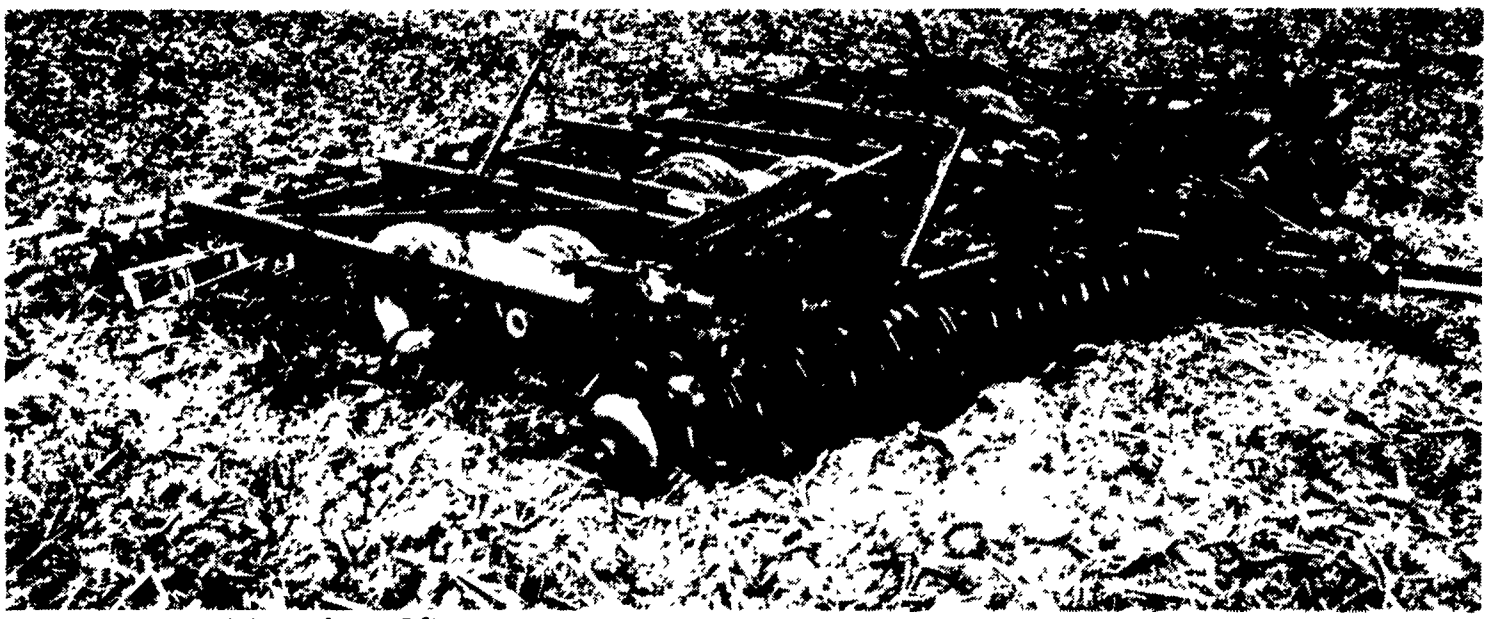
THE LANDSMAN

by Krause

An Implement That Can Cut Time And Labor Costs By 50%



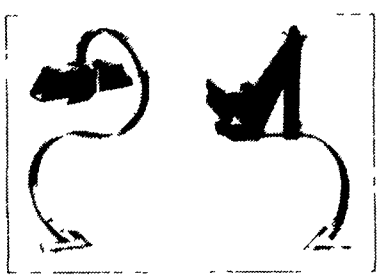
Non-Folding Models - 12 ft. to 15 ft.

Folding Flex Wing Models - 18 ft. to 36 ft.

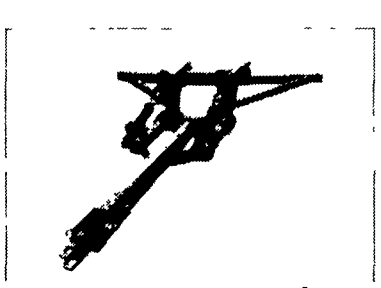
Preparing a seedbed used to take a lot of time, a lot of fuel, and a lot of money.

But now there's a smarter way to get the job done — with a Krause Landsman. It's a unique tillage implement that discs, incorporates chemicals (either deep or shallow), cultivates, and finishes all at once — to prepare your seedbeds with just one pass.

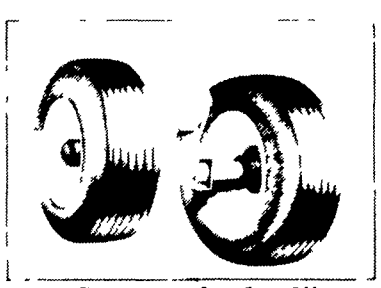
Built with heavy-duty features like these:



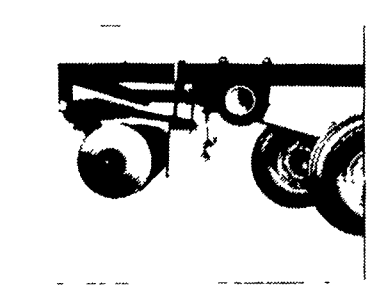
Choice of two cultivator shanks, both offering 25" of clearance under frame... Spring-cushioned shanks have rear-mounted shock and come with 10" sweeps. Heavy-duty "K-Tine™" shanks feature a high point load to keep sweeps level and still provide aggressive mixing action.



Massive hitch is an extra-heavy design, proven on Krause disc harrows. It is spring-cushioned to reduce frame stress on uneven ground — a feature most competitors don't offer. Built from heavy 4"x6" steel tubing.



Walking tandem wheels flex over obstacles individually and follow contour of the land for uniform working depth. Staggered only 18" so you can make tight turns without harmful side loading. Regreaseable bearings.



Wide incorporation area is provided in the 42" space between disc gang and front row of field cultivator shanks. Lots of room for mounting herbicide equipment. Flexible rubber spray shields are optional for high-speed application.

JOHN DEERE D·A·Y

GREAT MOMENTS IN THE MAKING

John Deere Day is back! In 1937 farmers attended the premier of what would become John Deere tradition — John Deere Day, the forerunner of Farming Frontiers. Now, John Deere Day returns, celebrating 50 years of films, entertainment, product information, prizes and fun.

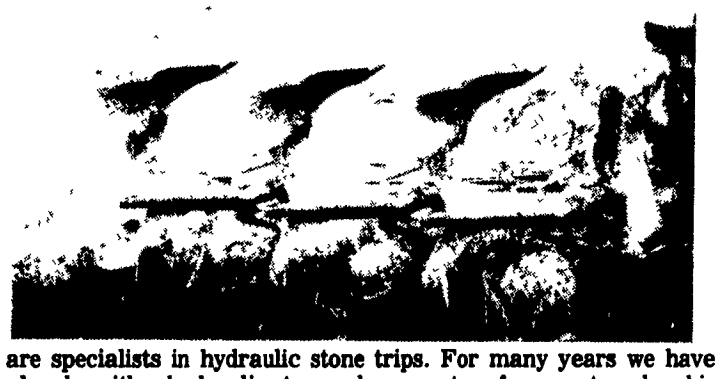
NEW! The Plough You've Been Asking For!

ÖVERUM MOUNTED ROLL-OVER 2 WAY PLOUGHS

With Hydraulic Reset Stone Release System. Available In 2-4 Bottoms

Down To Earth Economy - Affordable Prices!



Overum are specialists in hydraulic stone trips. For many years we have manufactured ploughs with a hydraulic stone release system for non-stop ploughing in all conditions. All the parts in the frame, the beams, bodies, etc. are chosen to give maximum strength and durability to the plough.

Overum mounted reversible ploughs turn over smoothly and safely. The centre of gravity is close to the tractor to reduce the lifting power required. High clearance when turning over is achieved by turning the bodies under the frame.

The pressure required to trip the hydraulic stone release system can be adjusted to suit ploughing conditions. Also in very heavy conditions the hydraulic cylinders can be repositioned to further increase tripping resistance.

NEW IDEA

Continuous movement makes a big difference in T-L performance.

Does each tower on your pivot system move continuously? They do on a T L And, that's important especially with the concentrated water patterns of low pressure systems for irrigation-applied fertilizer herbicides and pesticides.

With a T L system, a constant flow of hydraulic power keeps each tower moving continuously in unison with others. Water application is more uniform and efficient The drive system lasts longer without the stress of frequent stops and starts. In addition the steady pull of a T L gives better traction through wet spots and over rough terrain.

MULTIDISC MOWER

GMD

KUHN Multidisk Mowers are produced in 4, 5 and 6 disk versions and save valuable time by having the ability to mow at high speeds without clogging and with excellent cut regardless of crop height or density.
All KUHN mowers are fitted with original KUHN oval disks which ensure that as soon as the grass is cut it is immediately pulled over the bar and left in an even fluffy swath ideal for quick drying.

SI-LO-FAME®

THREE YEAR UNIVERSITY
RESEARCH
VALIDATES

that SI-LO-FAME® does effect the preservation of ensiled alfalfa-grass silage with subsequent effect upon dry matter consumption, milk production in dairy cows and on forage chemical components

RESULTS ARE:
1. More Milk in the Tank
2. More Fat in the Milk
3. Less Weight Loss during Early Lactation
4. Improved Silage Palatability

Take the gamble out of making silage today . . . use SI-LO-FAME® for positive fermentation control.

THE NEW ROUND BALE WRAPPER

Round Bale Wrapping — An Economical Efficient Method Of Making Silage

This is the Silawrap system:

- The lift-arm places the bale on the turn table.
- Silawrap film is then attached to one of the bale strings.
- As the turn table is rotating, the rollers will slowly turn the bale.
- The Silawrap film is stretched around the bale overlapping 2-3-4 or 5 times according to the setting of the gears.
- The film is cut, film end secured and bale tipped off.

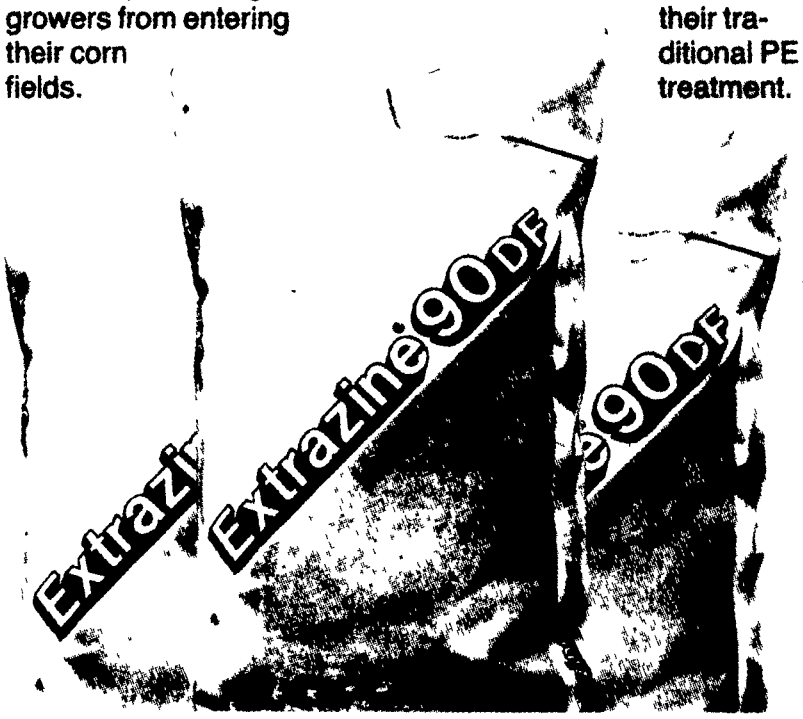
EXTRAZINE® 90 DF THE GROWERS' CHOICE FOR AN EARLY START.

Growers who use EXTRAZINE® 90DF™ herbicide early preplant (EPP), 2-4 weeks before planting, report the head start ends weed problems and saves money. No longer do they face later potential problems with preemergence (PE) treatments (soil too wet to work, too dry to activate herbicide, weeds too tall for foliar kill.) They also see EXTRAZINE EPP burn down weeds, ending the need for costly contact treatments.

By applying EXTRAZINE EPP, growers take full advantage of earlier spring rains to activate EXTRAZINE, unleashing its highly effective weed killing action on both grasses and broadleaves. Meanwhile, on untreated fields at this time, problem weeds can be emerging and flourishing everywhere. And the rains are preventing those growers from entering their corn fields.

Planting Day! The effective weed kill of EXTRAZINE EPP lets growers plant into a clean seedbed. But other growers are in trouble, because the early rains have produced heavy weed growth. Now they're busy either discing or applying a costly contact and preemerge treatment—hoping to get some burndown and rain to activate their traditional PE treatment.

Weeks after the treatment of EXTRAZINE EPP, growers watch their young corn thriving in a weed-free field. On other planted fields, growers are still waiting for rain, while new weeds are emerging and competing for moisture. No wonder growers are switching to EXTRAZINE EPP. Backed by a performance agreement, EXTRAZINE assures commercially acceptable weed control. See your participating dealer for details.



Use as directed.

Lamb And Wool Queen Addresses Cumberland Shepherds

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams County Correspondent

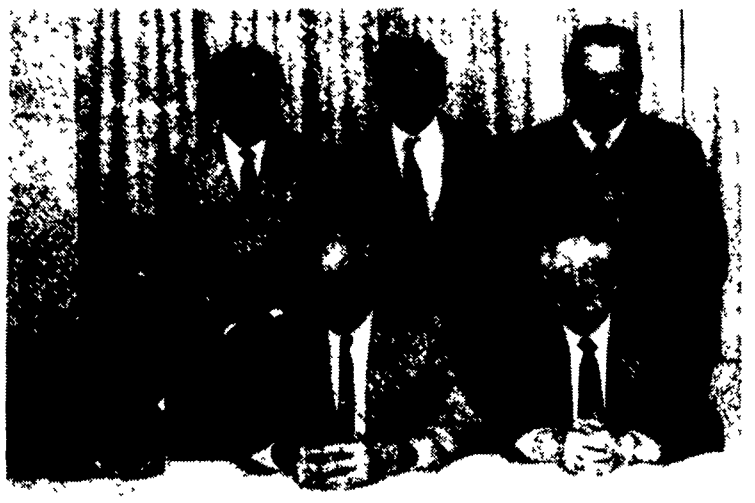
BOILING SPRINGS — "One of the most important things I learned being a Lamb and Wool Queen was that I could have done alot of promoting without the crown and sash. Promotion can be simple. It's a matter of getting the product to people. Why not offer our product to someone who's never tried it? You might be surprised how well it works. Remember, your lambs aren't just miracles; they're money."

So challenged Carol Perry, 17, the daughter of John and Audrey Perry, Newville, as she addressed the 100-plus members and guests at the 54th Annual Meeting of the Cumberland Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers, held Feb. 23 at the South Middleton Firehall, Boiling Springs.

Perry was recognized at the banquet for her promotional efforts on behalf of the sheep industry with a special presentation from the Cooperative's president, Robert Holtry.

In his remarks as president, Holtry reported that in 1986 the Cumberland Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers marketed 77,615 pounds of wool through their wool pool. This wool sold for the third highest price of the eight other pools with which it was marketed.

Cumberland Cooperative Lamb and Wool Queen Carol Perry received a gift for her promotional efforts at the group's annual meeting. Making the presentation was co-op president Robert Holtry.



Newly elected co-op directors are (standing, 1-r) Ben Bow, Steve Murdock and Marlin Rook. Officers are (seated, 1-r) Donna Duncan, sec.-treasurer; Robert Holtry, president; Credon Bixler, vice president.

Holtry encouraged the wool producers to pack their product with pride. This necessitates the use of only paper twine rather than plastic twine when bundling and shearing wool only when it is dry and in a clean area.

He announced that the 1987 pool will be held on June 17 at the Carlisle Fairgrounds.

County Extension director Duane Duncan gave a brief presentation on pasture management. Duncan advised regular soil testing and following prescribed application rates for nitrogen, phosphorus, and potassium to enhance the pasture's profitability in flock management. Duncan referred the shepherds to the new Penn State Agronomy Guide for a more detailed plan of enhanced pasture care.

Officers, directors, and auditors were elected as follows: president, Robert Holtry, vice-president, Credon Bixler, secretary-treasurer, Donna Duncan.

Directors elected were Scott Murdock, Steven Ebersole, Kenneth Staver, Marlin Rook, and Ben Bow. Auditors: John Holtry, Mark Bucher, and John Burkholder.

Prior to the Business Meeting, the group enjoyed an evening banquet featuring roast lamb as the main course. The lamb was purchased by the Cooperative especially for this meal at the 1987 Farm Show Junior Market Lamb Sale.

Keystone Jr. Beef Classic Set For Memorial Day

MEADVILLE — The Northwest Keystone Junior Beef Classic, the largest spring junior beef show east of the Mississippi River, will be held over Memorial Day Weekend at the Crawford County Fairgrounds, Meadville. This is the third year for the all-breed heifer and steer show which last year saw young cattlemen and women from five states exhibit nearly 300 head at the two day event.

The show is designed as a kick-off for the summer show season and gives youths, under 21 an opportunity to enter competition drawn from a larger area than usually seen at the county fairs in which they compete during the summer.

This year, on Saturday evening, Classic exhibitors will have an opportunity to watch a rodeo which will be underway at the fairgrounds. Other cattle-related events will take place through Saturday afternoon.

But the real excitement occurs Sunday, when the steers and breeding classes are judged. The Classic is following a nationwide trend and steers will be judged by breed. Cash prizes and trophies will be awarded as a grand and reserve champion steer will be chosen from breeds represented. Crossbred steers will also compete for premiums to be paid in all steer classes, as well as for grand and reserve trophies. A supreme champion steer will then be named; the overall show champion and a cash jackpot will be paid to this winner.

In the breeding show, premiums will be paid for all classes and trophies will be awarded for grand champion, reserve champion and bred and owned for each of the breeds as well as for an unrestricted "commercial" class. Showmanship will be recognized for exhibitors in three age levels of competition.

Additional information about the 1987 Classic is being prepared for mailing to past participants and breed associations. For information see your county agent or write to the Keystone Junior Beef Classic Committee, c/o Bob Calvert, Mercer County Extension Office, Mercer, PA 16137.

It's Calving Time Again

Calving time is probably the most critical time of the year for the cow/calf producer and the time of the year to have calves born is a most important decision.

The Pennsylvania cow/calf producer should plan his breeding program so that his calves will be at a most desirable marketable weight at weaning time in late September and October. The commercial calf producer should strive for an average weaning weight of 500 pounds or better Hopefully, this weight can be achieved in about seven months. This then means a calving season of February, March and April. Calves dropped during this period will be ready to take the increased milk flow when their mothers are turned into lush spring pasture, and the cows will not require the amount of additional winter feed that would be necessary for earlier winter calving.

For calving at this time of year, calving areas should be provided where the cow and calf can be protected from severe weather and also be away from the rest of the herd. This area should be clean, dry, well bedded and free from drafts.

During calving season, the cow herd should be checked frequently during the calving period. Any cow/calf producer should be capable and willing to give needed assistance to a cow having calving difficulties. When in doubt, it is usually good judgement to call the veterinarian to avoid complications that may arise. It is important that each cow in your herd raise a calf each year, therefore take all precautions to insure a live calf at birth.

Below I have listed a number of management points to attend to during calving season. Good luck this calving season!

1. Check the cow herd regularly. Give calving assistance if and when needed.
2. See that the newborn calf gets its stomach full of the first milk, colostrum.
3. First calf heifers should have special attention.
4. Apply iodine to the navel soon after each calf is born.
5. Identify each calf with an ear tag and/or tatoo.
6. Weigh calves at birth.
7. Record all pertinent information including any special notes such as difficult calving, no milk, will not own calf, etc. This information is necessary for performance testing records.
8. Attempt to adopt a calf on any cow that loses a calf. When foster calves are brought in they should be isolated from the rest of the herd to avoid bringing in infections.
9. Separate the cows that are calved from those that have not.
10. Increase feed to those cows and heifers that have calved.
11. Make sure that calves nurse regularly. Keep cows clean, because calves hesitate to nurse dirty teats.
12. Be sure that cows clean after calving. Call a veterinarian to clean cows that have not cleaned within three days after calving.
13. If coustic or electric dehorners are used, the job should be done within three or four days after birth.
14. Provide a clean, dry, well bedded creep area for calves.
15. Make decisions on your new breeding program regarding A. I. or natural sires.

RCC Royal Baron, owned by Royal Charolais Co. of Greensburg, was reserve champion bull at Dixie National Livestock Show.

Royal Wins At Dixie National

JACKSON, Miss. — Fifty-four entries made up the Charolais Roll of Excellence Show at this year's Dixie National Livestock Show in Jackson, Miss. Dr. Jack Shanks of Clemmons, N.C., judged the well-attended Feb. 16 event.

In the 25-head bull show, Dr. Shanks selected senior champion HVR Sheer Power I as grand champion. The June 1984 son of Sir Stone Del King Jr 019 is owned by Bob Evans Hidden Valley Ranch of Bidwell, Ohio, Stone-Del Farms of Hartville, Ohio, and Fieldburg Quality Charolais of Bindloss, Alta., Can.

The reserve grand champion, RCC Royal Baron, came out of the Senior division also. He's a March 1984 son of Sir Stone-Del King Jr 029 and is owned by McFadden Charolais of Lafayette, Ind., Royal Charolais Co. of Greensburg, Pa., Ponderosa Charolais of Veedersburg, Ind., and Nord Farms of Bloomington, Ill.

Perfection Charolais of Warsaw, Ind., brought out Perfections Jitterbug ET to top the female show. This senior calf champion is an October 1985 daughter of Paramont Trademark 2137. Moving into the reserve grand champion slot was the junior calf, LK Sweet Jackie Babe 601. Dewey Charolais of Cimmaron, Kan., owns this April yearling daughter of Roxy's Jack Dempsey.

Polled Hereford Sale Averages $12,000

JACKSON, Miss. — A 15-lot consignment brought rapid bidding in the final event of the 64th National Polled Hereford Convention-Show-Sale. The National Sale, held Feb. 19, drew an offering from across North America for a tally of $185,050. Breeders rang in a $12,337 overall average, with nine bulls at $16,483, and the six females at $6,117.

The champion sale bull took home the day's highest price tag at $103,000. Beartooth Ranch, Columbus, Mont., and Myrtlewood Farms, Lexington, Ky., put Myrtlewood Slew 439 on the auction block. Full interest in the Myrtlewood Titlest son went to Hanson Polled Herefords, Eugene, Ore., Justamere Farms Ltd., Lloydminster, Sask.; Santa Fe River Ranch, Alachua, Fla.; Myrtlewood Farms; Diamond J Farms, Balko, Okla.; and Rock Hill Farm, Cambridge, Ohio.

Racking up top dollars on the female slate was HVH Nickole. Jennifer Loewen of Waukomis, Okla., consigned a JR Nick The Butler P183 daughter after she won the reserve senior champion heifer title in the National Show. McLemore Polled Herefords of Walls, Miss., nabbed her for $13,100.

Economist Presents Ag Overview At P.L. Rohrer Meeting

SMOKETOWN — Penn State Extension agricultural economist Louis Moore gave farmers an overview of the ag situation, past, present and future, at a customer appreciation dinner hosted by P.L. Rohrer and Brother, Inc., at the Good 'N Plenty restaurant here Monday evening.

Moore pointed out that, while agriculture remains mired in its own recession, the rest of the nation's economy is basking in a growth period that began in 1982. That's the longest economic recovery that the country has experienced since World War II.

Despite its current straits, agriculture has played no small part in the overall recovery, said the economist. Food is cheap in the United States, Moore said, pointing out that Americans spend only 15 percent of their income to eat, while the figure is 37 percent in the USSR and 60 percent in China. "I think this is a great tribute to American farmers," Moore said.

While each farmer fed 15 Americans in the 1950s, new technologies have enabled the farmer to feed 80 people today. Biotechnology will continue to make farmers more efficient in the future, but the flip side is that more farmers will be shouldered out of their way of life.

Increases in production efficiency coupled with flagging export markets have resulted in today's huge surpluses, said Moore, pointing to this year's projected corn surplus of 5.7 billion bushels.

In the wake of overproduction has come plummeting farmland prices, particularly in the cornbelt. Since 1981, farmland values have dropped 59 percent in Iowa. But while farmland in Pennsylvania has declined 15 percent in value statewide, areas such as the southeastern part of the state have actually seen land prices increase as residential and industrial development outbids agriculture for its cropland.

Despite its problems, there are some upbeat stories in agriculture, Moore said. For one thing, cheap grain is making life easier for livestock producers. While the economist projects an overall 4 percent decrease in red meat production this year, broiler production will increase 6 percent and turkeys will increase by a dramatic 15 percent. The dairy business is moving closer to the realities of the marketplace, with production down 3½ percent and consumption up 3 percent.

Lancaster County continues as the Pennsylvania's frontrunner, accounting for 22 percent of the state's cash agricultural receipts. The county remains in the number-one spot among all nonirrigated counties in the nation, said Moore.

Moore reminded his audience that Pennsylvania is the right place for farmers to be. The state's strengths include its proximity to markets, its strong agribusiness firms and lending institutions and its agricultural diversity. Also important is the fact that the state is not overly dependent on export markets.

Following the keynote speaker's presentation, the firm honored customers who excelled in the 1986 5-Acre Corn and Alfalfa programs. Harold Bleacher and Sons of Conestoga placed first in the county and third in the state in the 3-acre shelled corn division. Planting AgriPro's AP-510 variety, the Bleachers harvested 179.8 bushels per acre. To fertilize the corn they used Ortho Unipel 2488 in a planter application and no manure was applied.

Paul and Dick Rohrer of Paul H. Rohrer and Sons were cited for outstanding alfalfa production. The family not only topped Region 1 (southeast) in the Alfalfa Growers program, but they took reserve champion honors in the state as well. The Rohrers harvested 9.55 tons from their stand of Arrow in its first full harvest year and were able to make five cuttings. The stand was topdressed after the first cut with Rohrer's 5-10-41 Gro-Pel, and topdressed once more with potash after the last cutting.

Dairy Nutrition Discussed At F.M. Brown's Sons Meeting

BIRDSBORO — Do you know how much protein your milking cows are receiving or how much zinc they are getting? Do you know that in certain diets live yeast culture can aid feed intake and rumen fermentation? Do you know you can develop a very cheap diet that's "balanced" using such ingredients as oat straw and blood meal? These were all items discussed at recent F. M. Brown's Sons Customer Meetings. Feature speakers included Dr. LaVerne Schugel, vice-president of Zinpro; Ralph Lydman, regional marketing director of Diamond V Mills; Dr. Carl Brown, sales manager at Brown's; Dr. Thomas Kichura, director of nutrition at Brown's; and Fred Mohr, manager of Brown's Seed Division.

Dr. Brown introduced the program by discussing the meetings theme "Dairy Nutrition - The Basics Are Important But There Is So Much More". He cited several significant items which encourage Brown's to be optimistic about the future of Animal Agriculture in Pennsylvania and New Jersey including strong regional demand, increases in customer production efficiency, positive effects of product promotion, declining interest rates, and profitable price ratios between milk/meat prices and feed costs. As an example of these positive effects Dr. Brown recognized that 1986 marked the first year a customer on Brown's Feeds surpassed the 900 pound mark in herd average butterfat production, but he then went on to show that unless high herd records are made by good management practices such as maximizing forage intake, the net economic effects can actually be negative. He challenged customers to use the large amount of nutritional information available on Brown's Maximum Profit Dairy Ration Balancing Programs.

The philosophy at Brown's is that the more you know about your feeding program the more that we can assist you in fine tuning it. Dr. Brown then proceeded to show where such values as dry matter intake, crude protein, energy, fiber, major minerals, vitamins, and trace mineral levels could be found on the Brown's Nutritional Printout. In addition, he pointed out ways to make better use of the economic evaluation that accompanies each Brown's ration printout. These printouts take Brown's feeding programs beyond the basics.

Trace Minerals

Dr. LaVerne Schugel, a veterinarian from Minnesota, followed with an in depth discussion of trace minerals in dairy feeding. He emphasized that for certain trace minerals toxicity can be just as important as deficiencies. He reviewed the importance of cobalt, copper, iodine, iron, manganese, and zinc citing examples of deficiency symptoms in each. He singled out iodine as one of the most important to be in balance since low levels affect thyroid function while high levels interfere with the animals immune system and its ability to respond to infection. Selenium is also of major importance in the East, but he stressed that for selenium to function, Vitamin E

Special Alfalfa Drying Process Has Finicky Horses Whinnying For More

BATH — Most farmers would agree on the importance of producing good hay, but few would be as emphatic as Robert Jones, who has been making a living at making hay for almost 20 years.

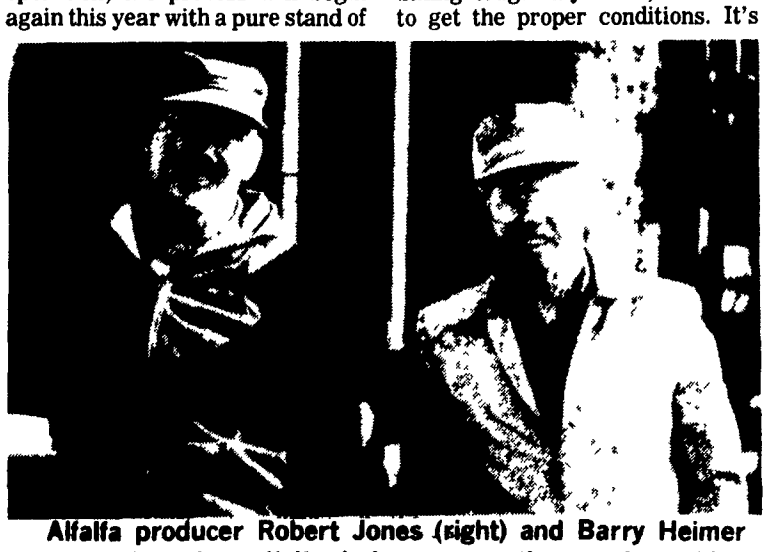
Jones lives outside of the Northampton County town of Bath in an area where a number of farmers have fine-tuned a drying process that produces hay fit for the fussiest of barnyard palates.

"This is an alfalfa area," Jones reported. "There is really a lot of artificial drying that got started here."

For himself and 30-year employee Barry Heimer, who now rents the Jones farm and runs the operation, the process will begin again this year with a pure stand of WL 316 alfalfa on 270 acres. The alfalfa will be carefully managed throughout the growing season and, after each of four cuttings, will be baled the next day at 25 to 30 percent moisture.

It will then be placed on pallets and inserted with a fork lift into one of three specially modified heat dryers. The bales will be kept inside the dryers, at 170 degrees, for 24 to 36 hours. The result of the process will be hay that Jones and Heimer guarantee to be among the finest on the market — tender and free of dust and mold.

"If you field dry," Jones explained, "the alfalfa will shatter when you bale it and you'll be baling tough hay. Also, it's hard to get the proper conditions. It's very hard to make good hay. Our process takes a lot of the gambling out of it. You can cut it one day and bale it the next."



Alfalfa producer Robert Jones (right) and Barry Heimer have perfected an alfalfa drying process that produces high quality baled hay for horses.

Most of the hay is delivered to horse farms, where high-priced animals enjoy the best meal on the menu. Jones said horses are even more finicky than cows when it comes to the quality of their hay. "You can make hay that has high protein that does not look too good, but cows will eat it," he said. "Horses, though, they get touchy."

The heat-drying process, according to Jones is not new; but the type being done in his area is a unique system developed in nearby Coplay, Lehigh County, by Stanley Kokolus. Jones said he, Kokolus and other farmers took crop dryers that have since gone out of manufacture and modified them to save labor and time. The oil-burning driers hold about 600 bales each. "Everybody's set-up is a little different," Jones said. "Everybody made changes that were best for them."

He built his dryer in 1969, one year before he began planting all alfalfa. Previously, he had been rotating crops, growing alfalfa for one year and then following it with potatoes.

While the heat-drying process has forged a valuable niche in the region's agriculture, for Jones and the other farmers the alfalfa itself is also an important part of the story, according to Jones. Except for about 30 acres that have recently been put into a one-year rotation with wheat, the farm has been continuously planted with alfalfa since 1970, Jones reported. Because of that, a disease-resistant variety is important, he said. For him, that variety has been WL 316, distributed exclusively in the region by Beachley-Hardy Seed Company of Shiremanstown. "For us, it yields good and the stand persists," Jones said. "And it wouldn't last four years if we didn't have disease resistance."

For about the past 10 years, Jones and Heimer have run alfalfa plots of 18 different varieties in cooperation with the county extension service. "The W-Ls have always done really well," Jones said. "I get to see a lot of hay, and I notice that the W-Ls always look good in the bales. It makes good hay."

Shoop Tops National Contest

MILTON — Gerald Shoop of Milton has placed first in the 1986-87 Pennsylvania 25 Acre Machine Harvest National Corn Growers Shelled Corn Contest with a certified yield of 196.38 bushels.

Shoop planted NC+ Hybrids #6881 seed to produce a yield that is expected to place in the top 10 non-irrigated fields nationally.

Shoop has been using NC+ Hybrids for several years and purchases his seed through Sam must be adequate. He stressed that when you are working with a trace mineral such as selenium, which is needed in hundredth's of parts per million, there is a narrow range between adequate levels and toxic levels which may be either acute or sub-acute.

The remainder of Dr. Schugel's talk centered around zinc. As vice president of Zinpro, much of his time is devoted to this specific nutrient. Over 200 enzyme systems need zinc to function. It is also important in hormone production, energy metabolism, taste, smell, feed intake, the bodies immune system, growth, reproduction, and lactation. While zinc deficiencies are generally subclinical, they often do exist. Zinc absorption even when adequate in the diet, may be affected by high levels of calcium, phosphorus, phytate, and fiber each commonly found in dairy rations. Zinpro is a complex of zinc and the amino acid methionine. Because of its' structure it bypasses rumen breakdown, but is quickly digested in the true stomach. Zinpro, in a university study using a high producing herd, has been shown to reduce somatic cell problems and, as a direct result, increase milk production. It has also been shown that Zinpro in dairy and beef rations increases foot hardness and significantly reduces lameness. Some recent university work also documented that dairy cows fed Zinpro had higher circulating levels of B-Carotene which may, in turn, lead to better reproductive performance.

Corn Production

Fred Mohr, seed sales manager for Brown's, followed the general theme of the day with his talk on corn production. He reviewed the basics of how the plant grows and stressed that achieving good growth and selecting the right varieties were keys to providing adequate nutrition to dairy cows. He reviewed the importance of applying nitrogen after the crop was up and during its most rapid growth phase. He also stressed the need to begin harvest early to minimize field loss and reduce one common problem, over maturity of the crop at the end of the harvest season.

Yeast Culture

Ralph Lydman, regional sales manager of Diamond V Yeast Culture challenged dairymen to "Put Life In Your Feeds" with yeast culture. Diamond V Live Yeast Culture is the end result of a fermentation process. About 5 percent of the product is live cells while the other 95 percent contains the medium on which the fermentation occurred. This medium includes many fermentation byproducts such as B vitamins, enzymes, and unidentified nutritional factors not found in products containing only live yeast cells. It is a highly palatable product which helps manage rumen bugs, particularly fiber digestors. Lydman cited Utah research showing that yeast culture in the diet improved nitrogen retention in the rumen. In several studies run by feed companies in the northeastern United States, yeast culture improved persistency which resulted in increased milk yield.

Dr. Thomas Kichura concluded the meeting by surprising those is attendance with a ration consisting of oat straw, shelled corn, blood meal and minerals. He then went on to show that even though such a ration is balanced for protein, fiber, energy, and minerals it is a ration no cow would milk on. His point was that balancing a dairy ration involves so much more than just numbers crunching.

WHY

UNIPEL® 20-10-10

fits so many corn fields:

It's 2-1-1 ratio is good for corn fields with a good Phosphate/Potash balance - a UNIPEL single application fertilizer for quick & easy Spring fertilization. Apply through your corn planter or broadcast 20-10-10 this Spring to provide quick availability of nitrate Nitrogen for early - planted corn in cool soils, to give it a quick growth "kick". You'll also provide long lasting Nitrogen for continued growth promotion through the growing season.

If there ever was a fertilizer you could call "The Reliable One", it's Unipel 20-10-10. How can we fit it into your Spring fertility program?

Ciba-Geigy Videos Aid Farmers

GREENSBORO, N.C. — There's help on the way for growers who are looking for methods to increase profits and return on investment, options to reduce the risks inherent in farming, and/or ways to add flexibility and convenience to an otherwise labor-intensive way of life through two new crop production video programs.

The videotapes, provided by the Ciba-Geigy Corporation, introduce some concepts for growers to consider, especially during times when margins between input costs and crop prices aren't expected to improve.

First, "Managing To Reduce Risk And Increase Return On Investment" is a financial video symposium that includes seven segments and live, pencil-and-calculator, hands-on applications. A detailed workbook outlines areas to be considered in order to increase efficiency, including: 1) cost containment and profitability, 2) soil management, 3) fertility practices, 4) innovations in weed control, 5) seed selection, and 6) working with your ag lender.

The video segments feature well-known university researchers, lenders and other industry leaders, who share their thoughts on improved productivity and profits.

In addition to the video workshop, Ciba-Geigy has produced a new videotape, entitled "The Early Advantage." Growers, farm managers, consultants and university researchers from across the U.S. discuss the cost, labor and time advantages of early preplant (EPP) application of herbicides like Dual and Bicep.

Growers who are interested in these videos should contact their local ag chemical supplier or Ciba-Geigy representative.

W-L Varieties Take Honors In State Alfalfa Growers Program

SALISBURY, Md. – Farmers who planted W-L alfalfa varieties produced the best pure alfalfa stands last year in three of four regions in the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers Program. In addition, W-L growers won a first-place regional alfalfa grass award and a regional second place for pure alfalfa.

The Alfalfa Growers awards program, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council, was held Feb. 9 at the State College Elks.

The most productive W-L stand was that of dairymen Frank, Tom and Rick Telesz, of Volant, Lawrence County, who harvested 7.95 tons per acre from their pure alfalfa field planted with WL 315.

The Region 4 winners' crop also yielded 3,144 pounds of crude protein and 8,872 pounds of total digestible nutrients per acre.

For the Teleszs, it was the second year in a row they took an award in the program. Last year, brothers Frank and Tom, and nephew Rick, placed second in the region with a field separated by a driveway from the new winner. Both are three-year-old stands.

Butler County's Norman H. Graham, of Evans City R2, came through with the top pure alfalfa stand in Region 3. Graham, a dairy farmer, used WL 320 to achieve a yield of 6.33 tons with 2,630 pounds crude protein and 7,215 pounds TDN. His award-winning stand was established in 1985.

The top alfalfa grass from Region 3 was that of C. Lee Caldwell, of Beaver Falls in Beaver County. Caldwell's WL 313 and rye grass combination yielded 6.77 tons to the acre with 2,453 pounds crude protein and 7,248 pounds TDN.

In Region 2, dairy farmer John Reid Rodgers, of Plum Bottom Farm in Belleville, Mifflin County, won the pure alfalfa stand competition with a field that produced 7.03 tons, 2,917 pounds crude protein and 7,842 pounds TDN. Rodgers planted the field in 1985 with WL 316.

Taking second place in Region 2 for his pure alfalfa was Robert Truckenmiller of Northumberland County, who harvested 7.28 tons per acre from his stand of WL 316.

John Tautin, a Region 4 grower from Crawford County, finished in the top 10 percent of the program, with a 6.47 yield from his pure stand of WL 316. This same field won last year's Region 4 championship with a 7.81 yield per acre on some of the state's most difficult growing soil. In four years of competition.

Looking ahead to next year's competition, one entry to watch will be that of Harold, Mark and Grant Gayman of Gaymere Farm, Waynesboro. The Gayman's recorded a yield of 5.41 tons off a new seeding of WL 316, the highest yield of any new seedings entered in the competition.

W-L alfalfa is distributed exclusively in the area by Beachley-Hardy Seed Company.

COUNTER® In-Furrow.

Windproof Studies show that wind can seriously affect the placement of your insecticide during banded application. Winds of only 10 mph can blow granules as much as 20 inches off the row. And a 20 mph wind can put your insecticide off-target by 30 inches or more.

But even 30 mph winds don't affect the accurate placement of COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide applied in-furrow. So you put all of your protection where it's needed most.

Rainproof With in-furrow application, your valuable insecticide is working beneath the surface, where it's protected from heavy rains.

Proven Performance COUNTER controls more major corn pests than any other product. It's the broadest-spectrum control you can get.

CORN PESTS CONTROLLED—IN-FURROW APPLICATION

	Corn Rootworms	Seed Corn Maggots	Seed Corn Beetles	Wireworms	Symphylans	White Grubs	Flea Beetles	Billbugs	Cutworms	Nematodes	Lesser Cornstalk Borers

Based on available published labels as of 9/1/86 Based on 6 oz per 1000 ft of row (15 G) and 6 oz per 1000 ft of row (20 G)

Since 1975, university tests have shown that banded or in-furrow, no other corn soil insecticide outperforms COUNTER in controlling rootworms, wireworms and the complex of other corn pests.

So there's no need to periodically take chances with a less effective corn insecticide.

Put your money where your crop is. Go in-furrow. With COUNTER.

Eastern Milk Producers Launch Fifth Dairy Store

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative has opened a dairy store in Fulton.

A ribbon-cutting on Feb. 20 officially launched Eastern's fifth retail outlet. The other stores, all opened in the past four years, are located in Newark, N.Y.; and in Canton, Troy and Wellsboro, Pa.

"This new store represents another leap forward for our very successful Dairy Products Division, which expects to exceed $8 million in sales this year," Eastern General Manager Michael Donovan said.

Eastern president Earl Forwood, a dairy farmer from Hop Bottom, Pa., noted that the Dairy Products Division began six years ago as a products-to-members delivery service consisting of a pickup truck and two products, cheese and butter. The service quickly grew, Forwood said, and expanded into retail dairy stores as well as a fleet of trucks delivering more than 250 products to rural customers in 11 states.

The co-op's Dairy Products Division, led by Manager Thad Woodward, is operated out of a complex in Canton, Pa.

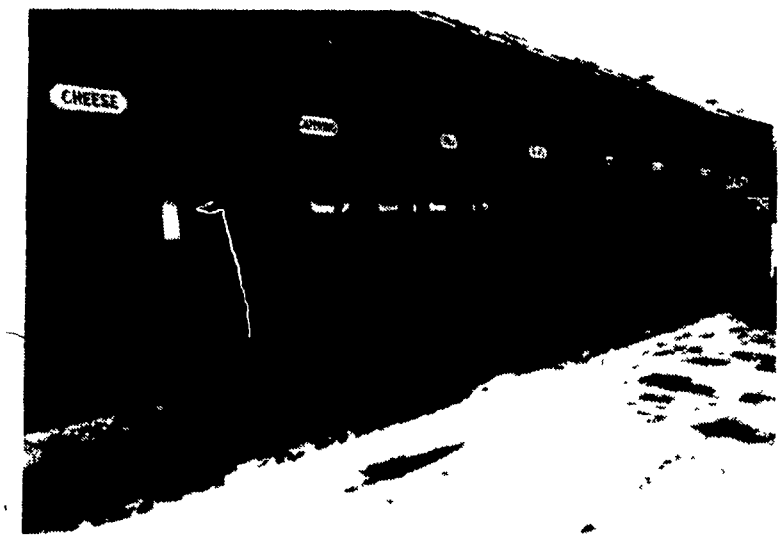
As the retail and product distribution arm of Eastern, the division experienced $7.1 million in sales in the 1986 fiscal year, noted Eastern Director Charles Freligh, a dairy farmer from Cayuga.

The cooperative as a whole, Freligh added, handled more than 2 billion pounds of milk in fiscal '86, recording $324 million in sales.

The new store in Fulton, N.Y., boasts a full-service deli and a take-out lunch counter as well as a complete array of dairy products. The store will employ up to seven people. The manager is Mike McConnell, who also manages the Newark store.

In conjunction with the opening, Dairy Products Division Manager Thad Woodward announced the appointment of Kirt Roe as store group manager to oversee the operation and future growth of retail stores.

Roe is a former store manager and regional supervisor for Hickory Farms. He resides in Horseheads, with his wife, Patricia, and 6-year-old son, Kirt. They plan to relocate to Canton, Pa.



Eastern Milk Producers recently opened their fifth dairy store in Fulton, N.Y.

Review Of Game Law Changes Available

HARRISBURG – Sportsmen, nature lovers and other individuals interested in Pennsylvania's game laws can obtain a free copy of the code from any of Sen. Chip Brightbill's district offices.

The book, published by the Pennsylvania Game Commission, outlines the Game Code and many of the revisions made last year by the Legislature which go into effect in July. For example, fines for killing animals of endangered species as well as more common and plentiful species have been increased significantly. Penalties for other violations of the code such as road hunting or spotlighting deer after hours have also been made more stringent.

Brightbill said many of the changes to the game laws were made at the request of Pennsylvania hunters who share a concern for the safety of other hunters and the future of our wildlife.

"Hunters should remain knowledgeable about the updated code before the laws take effect to eliminate the possibility of violations during the hunting season," Brightbill said.

Brightbill's district offices are located at: Room 307, Municipal Building, 400 South 8th Street, Lebanon 17042 (717-274-1641); 31 North 3rd Street, Hamburg 19526 (215-562-3411); 178 West Main Street, P.O. Box 352, Kutztown 19530 (215-683-9199); and 2 Spring Hill Drive, P.O. Box 235, Schnecksville 18078 (215-799-0187).

Dairymen, Cattlemen Team Up To Promote Cheeseburgers

BALTIMORE, Md. — America's dairy farmers are teaming up with the nation's cattlemen to promote cheeseburgers on an unprecedented scale.

Last year, consumers were urged to "Vote for the Perfect Cheeseburger." This year they are invited to "Build A Perfect Cheeseburger."

United Dairy Industry Association member organizations have contributed more than $3.6 million for the promotion. The Beef Industry Council and National Beef Board have provided additional funds. National Dairy Promotion and Research Board has converted two weeks of air time initially scheduled for "Cheese, Glorious Cheese" ads, to the special cheeseburger promotion advertising. This raises the promotion total to more than $5.7 million.

Grocery and supermarket display kits orchestrate the promotion throughout the dairy department, meat department, condiment aisle and bakery.

"We attempt to design our promotions so they affect a store's profitability on as wide a scale as possible," said Grover Simpson, vice president of Marketing Services for American Dairy Association. "From last year's experience, we learned that the cheeseburger theme provides an excellent vehicle for promoting the purchase of dozens of additional grocery items, such as pickles, ketchup, olives, buns, paper plates, lettuce and tomatoes. With a little imagination on the part of the 'cheeseburger builder,' the list could be endless. Our promotional materials feature ideas for eight deliciously different cheeseburgers to help spark consumer creativity."

Other program elements include an in-store display contest for grocery personnel in the dairy and meat departments and a consumer sweepstakes.

Advertising Campaign Features Animation

An intensive four-week advertising campaign, featuring a commercial developed specifically for the promotion, supports the entire program with a $3.75 million network TV buy. A new 30-second commercial, "Building Site," utilizes live product footage of cheeseburgers overlayed with animated construction characters.

Following a blueprint, the construction workers transport a variety of cheeses and toppings to erect a perfect cheeseburger. Consumers are seen rushing to their grocer's meat or dairy case to pick up a sweepstakes entry form.

Commercials are scheduled to begin the week of March 23 and run through April 20, 1987, appearing on both prime time and fringe segments.

Display and Point-of-Purchase Repeat Theme

The construction theme is continued in display and point-of-purchase materials. The animated figures measure cheese, transport stray olives and urge consumers to "Be a Brick (cheese) Carrier" or "Support It With Swiss."

Separate display kits have been developed for the dairy case and meat department. Each kit contains a mobile, two banners, and price channel cards. In addition, the dairy case kit includes four two-sided flags, two light traps and an 18-foot by 15-inch continuous roll to either wrap the dairy case or help build a free-standing display.

An estimated 27,500 or more stores nationwide will display the promotional materials.

Display Contest Offers Prizes

Retailers who construct a display utilizing the "Build A Perfect Cheeseburger" theme will be eligible to win merchandise prizes, such as a complete Fisher Audio System, microwaves, color TVs, Ducane Southfork Grill and many other prizes. Cheese industry representatives working with the retailer in building the winning displays are also eligible to win.

Meat department personnel are eligible to win merchandise prizes in a separate meat case display contest.

Consumers Can Win Sweepstakes

Finally, a national consumer sweepstakes will offer $250,000 worth of prizes. Television ads will urge consumers to find entry forms at their local grocery store.

Recipes for some of the cheeseburgers featured on the display materials are printed on one side of the entry form. To enter, consumers must send in two proofs-of-purchase of real domestic cheese.

Five grand prize winners will receive a complete outdoor entertainment set, including a gas grill, a portable screen house, lawn furniture, an electronic entertainment center, outdoor dinnerware, BBQ tools and a customized apron/mitt set.

American Dairy Association is the advertising and promotion division of United Dairy Industry Association. UDIA represents 95 percent of the nation's dairy farmers and 85 percent of milk marketed in the U.S.

Vitamin D, Calcium Work Together To Meet Body's Needs

NEWARK, Del. – Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin," long recognized as essential to bone growth, also plays a vital supporting role in the metabolism of calcium.

"If calcium is the 'star,' then vitamin D is the supporting actor," says Dr. Sue Snider, University of Delaware extension food and nutrition specialist. "Too little vitamin D can reduce calcium absorption and utilization. Too much vitamin D can cause deposits of excess calcium in the body."

"Because blood levels of calcium and phosphorus are lowered in vitamin D deficiency, the body will steal the needed calcium from the bones," Snider says. "In an adult, this situation can develop into painful bone fractures or osteoporosis." Recent research has also linked high blood pressure to low calcium levels.

Vitamin D is crucial for bone growth in children. Growing children with low levels of vitamin D can develop rickets, a bone disease that results in deformities of the ribs, chest and long bones of the leg. "A 10-state nutrition survey a few years ago showed that about 4 percent of children under six exhibit some vitamin D deficiency," Snider says.

"Because vitamin D is manufactured by the body in response to daylight, normal daily exposure to the sun provides a substantial percentage of the daily requirement," Snider says. "However, the elderly in nursing homes and individuals who are housebound or hospitalized are almost never in sunlight. They are the ones you have to worry about."

Individuals who live in the northern regions of the United States or in cloudy or smoggy areas can also suffer from insufficient sunlight exposure and thus a vitamin D deficiency.

Other causes of "D" deficiency can be gastrointestinal disorders that prevent the absorption of vitamin D, and liver and kidney diseases, Snider says. Sometimes antiseizure drugs prevent vitamin D from being converted to useful forms, too.

The Recommended Daily Allowance of vitamin D in the United States is 200 international units (5 micrograms) in adults. The RDA for children is twice that amount.

In addition to being manufactured naturally by the body, vitamin D can also be found in foods such as vitamin D fortified milk, egg yolk, liver, saltwater fish and certain animal fats. "Two glasses of milk a day will supply all the vitamin D you really need," the specialist says.

Snider points out that vitamin D can be toxic when taken in large doses. As little as 100 micrograms per day, when consumed over a period of time, can lead to kidney stones, muscle weakness, cardiac rhythm irregularities, hardening of blood vessels and other disorders. She urges individuals who take vitamin or calcium supplements to be careful to check the total micrograms of vitamin D in their supplements.

Six reasons why more Pennsylvania farmers use Reemay® than any other seedbed cover.

No tobacco seedbed cover gives you more advantages than economical DuPont REEMAY spunbonded polyester
Here's why

1. Low cost. REEMAY is one of the lowest-cost covers around
2. Less work. REEMAY is easy to put down It's just-right weight makes handling easy It stakes down securely, resists "ballooning" in wind
3. Low risk. REEMAY is po us Air and moisture pass freely through reducing danger of too much heat build-up
4. Excellent growth and vigor. Tests by a major U S school of agriculture show that you get large, hardy plants, because distribution of heat and moisture is even with REEMAY seedbed covers
5. Maximum number of transplants. The porosity of REEMAY assures uniform wetting, fewer bare spots and even germination throughout the bed
6. Withstands the elements. REEMAY won't rot, shrink or mildew

Telecommunications Expedite Information Handling For Dairymen

BY GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Some people say we're living in the age of communications today — meaning that after the ice age, stone age, bronze age, farming age and industrial age, mankind's visible preoccupation and accomplishment has become better and faster communications.

Of course, we've had newspapers for a long time, and the telegraph became an important long distance link over a hundred years ago.

Even the phone has been around for decades. But now we have satellites which allow almost instant phoning around the globe, and computers that can calculate long complicated data sets in fractions of a second to be transmitted almost as instantly by phone.

Where does this leave the mail?

For centuries, writing a letter or document on clay tablets, Egyptian papyrus rolls or medieval parchment for hand-delivering was the principal, most reliable and most lasting means of communication. Of course, service wasn't instant then — and still is not today — even though we now have overnight express mail in various forms for a higher price. However, the key to today's success story is instant communication.

Instant inside information provides a leading edge for a successful manager, and that is finally available even on the farm, including today's dairy farm. And this is the point I'm getting at.

It takes five years from the time a bull calf is born for a genetic bull proof to become known on that calf. However, the moment this proof becomes available it's in high demand for use in making instant management decisions.

Many other aspects of dairy records under the DHIA system or otherwise have instant value, if available, for better feeding, breeding, culling, calf raising — in short, everywhere they can help reduce losses and make money.

Everyone's now talking about having computers on the farm to help in this decision-making process. But what we really need is phone hook-ups or "modems" as they're called, to access large, central computers somewhere else, such as at a DHIA center, a weather station or an auction center.

We're now in the process of replacing the mail with computers and local typewriters which are connected by modems. That gives us instant communication and a new economic advantage.

Here in Delaware, we've already taken a few steps in this direction under the DHIA system. Normally, the DHIA supervisor collects cow record data once a month on each participating farm and then takes or mails them with the milk samples to a testing laboratory. There, the lab tests are added to the herd papers and mailed to the central DHIA computing center for processing. From there the records are finally returned to each farm by mail.

We have now eliminated one mailing step — transmitting the lab data to the computing center. Since June 1, 1986, our Delaware milk lab in Dover has been transmitting the lab data daily by phone to the Cornell University DHIA Computing Center.

What's the result?

It has already reduced by nearly half the average turn-around time of the cow data from and back to the farm. Between Jan. 1 and June 1, 1986, the turn-around time for records averaged 10 days for 200 Delaware dairy herds, tested during that period in Dover.

With the new computer/phone transmission, since June 1, 1986, it has taken an average of six days for the records from these same herds to be updated by the lab, sent to the computing center and returned to the farm.

And that's just the beginning.

Penn State Planted Seed Of Historic Ag Legislation

UNIVERSITY PARK – On March 2, America celebrates the 100th anniversary of the Hatch Act – landmark legislation which helped transform the nation into the world's breadbasket and marked the beginning of federal funding for scientific research at American universities.

But Congress might never have approved the act had not a Pennsylvania governor earlier rebuffed a Penn State president's request for a state version of the act.

"The farming communities of this state are absolutely indifferent about the existence of The Pennsylvania State College and do not believe it of any use," declared Governor Robert Pattison in July 1883.

He was explaining to Penn State President George W. Atherton why he vetoed a bill that would have established an agricultural experiment station at the college.

Farmers dismissed scientific agriculture–the application of scientific knowledge to the production of food and fiber–as "book farming." They preferred to work the land according to the ways of their forefathers.

The problem was that these ways were often grossly inefficient, based as much on phases of the moon as on logic.

Atherton believed an experiment station would persuade farmers to abandon superstition. It would produce scientific results skeptical farmers could see and touch about the best crop varieties, most effective fertilizers, and most nutritious animal feeds.

Stung by Pattison's veto, Atherton took his fight for an experiment station to the national level. With the help of presidents of land-grant colleges throughout the nation, he won.

His victory was the Hatch Act, which provided $15,000 annually to fund an experiment station in each state, in most cases affiliated with the state's land-grant institution.

In the century since its enactment, the Hatch Act has helped make American agriculture the world's most productive. Federal support for experiment stations has risen steadily, surpassing $300 million in the last fiscal year and including $6.2 million for the experiment station at Penn State.

"These funds have helped support about 250 projects involving more than 300 scientists in disciplines ranging from biophysics to plant pathology," said Lamartine F. Hood, dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture and director of the experiment station.

By contrast, the University's experiment station had a staff of four scientists in 1887.

"Many of our projects directly benefit not only the agricultural industry but the general public," said Hood. He cites as an example Penngift Crownvetch, a groundcover plant that the station released in 1953.

"Crownvetch has been widely adopted as a roadside conservation plant," Hood noted. "In Pennsylvania alone, we estimate it now saves taxpayers $1.6 million yearly in costs associated with mowing, weed control, and preventing soil erosion."

The Hatch Act also marked the first time the federal government guaranteed continuous financial aid for scientific research at American colleges and universities. That aid has grown tremendously and supports investigations in many fields besides agriculture.

Penn State's share of total federal research appropriations, for example, has increased from $15,000 to $83 million in the past 100 years.

The Hatch Act also assured the survival of America's land-grant colleges. When Congress created the land-grant system in 1862, one of its goals was to promote greater agriculturall efficiency through the application of scientific techniques.

Yet farmers, unconvinced of the value of science, had little faith in land-grant colleges. The Hatch Act changed their attitude and gave the colleges the grass roots political support they needed to survive.

Ironically, George Atherton, who was so instrumental in shaping the Hatch Act, is nearly forgotten.

He helped convince the U.S. Commissioner of Agriculture to call a meeting of land-grant college presidents in 1885. Gathering in the stifling summer heat of the nation's capital, the presidents chose Atherton and two others to work with sympathetic congressmen in drafting the proposed legislation. Atherton and his colleagues guided the bill through several drafts before Missouri Rep. William Hatch introduced the measure in the fall of 1886.

"George Atherton is unknown beyond Penn State, and even here he is remembered only for the imprint he left on this institution," noted Penn State archivist Leon Stout. Among the archives Stout oversees are about 20 cubic feet of Atherton's letters and other papers.

"Researchers have barely touched the surface of this extensive collection," said Stout. "Perhaps the Hatch Act centennial will spark greater interest in it, and Atherton's role as a national leader will get the attention it deserves."

Atlantic Breeders Co-op Honors York Dairymen

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — Eight York County dairy farms were honored last week during the District 6 meeting of Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, held Feb. 19 at Wisehaven Hall.

Certificates of recognition from the Lancaster-based semen-marketing cooperative went to dairy herds with 10 percent more than the state average in milk or fat and with at least two-thirds of the herd sired by Atlantic.

Recognized for achievement were Dan and Patti Hushon, Delta; Wayne Mummert, East Berlin; Shel-Bud Holsteins, Thomasville; Sinking Springs Farm, York; Paul King, Delta; Howard and Ralph Fetrow, York; Smysers Richlawn Farm, York; and Jim and Holly McCaffree, Delta.

In his report to members attending the annual meeting, District 6 director Paul King said Atlantic's key goal is to maintain a stable financial base to operate the cooperative. With 1986 closing out as a successful business year, revolving equity will be returned to the co-op's members.

Member relations director Alan Bair echoed King's positive report, noting that member business is on a two to one ratio to non-member business. Atlantic is in a favorable cash position, with no borrowed operating money, and financial losses carried from 1983 will be nearly eliminated with the gains of the past business year.

Atlantic, promised Bair, will continue to focus on holding the line for prices of high quality bulls to the membership, offering improved genetics at affordable rates.

He predicted a continuing strong dairy industry for the area served by the cooperative, due to a regionally healthy dairy economic climate with excellent milk markets and necessary support services provided by ag-related businesses, proximity to large population centers, and high cow numbers.

Legislation Changes Offer Greater Flexibility In Estate Planning

MEDIA – Recent changes in estate and gift tax laws offer new tools and greater flexibility in estate planning, according to Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Extension home economist. Estate planning also involves decisions to transfer property during lifetime to avoid transfer at death.

The first step in estate planning is carefully establishing an inventory of assets and objectives. After that, a careful analysis should be made of the manner in which property is owned, the distribution of property in an existing will or the state laws where the owner resides, and the impact of state and federal inheritance or estate taxes.

Transfer of ownership can be accomplished in a variety of ways One way is through some form of joint tenancy provision. For example, property owned jointly with the right of survivorship passes to the surviving owner or owners at death of one of the current owners. If the joint owners are husband and wife this interest is viewed in Pennsylvania as a tenancy by the entireties, which provides for the transfer of ownership to a surviving spouse when one spouse passes away.

A second way to transfer ownership is through the intestate succession statute that applies in the state where the individual resides at death. This statute furnishes an estate plan for those who did nothing about ownership transfer during their lifetime.

If a person did not prepare a plan, then the statute steps in and furnishes a plan to distribute that person's property Every person, therefore, has an estate plan.

A third way to provide for the transfer of property at death is under the terms of a will containing the owner's wishes for the distribution of his or her property Preparing a will avoids application of the intestate succession law.

In comparing distribution of property under a will to distribution under intestate succession, the basic difference lies in the answer to the question, "After my death, who decides what will happen to the property I own?" In a will, a property owner decides how property is to be distributed. Without a will, the state legislature makes that decision.

You don't have to own a large amount of property to need an estate plan. A plan can be fashioned for all types and amounts of property. For more information about estate planning, John Becker and Dr. Marilyn Furry, Extension family money management, will present a meeting for you. It will be given Tuesday, March 10 from 7:30 to 9:30 and Wednesday, March 11 from 1 to 3 p.m.

It is free, but you must register, (call 565-9070), and it will be held at the Hunt Club Bldg. in Rose Tree Park, 1521 N. Providence Road, Media, Pa.

Poultry Marketings Increase

HARRISBURG – Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending February 21, 1987 were 2,248,000, 5 percent above the previous week and 19 percent above the corresponding week a year earlier.

Average placements during the past nine weeks were 16 percent above a year ago. Settings for broiler chicks were 3,207,000, 3 percent above the previous week and 35 percent above the same period a year earlier. The current three-week total of eggs set is 26 percent above the comparable period a year ago.

Expected marketings, based on placements seven-nine weeks earlier less mortality allowance, in Pennsylvania for the week ending April 18, 1987 will be 2,175,000, 17 percent above a year earlier.

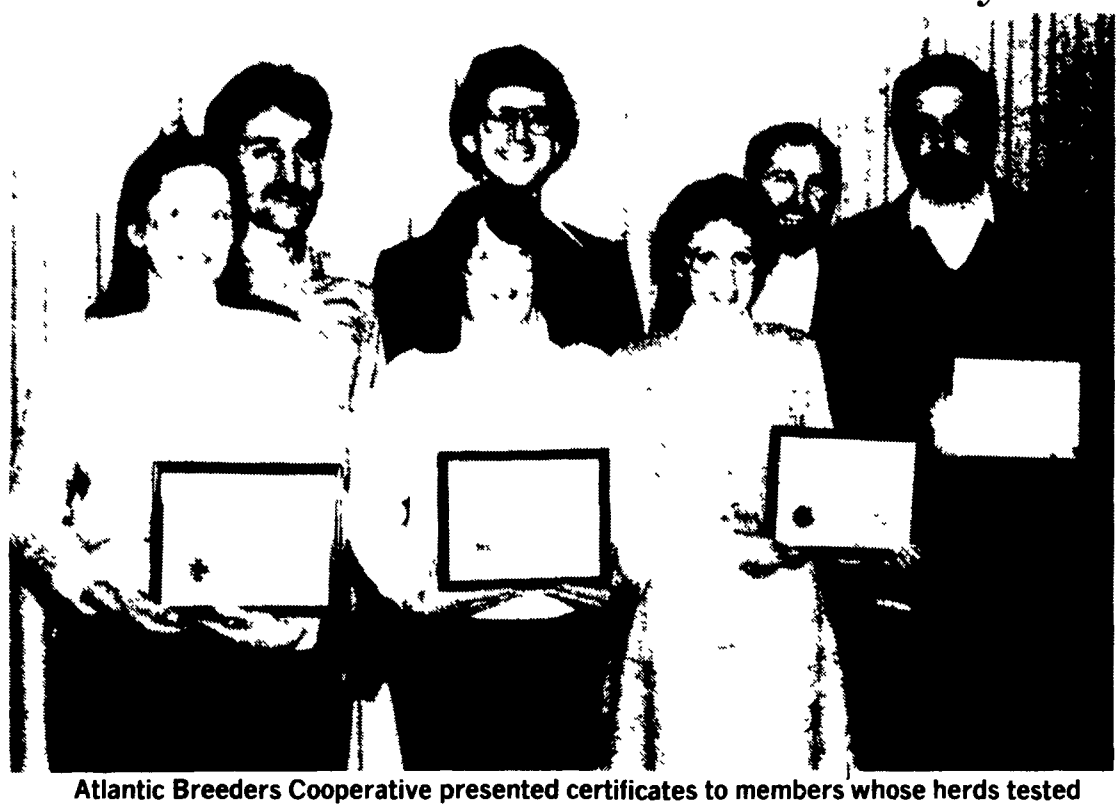
Broiler-fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under Federal Inspection week ending February 11, 1987 totaled 1,821,000 with an average liveweight of 4.20 pounds

Potatoe Stocks Shrink

HARRISBURG – Total stocks of potatoes stored in Pennsylvania on February 1, 1987 were 2,100,000 cwt., 20 percent less than a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. Of this amount, 795,000 cwt was stored in processor's facilities representing 38 percent of total stocks

Stocks are defined as the quantity remaining in storage for all purposes and uses, including shrinkage and waste and other losses that occur after the date of each report. Sales of fall potatoes for all purposes generally account for about 90 percent of the total fall production

Atlantic Breeders Honors Blue Ball District Dairymen



Atlantic Breeders Cooperative presented certificates to members whose herds tested at least 10 percent above the state average for milk or fat production and who have more than two-thirds of the cows as progeny of Atlantic sires. Those who were recognized at the Blue Ball District Meeting include, from left: Susan and Delmar Weaver, New Holland; Rodney and Cindy Denlinger, Gordonville; Cheryl and John Zimmerman, East Earl; and Don Weaver, New Holland.

Dairy Cooperatives Identify Critical Concerns For 1987

WESTMINSTER, Vt. — Reductions in the dairy support price and the threat of higher interest rates will be critical federal legislative issues facing Northeastern dairy farmers according to the Legislative Committee of Northeast Cooperatives.

The Committee comprises six cooperatives with a total of some 12,000 farmer members in 11 states.

Steve Kerr, director of the legislative committee, noted that both issues will come before Congress early in the new session.

"Sen. Pat Leahy, D-Vt., and Congressman Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., have cautioned us that our real battle in 1987 involves these two issues. Given their importance to Northeastern farmers, they will be our legislative priorities."

Dairy economists project that milk supplies will not be surplus in 1987. Although milk prices will fall to seasonal lows this spring, net farm prices nonetheless should average 30 cents per hundredweight higher in 1987 than in 1986. The removal of substantial milk production capacity by the dairy herd buy out and only modest increases in production by current farmers will keep supplies more in line with expected commercial demand. This will allow farm prices to rise well above government support levels.

With favorable feed prices, energy costs and interest rates, 1987 is projected to be a better year for most dairy farmers. "Indeed, if we can institute over-order pricing through the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency, 1987 could be a very good year," Kerr commented.

It is too early to tell whether milk production in 1988 will regenerate the surpluses of the early 80s. What worries the dairy group is a price support reduction that could occur on Jan. 1, 1988 if projected supplies create even a small surplus.

"Our view is that a price cut at that time, even if technically justified by projected purchases, would be very harmful to farmers," Kerr said. "Further, such an approach to managing milk supplies is unnecessary in light of our successful experience with the milk diversion and herd buy-out programs. Congressman Jeffords plans in January to offer legislation that will remove the threat of that 1988 price cut."

The income of Northeastern farmers could also be jeopardized by certain proposals to aid the struggling Farm Credit System. One such plan would merge all of the locally-controlled, regional Farm Credit Banks into one centralized unit.

"Were that to occur, we would lose control of our Bank's capital and the setting of interest rates," Kerr commented. "Patronage refunds — an important source of year-end income for borrowers — would disappear and higher interest rates would likely ensue. Since costs such as interest expense are as important a factor in farm profitability as adequate prices, the possibility of higher rates must be treated as a serious income issue."

Regional Conferences To Focus On Future Of Agriculture

What are the keys to farm profitability and the stability of rural communities in your part of the state? How will state and national policy decisions affect your area?

These questions and others will be addressed in five regional outlook conferences on the future of agriculture and the rural community to be offered by Penn State's College of Agriculture and Cooperative Extension Service in March.

Each regional conference will be oriented toward agricultural issues and problems in one area of the state, as well as covering state and national issues, according to Larry Jenkins, extension economist and chairman for the conferences. The programs could be of interest to farmers and farm families, government officials, food processors and manufacturers, business and industry leaders, civic leaders, and other interested citizens.

The conferences are an opportunity to hear about and discuss current and emerging policy issues, technological changes, and economic and social developments that will shape the future of local agriculture and rural communities.

Sessions will define issues that must be resolved to assure increased farm profitability and the continued stability of local rural communities.

The speakers will include faculty members from Penn State's College of Agriculture, and invited guests from banking and industry in the region.

Panel discussions and speeches will address topics such as "The Economy, Agriculture and You," "Impacts of Government Policy," "Population Trends Affecting Agriculture and Rural Communities," "Emerging National Resources Policies," "Agriculture and the Rural Community—Dependent on Each Other," and "Improving Economic Vitality in Rural Pennsylvania."

In addition, sessions on keys to profitability in the regions will be tailored to the major agricultural products in that region—dairy, forage, fruits and vegetables, livestock, or others.

The regional conference for northeastern Pennsylvania will be held Wednesday, March 18, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Shadow Brook Country Club, Tunkhannock.

To receive more information including a program and registration form, contact the Wayne County Extension Office, Court House, Honesdale at 717-253-5970 ext. 114.

York Holstein Association Elects Officers

BY JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

YORK — Paul King, Delta, is the newly-elected president of the York County Holstein Association, following reorganization of the county's Holstein board of directors.

Other officers are vice-president Tom Boyer, York, secretary-treasurer Shirley Trimmer, East Berlin, and assistant secretary-treasurer Bob Charles, Dover. State director is Leroy Bupp, Seven Valleys.

Also serving on the county board are directors Dan Hushon, Delta; Wayne Myers, Dover; Jim Warner, New Park; Robert Morris, Fawn Grove; and Phil Laughman, Thomasville.

Committee chairmen for 1987 are Sue Beshore, Milk Promotion and Breed Activities; Bob and Bev Morris, Junior Holstein; Phil Laughman, Tour; Dan Hushon, Banquet; Joyce Bupp, Hall of Fame and Publicity; Bob Charles, Picnic; Shirley Trimmer, Show; Leroy Bupp, Membership.

Opening the York Holstein's activities for the year is a March 19 barn meeting at the York R4 farm of Howard and Ralph Fetrow. Topic of the evening session, beginning at 7:30 p.m., is classification.

In a change from the usual spring bus tour, Holstein planners have tentatively scheduled a three-day visit to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, Canada on Nov. 17 through 19.

Other events scheduled by the York group are the county Holstein show on July 23 at the York Fairgrounds, annual summer picnic on July 30 at the Earl Furhman family farm, Hanover, and the annual banquet, tentatively set for Oct. 21 at St. Matthew Lutheran Church, York.

Sire Power Hires Marketing Communications Coordinator

TUNKHANNOCK — Kimberly Kriebel has joined Sire Power Inc. as marketing communications coordinator, according to R. Rinell Vincent, director of marketing. Kriebel is responsible for all advertising and publicity from the local to international levels, and serves as the editor of the monthly Sire Power News. In addition, she will coordinate the annual Sire Power Sale.

Her extensive involvement within the dairy industry has provided a strong background for this position. Raised on her family's Stone-Gables Farm in Millerstown, Kriebel participated in FFA and 4-H. As a Pennsylvania 4-H judging team member, she was second high individual at the 1984 All-American Judging Contest. She remains actively involved in merchandising and sire selection for her own registered Holstein herd.

Kriebel graduated in January 1987 from Penn State University with a B.S. degree in dairy production and a minor in agicultural economics. She competed on Penn State's dairy judging team, placing second in Holsteins at the 1985 World Dairy Expo.

A member of Delta Theta Sigma agricultural fraternity and the ag honorary Coaly Society, Kriebel also participated in the Penn State Dairy Science Club, serving as Penn State Dairy Princess, Nittany Lion Fall Classic Sale Chairman and yearbook co-editor.

She received the Penn State College of Agriculture Outstanding Senior Award in 1986. While in college, Kriebel was president of the American Dairy Science Association Student Affiliate and was named the ADSA Outstanding Dairy Science Student for 1986.

Kriebel is a past Perry County Dairy Princess, and past-president and vice-president of the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association. She captained the Pennsylvania Dairy Bowl Team to victory at the 1985 National Holstein Convention where she was named a National Distinguished Junior Member finalist. Kriebel has worked with past Pennsylvania on Parade Sales and for various Holstein showstrings.

Prior to her last semester in college, Kim was the summer intern for Sire Power's Marketing Department. She has relocated to Tunkhannock, home of Sire Power headquarters.

Research Discredits Common Cold Myths

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. – Though the common cold has been around for ages, most people know surprisingly little about what really causes, spreads, prevents and cures our number one infectious illness, according to the 'Reader's Digest."

For example, as long as anyone can remember, mothers have been warning their children to "bundle up or you'll catch your death." Researchers have proved otherwise. Healthy volunteers – some fully clothed and some clad only in underwear – were inoculated with cold virus and then exposed to frigid temperatures for several hours The two groups showed no difference in the number or severity of colds

Similarly, many people think air conditioning increases their susceptibility to colds However, the real culprit may be the low relative humidity, not the low temperature, or refrigerated air.

Physicians can be as wrong as mothers. Many doctors have long believed that colds spread when healthy people inhale virus particles coughed or sneezed by cold sufferers. Now research suggests that hand-to-hand contact is a more important mode of transmission. When cold sufferers touch or blow their noses, they transfer live virus particles to their hands. The virus may be then deposited on whatever surfaces they touch – from telephones to doorknobs Healthy people literally pick up the virus with their hands and infect themselves by touching their noses or eyes.

What about kissing? In a study, Dr. Elliot C. Dick, professor of preventive medicine at the University of Wisconsin Medical School in Madison, had a group of healthy volunteers kiss cold sufferers passionately for several minutes, and only 6 percent caught colds. It seems that there are very low concentrations of cold viruses in saliva.

What about taking vitamin C to prevent colds? Some studies indicate that the vitamin may shorten the duration and severity of colds. But Dr. Jack M. Gwaltney, Jr., professor of internal medicine at the University of Virginia School of Medicine in Charlottesville, argues: "The scientific evidence simply does not yet support a preventive effect for vitamin C."

Researchers say good ventilation and vigilant personal hygiene are the most important factors in preventing colds. Among their recommendations: Wash your hands frequently with soap and water, and in-between times, keep your hands from your nose and eyes; use disposable facial tissues rather than cloth handkerchiefs.

For a free reprint of "Surprising Facts About the Common Cold," send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Reprint Manager, Dept. A-2, Reader's Digest, Box 25, Pleasantville, N.Y. 10570.

Dairy Day Programs Slated For Three Northwest Counties

MERCER – Three dairy day programs have been slated for northwest Pennsylvania next week.

Mercer County starts the programs on March 9 followed by Crawford County on March 10 and Erie County on March 11.

Dr. Howard J. Larsen, dairy nutritionist from the University of Wisconsin, will be the featured speaker for the three programs.

Larsen is known internationally for his research in high forage rations, dry matter intake and factors which promote economical high production.

He has done studies concerning storage and preservation of high moisture grains and forages, as well as environmental studies as related to all ages of dairy animals.

The dairy nutritionist contributes to Hoard's Dairymen where he talks about his practical experience in feeding dairy cattle at the Marshfield Research Station in Wisconsin.

Other features for the dairy days include an alfalfa growers panel of local dairymen

Dr. Richard Adams, Penn State dairy specialist, will discuss new concepts in dairy nutrition.

Tomorrow's Ag Leaders Head Back To School

RACINE, Wis. — Getting up before the rooster sounds reveille and putting in a hard day's labor just aren't enough to make it in the ag game anymore. Today's successful farmer has to be a shrewd businessman, too — astute in marketing, innovative in production practices and aware of the ways domestic and foreign policies can affect his business.

So currently, more than 20 states have developed two-year leadership programs designed to broaden the views of the brightest people in agriculture and rural leadership. Their prime objective is to strengthen communication and leadership skills so ag leaders of tomorrow can communicate on an equal basis with their counterparts in industry, government and urban communities.

Commitment Required

Participants selected for the programs must possess keen skills in leadership and communication. They also commit approximately 70 days to the two-year program, meeting for an average of seven times for three- to four-day seminars and a two-week trip per year.

The average leadership classes are limited to 30 members. Those involved in agriculture production comprise 75 percent or more of the membership and the remainder are employed in other segments of the ag industry.

Once participants are accepted, they must expect to be challenged. "In our class, we tell our members to be ready to make a commitment and to have every point of view challenged," says R. Warren McCord, administrator of the Alabama Agriculture and Forestry Leadership Development Program.

Curriculum committees devise programs that expand the minds of participants. "The focus of the classes is not to update the leaders on mixing the right feed rations or choosing the right combine," explains Bill McKinley, director of Missouri's Agricultural Leadership of Tomorrow Program. "We want to broaden their perspective on world issues and show how they affect each leader's business and community."

Travel Part of Program

Class members study a variety of subjects including national defense, foreign and domestic policy, space programs, urban problems, community development, taxation, health care, communications, media relations, culture and the arts.

Classes usually take both domestic and foreign trips, depending on the specific focus of their curriculum. Foreign policy study might take a class to China, and members often visit Washington D.C.

Traveling internationally with his class gave Russ McDonald a new perspective on agriculture. "At one point, three-fourths of the participants, including myself, wanted to quit farming," says the 28-year-old cotton farmer from Madison, Ala. "But we started looking at it differently during the trip.

"Agriculture becomes more important as time goes by. The population is growing, which continues the need for food, clothing and forest products. Whether or not all those supplies will come from the United States is a good question. We might be producing a more specialized crop mix."

Confidence Gained

"This program was my college education," says Robert Muelrath, a California Ag Leadership Program graduate who operates a 250-cow dairy operation in Santa Rosa, Calif.

He says the program gave him a keener sense of how to handle his business. "The farmer of the future needs to have an awareness of the workings of government. He needs to deal with different types of people to develop contacts."

Arizona Project CENTRL executive director Eldon Moore says many class members believe the program helps them become more confident and skilled as speakers.

"The greatest thing that I gained was confidence," says Heather Walker, manager of the trading department of Western Cotton Services Company in Phoenix, Ariz. "The program opened doors where I could gain skills, and I learned that my opinion is important," she adds.

"Before I entered this program I was feeling isolated in my community attempts," says Pine du Bois of Kingston, Mass., a graduate of the New England Rural Leadership Program. An operator of the only commercial, organically grown non-profit cranberry bog in Massachusetts, she says, "I'm learning to strategize and plan, and I'm much more realistic and practical in decision making."

Many of the programs are originally funded by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich. They then are developed into private foundations as donors are secured. Class members may be responsible for costs, in addition to travel expenses. They range from no charge to more than $2,000, depending on the financial structure of each organization.

Cash Flow Evaluations Help In Projections

NEWARK, Del. — A comparison of last year's cash-flow projections with your actual results can provide a strong springboard for planning the 1987 farm year.

To assist the planning process, University of Delaware extension farm management specialist Dr. Don Tilmon suggests farmers ask themselves the following questions.

• How do cash inflows compare with the cash-flow projections made at the end of last year?

Now is a good time to compare the quantities you produced and marketed in 1986 with your projections for that year.

If there are differences, analyze them to determine the cause and impact of those differences on your 1987 projections. For example, were crop yields higher or lower than expected and is this difference consistent with long-term trends on your farm? Have you sold significantly more or less livestock than your projected? If so, says Tilmon, some of the reasons could be different production and reproduction rates, more or less females kept for replacement, and disease problems.

• How do cash outflows compare with projections?

Were there special circumstances that caused expenses in your operation to be higher or lower than normal last year?

• How did your year-end inventories compare with the beginning of 1986?

In the short run, cash-flow projections can look artifically good or bad because of the sale or accumulation of inventories. Consider inventory changes to get a complete picture of last year's performance.

• Can you compare the costs of different enterprises on your farm?

Even though you may be accurately projecting aggregate expenses, your record system should also permit the comparison of costs and returns of different enterprises.

• What impact will the government farm program have on your operation in 1987?

There is now the option for an additional 15 percent diversion in feed grains, Tilmon says. How does this change relate to your farming operation?

• Were you satisfied with the risk protection you had last year?

A cash-flow projection is a good place to assess risk exposure, the farm management specialist says.

Annual cash-flow projection is the first step in financial planning, concludes Tilmon.

Birdwatching:

An Old Hobby, A New Trend

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The little old lady in tennis shoes is fast disappearing, giving way to millions of bird watchers, now called "birders," who come in every category of age and profession and are still thrilled at the sight of a sapsucker.

The millions of dollars spent on bird guides, seed, and backyard feeders are testimony that "birding" is one of America's most booming pastimes, according to "National Wildlife" magazine, published bimonthly by the National Wildlife Federation.

A few facts prove the point.

• More than 62 million Americans regularly put out seed in backyard feeders, according to a 1980 U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service study.

• About 600,000 bird guides are sold in the United States each year, grossing approximately $18 million. At Houghton Mifflin publishers, the all-time best selling book on any subject is Roger Tory Peterson's "A Field Guide to the Birds," first published 52 years ago.

• Experts estimate that approximately 1.2 million tons of bird seed is sold annually in the United States.

• The North American Rare Bird Alert offers paying subscribers up-to-the-minute information about sightings of such rare birds as bananaquits, white-collared seedeaters, and flesh-footed shearwaters. A roster of 375 crack birders verifies sightings, and all the information is available via a computerized, 24-hour telephone hotline.

The modern-day birder, as devoted to his hobby as his yesteryear kin, has put technology to work. Optical advances have revolutionized the all-important binoculars. Ornithologist Peterson used four-power binoculars when he began bird watching more than 60 years ago. Today, some birders use Questars, scopes designed for astronomy. With those, according to Peterson, "You can see fleas on a phoebe."

Novices wanting to learn how to identify bird species can watch a 60-minute home video on the techniques of birding. And for the enthusiast with a home computer, specialized software is available to help compile lists of sightings.

Hard-core birders across the United States participate in so-called Big Days and Big Years, finding as many species as possible during a prescribed time. A few attempt "Big Sits," staying in one spot from dawn to dark and counting how many species of birds wing by. Some keep lists of birds seen on television or, as one Florida birder is said to do, of birds seen through the bathroom window.

Birding has even invaded the corporate boardroom. Last year, on an otherwise normal May day in New Jersey, 90 birders (divided into 23 teams with names like the "Bob-O-Links" and the "Sandy Hook Onlies") raced across the Garden State to see which team could spot the most species from one midnight to the next.

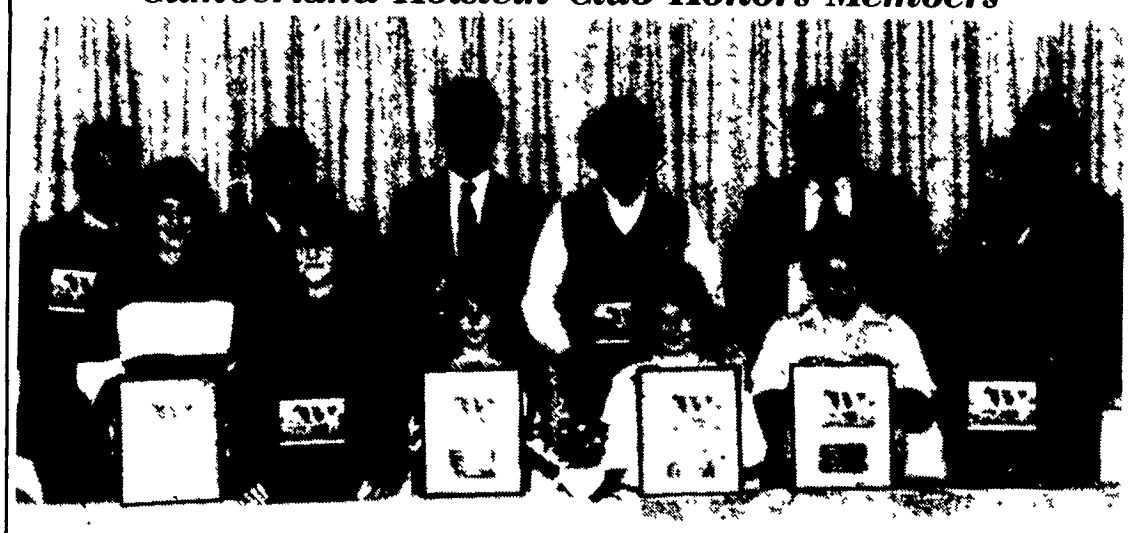
They had all gathered for the Second Annual World Series of Birding, and corporate sponsors were aflutter. One team, for example, wore matching windbreakers from the Nikon Company and drove a white Cadillac loaned by an auto dealer. Other birders sped around in a donated Saab Turbo or were sponsored by binocular makers like Bushnell and Zeiss. Proceeds from the event were donated to conservation projects.

Whether birders joined their hobbyist colleagues for guided visits to birds around the world or make solo treks into the wilderness, the objective is the same: to see as many species in one year as possible. Although it is theoretically possible to see 836 species of birds in North America, no one has seen more than Benton Basham, an anesthetist from Chattanooga, Tenn., who ticked off 711 birds in his own Big Year battle in 1983.

But records are made to be broken. And legions of birders across the United States are aiming for Basham's benchmark.

Their enthusiasm was voiced by Father Thomas Pincelli of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church in Brownsville, Tex., who, recalling a spring day of birding in the Santa Ana National Wildlife Refuge, said, "We must have seen 70 species today. I was thankful to my Creator for allowing me to experience that."

Cumberland Holstein Club Honors Members



The Cumberland County Holstein Club held their annual meeting recently at the South Middleton Fire Hall. Plaques were awarded to exhibitors of first place Cumberland County owner-bred animals in each class at the South Central Holstein show held at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds last summer.

PLENTY BIG AND PLENTY TOUGH.

With it's 10½-foot cutting width the Bush Hog® 3126 Rotary Cutter is plenty big enough for larger acreages, right-of-ways, stalk cutting and orchard work. And it's available with a choice of hitches—3 point lift, self-leveling pull type and the economical semi-mount hitch. 3126 Rotary Cutters are rated for minimum 60 HP tractors (lift type).

The 3126 is plenty tough, with 10-gauge box steel frame construction and a cushioned axle design for extra shock load protection. Rugged slip clutches are standard equipment.

You'll find a lot of extras on a 3126...and a price that's plenty affordable. Come in today and see why it may be just right for you.

Cornell Plans Study On Effects Of Stray Voltage On Dairy Cows

ITHACA, N. Y. – Many dairy farmers claim that stray voltage produces mild electrical shocks that make their dairy cows unable to produce as much milk as they should.

Asserting that the problem of stray voltage is affecting profitability, a number of farmers in the Northeast, Midwest and South are suing utilities, milk equipment manufacturers and milk cooperatives for millions of dollars in damages.

"One snaggy issue surrounding this confrontation, though, is no one really knows whether those claims being made by farmers are true," says Cornell University animal scientist Ronald C. Gorewit.

Prompted by the controversial showdown, the Cornell scientist has started a three-year study to find out whether stray voltage actually affects cows' productivity and health.

"Stray voltage, which often occurs because of faulty wiring systems, among other causes, exists on almost all dairy farms, but whether it has a detrimental effect on cows as some farmers claim is yet to be determined scientifically," Gorewit said.

Stray voltage – also called transient voltage, tingle voltage, stray current or neutral-to-earth voltage – produces low-level shocks, even as low as one to two volts. Experts say that stray voltage can occur on the grounded neutral wire of the electrical system or through the farmstead wiring.

"On the basis of behavioral changes, farm animals seem very sensitive to low voltages, many times more so than humans," Gorewit said.

Gorewit, an associate professor of animal physiology, is the principle investigator for the study. The study is financed by grants totalling more than $360,000 from a number of electrical utilities belonging to two consortia, the Empire State Electrical Energy Research Corporation and the Wisconsin Electrical Utility Foundation.

He said the study is the most comprehensive of its kind.

Working with Gorewit are agricultural engineers Norman R. Scott, David C. Ludington, Roger Pellerin and Daniel J. Aneshansley, all in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell.

According to Gorewit, farmers are concerned about stray voltage in the nation's major dairy regions. Most of the complaints come from farmers in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania. Bot no complaints about stray voltage have been received from California, another major dairy state.

Gorewit estimated that only 1 or 2 percent of New York State's 12,000 dairy farmers may be affected. But the situation in the Midwest has become serious enough that Wisconsin's state government recently established a task force to tackle the problem.

A recent survey in Minnesota showed that at least 5 percent of its dairy farms experienced problems attributed to stray voltage.

Utilities and milking equipment manufacturers in many parts of the country are faced with lawsuits by farmers, according to Gorewit. He has served as an expert witness in several court cases.

In addition to claims about lowered milk production by affected cows, stray voltage is being blamed for causing mastitis, an inflammation of the mammary gland. The Cornell researchers so far have not found this to be the case.

Scientists acknowledge that low-level stray voltage causes behavorial changes such as kicking and nervousness in cows. If stray voltage is high enough at the water cup or feeder, animals may noit drink or eat as much as they should, which could affect milk production and milk composition, cow physiology, reproductive performance, health and behavior, Gorewit said.

Gorewit said that animal health is being monitored in a variety of ways. For example. blood samples are being analyzed on a regular basis for protein, glucose, potassium, sodium, liver enzymes, triglycerides and cholesterol.

Researchers also are counting somatic cells to detect mastitis and the presence or absence of pathogenic bacteria, among other things.

The Cornell scientists also are conducting regular examinations focused on various physiological functions such as temperature, heart rate, blood pressure and respiration rate.

Animal behavior is receiving special attention. The quantity of water consumed daily and drinking patterns, feed intake and physical movement during times of electrical stimulation is monitored electronically.

The study will involve as many as 100 dairy animals. Voltage levels to be used in the study will range from one-half volt to 16 volts.

Quality Features of FARMTRONIX Feeders

- Stainless Steel Construction - Bins and structural parts are made of Type 304 Stainless Steel — the same as used in bulk milk tanks. Rustproof, corrosion resistant.
- Cow Identifier - The same proven IDENT00007 identifier unit is used on all models, is compatible with standard Farmtronix neck tags. Utilizes radio signal, is unaffected by dirt, moisture.
- Drive System - Hardened steel gears, sealed needle bearings, heavy duty roller chain used throughout. One fractional horsepower gear motor drives the augers for each feed station.
- Processor - All units are operated and controlled by any Farmtronix Processor, a proven computer system.
- Non-Bridging Hoppers - All hoppers are engineered with flat vertical sides to prevent bridging of feed. High Moisture Corn Feeders consistently handle 35% moisture ground cob/corn.
- Weatherproof - All units are designed to resist moisture Flat hopper covers and grilles are available for larger models.
- Ground Fault Protection - Electrical components are protected with a ground fault system which trips with a few milliamps of current leakage.
- Printed Circuit Boards - All operation is controlled through printed circuit boards of latest technology, for reliable operation under all operating conditions.

The system that's easy to learn. The system that can pay for itself.

Vaccinate Horses Now For EEE and WEE

Spring will soon be here, and now is the time to vaccinate your horse against equine encephalomyelitis -- commonly known as sleeping sickness. University of Delaware extension agricultural agent Richard Barczewski recommends that owners protect their horse before the onset of the mosquito season.

The two forms of the disease, eastern (EEE) and western (WEE) encephalomylitis, have 90 percent and 30 percent mortality rates, respectively. Both forms are transmitted by mosquitos and are more frequent in pastured than in stabled horses.

Encephalitis is caused by a virus that affects the nervous system. An infected horse or pony will wander about aimlessly, suffer impaired vision, have difficulty rising when down, and finally become paralyzed or die. Death in most cases is due to cardiac or repiratory failure. Horses that survive are seriously impaired.

Effective vaccines are available which provide combined protection against EEE and WEE. Some vaccine combinations also include protection against tetanus and influenza.

Barczewski advises horse owners to contact a veterinarian early this spring, before mosquito season, and arrange to have all horses vaccinated.

FARMSAFE Seminars Slated For March In New York

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Alarmed by their findings of a high injury and illness rate among farmers, Dr. John May and Dr. David Pratt have organized safety seminars for farm families and others involved in agriculture.

The next series of seminars, dubbed FARMSAFE, will take place in Jamestown, on March 5 and in Batavia, on March 19. The first series, held in Watertown and Utica, N.Y., last November, attracted more than 200 people.

FARMSAFE is being funded in part by Eastern Milk Producers. Other sponsors include the New York State Labor Department and the New York State Grange.

May and Pratt direct the Bassett Farm Safety and Health Project at Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital in Cooperstown. In a study of more than 100 farms in Otsego County, they found a 25 percent injury rate among farm workers.

The family farm, with its image of fresh air and good country living, actually harbors dusts, pollens, molds, fumes, fertilizers, pesticides and silo gas – all of which are potentially damaging to the lungs, and even fatal, according to Pratt.

Their research focused to a large degree on respiratory problems in the farm environment, including allergic hazards which lead to the very serious Farmer's Lung Disease, and to the temporarily debilitating condition known as Silo Unloader's Syndrome.

The work of the two physicians attracted the attention of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga., and the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health in Morgantown, W. Va.

In response to their findings, May and Pratt developed seminars aimed at heightening farmers' awareness of the risks and hazards of their occupation – whether they involve respiratory risks or power equipment hazards.

The first FARMSAFE seminar will run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Thursday, March 5, at the Holiday Inn in Jamestown. The second seminar will run the same time two weeks later on Thursday, March 19, at the Holiday Inn in Batavia.

Agricultural reporter Chris Kimball will be the moderator for both sessions.

The Jamestown session will feature these speakers.

• John B. Moran, safety research director, National Institute for Occupational Safety, Morgantown, W. Va. He will discuss "Electrocutions and Other Dangers on the Farm" and "Personal Protective Equipment for Farm Workers."

• Dennis J. Murphy, Ph.D., Penn State extension safety specialist, University Park, Pa. His topics are: "Job Safety Analysis for Farmers" and "Job Instruction Training." He also will give a risk-taking demonstration.

• John G. Pollock, agricultural safety specialist, Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. He will talk on "Safety: On the Farm, Off the Job."

The speakers at the Batavia session will include:

• Pratt, who will discuss "Respiratory Hazards."

• William E. Field, Ed.D., extension safety specialist, Purdue University, West Lafayette, Ind. He will talk on "Power Take-Off Injuries" and then give a demonstration outdoors. He also will discuss "Economic Impact of Farm Injuries."

• William Heffernan, Ph.D., professor of rural sociology, and Judith Heffernan, M.S., research associate, Department of Rural Sociology, Columbia, Mo. Their topic is: "Family Stress: Dealing with It in the Changing Climate of Agriculture."

More information about FARMSAFE may be obtained by contacting Janet Ivory, FARMSAFE coordinator, at Bassett Hospital, Cooperstown, N.Y. 13326. Those wishing to register for either seminar may call her collect at 607-547-3971.

Lightweight Chainsaws Useful, But Dangerous

FLEMINGTON, N.J. – Lightweight chain saws have become a common piece of equipment on farms. . . . and around non-farm homes. They are useful for cutting and trimming trees, cutting firewood, clearing storm-damaged trees. They are time-savers, but are they ever dangerous!

The chain moves at 50 feet per second through wood. It cuts a quarter inch path through a log . . . and will do the same through flesh.

A chain saw laceration is coarse, perhaps best described as ragged, not a clean cut as with a knife.

Annually, an estimated 120,000 people are injured by chain saws seriously enough to require medical attention. Over 90 percent of the injuries are lacerations due to contact with the chain. The most commonly injured parts of the body are the left arm and hand (28 percent), the left leg (27 percent), and the head (25 percent).

Martin Decker, Cooperative Extension specialist in agricultural engineering at Rutgers, offers a number of suggestions to reduce the hazard in the operation of a chain saw.

• Select a lightweight, yet powerful chain saw. Heavy, underpowered saws cause fatigue and frustration, which lead to accidents. Saw should have safety features: throttle interlock, chain brake, safety tip guard, and low-kickback chains.

• Read the owner's manual. Become familiar with the safe operation and maintenance of the saw.

• Use the proper gasoline and oil. Carry fuel only in a safety can. Refuel on bare ground and when engine is stopped.

• Check chain tension frequently. And, keep the chain sharp. When sharp, it will produce small wood chips, not fine sawdust.

• Consider weather conditions. They are important. Don't cut trees down on a windy day. Rain, snow and ice lead to slips and falls.

• Protective clothing is important. Clothes should be trim-fitting; wear a safety "hard" hat, leather or safety gloves, safety goggles, and non-slip, steel-toed shoes.

• Use ear plugs or muffs. Continuous exposure to chain saw noise can cause permanent hearing loss. A saw produces about 115 decibles of noise and the ear should not be exposed to noise levels at this rate for more than 15 minutes in a 24-hour day. There should be no doubt . . . use ear plugs or muffs!

• Know what "kickback" is and respect it. When the chain contacts limbs or logs other than the one you are cutting, the saw may jump back. This is often the cause of face or head lacerations.

Yes, the right saw, properly maintained, is still dangerous. It is a real time-saver, and a highly efficient piece of equipment. So, learn to use it properly and safely.

Chocolate Milk Receives Rave Nutritional Reviews

SYRACUSE, N.Y. - Chocolate milk has the same nutrients found in unflavored milk. According to Dairy Council Inc. milk in any form is an excellent source of three key nutrients — protein, calcium and riboflavin.

Milk also contributes significant amounts of phosphorus, magnesium, zinc, vitamin A (when added), vitamin B-12, and vitamin D (when added). Milk provides very small amounts of thiamin, niacin, vitamin C and iron. Milk contains fat, but the fat content differs among the various forms of milk. Skim milk products are very low in fat.

Cavity Factor

Chocolate milk may be less cavity causing than many other carbohydrate-containing foods. Chocolate milk leaves tooth surfaces quickly. Sticky carbohydrate-containing foods remain on tooth surfaces longer, allowing more time for carbohydrates to form acids.

Unlike other sugar-containing foods, chocolate milk contains components which actually may decrease its potential for causing cavities. Recent studies suggest:

- Cocoa may block cavity formation.
- The film left from milkfat may keep acids from penetrating the enamel.
- Milk has buffering agents. Buffering agents neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.
- Minerals, such as calcium and phosphorus, may be buffer acids, too. These minerals mixed with saliva may become part of the tooth surface.

A diet which includes adequate amounts of the nutrients in milk promotes the growth of strong, healthy teeth. In turn, healthy teeth are more resistant to decay.

Caffeine Content

Cocoa contains a very small amount of caffeine as compared with the amount in coffee or cola beverages. Because chocolate-flavored milk is only 1 percent cocoa, the amount of caffeine it contains is very small — only slightly more than the amount in many decaffeinated beverages.

Scientists continue to study the effects of caffeine on behavior, performance and learning. According to present evidence, the amount of caffeine consumed from chocolate milk is too small to have any detrimental effect on normal children.

Hyperactivity Link

Hyperactivity is a syndrome, characterized by a cluster of symptoms, including excitability, learning difficulties, being distractable, short attention span, and emotional instability. Hyperactive children usually have normal or above normal intelligence.

No scientific evidence links hyperactivity to sugar consumption. So the idea that eliminating sugar will prevent or treat behavior disorders is unfounded.

Oxalic Acid Content

Oxalic acid is a chemical compound present in plants and many commonly-eaten foods. This compound has the ability to bind calcium and other minerals in food. As a result, these minerals can't be fully absorbed or used by the body.

Cocoa is the source of oxalic acid in chocolate milk. While oxalic acid does bind some of chocolate milk's calcium, the percentage is very small. It binds less than 1 percent.

Oxalic acid in chocolate milk doesn't significantly impair calcium absorption.

A soft drink has calories but essentially no nutrients beside carbohydrate. It's calorie dense, not nutrient dense. In contrast, chocolate milk is a rich nutrient source.

Chocolate milk is a well-accepted menu item. In fact, students rate milk, particularly chocolate milk, as one of the most-liked food items in federal Child Nutrition Programs.

Studies show that milk waste is low in school meals when chocolate milk is served. In some schools, participation in the school lunch program often increases when chocolate milk becomes an alternative milk choice. Chocolate milk is an acceptable, nutrient-dense beverage in school meals.

SW Pa. Tree Fruit Seminar Slated

Fruit growing is a very specialized type of farming, and like much of agriculture it is becoming more and more competitive. The grower who wants to be successful must produce a top quality product and work hard to market that product.

Fruit growers, specialists from Penn State, and representatives from private industry, will discuss the latest and best technology for the modern tree fruit producer at a regional growers seminar scheduled for Wednesday, March 25, 1987 at the Holiday Inn, Washington, Pa., next to the Meadows Racetrack. Take Exit 8 off of I-79.

The $12 registration fee covers the cost of the meeting and includes a buffet lunch. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. and the meeting will conclude at 3:45 p.m. This meeting is sponsored by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Service.

Specialists from Penn State will cover many topics important to modern fruit growing. These include insect and disease problems in the orchard, as well as the horticultural aspects of fruit tree management. The topic of deer damage and its control in the orchard will be covered by a panel of western Pennsylvania fruit growers. They can share practical insights, and hopefully, solutions to the problem. And last but not least, Mr. Thomas Callahan, of Adams County Nurseries, Aspers, Pa., will share with growers the work that goes on at the nursery to produce a quality fruit tree for planting. This will include insights on what the grower can do to get the most from his young planting.

Participants attending all sessions can receive up to four category specific credits and one core credit toward update of private pesticide applicator licenses. Contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension Offices in western Pennsylvania for more information.

Maryland Extension Revises Its Programming

COLLEGE PARK, MD – After months of carful study, The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service released today a blueprint to redirect its programs and personnel and to make its informal education more responsive to state needs.

The Cooperative Extension Service is the University of Maryland's primary off-campus component, providing free education to thousands of state residents. Extension's educational programs are based on technology and research developed by the University of Maryland.

Created by Congress in 1914, the Cooperative Extension Service first served farmers and rural communities. Through the years, however, Extension has expanded its programs to include city and suburban residents and to provide training in areas as diverse as marine safety and crime prevention.

But according to Craig S. Oliver, director of the Cooperative Extension Service, the organization "can no longer be all things to all people."

He adds: "Extension is operating in a time of limited public funds and it must make major changes if it is to remain effective. Consequently, the education that we provide must be a direct response to the most critical needs of Maryland citizens."

According to Oliver, all Extension programs will now address eight major issues:

- Improving profitability of Maryland Agriculture. Extension will help farmers become better managers and more efficient producers.
- Protecting Maryland's natural resources. Extension will help farmers, state residents, and communities reduce water pollution, conserve soil and other natural resources, and manage waste.
- Improving diet, nutrition, and health. Extension will help Maryland residents meet U. S. dietary guidelines and modify their diets to reduce the chances of disease. Extension will also provide intensive education in nutrition to low-income families with young children.
- Increasing family economic stability. Extension will help Maryland families with long-term financial planning.
- Building human capital. Extension will help the 40,000 young people enrolled in Maryland 4-H clubs to build practical skills and become productive citizens. Extension will also work closely with community leaders to help them improve local services.
- Helping urban residents benefit from agricultural technology. Extension will help urban residents to control pests and to harvest produce in city gardens.
- Improving the profitability of Maryland marine industries. Extension will help Maryland watermen and farmers raise finfish, oysters, and softshell crabs with aquaculture – the marine alternative to farming.
- Enhancing the vitality of small and rural communities. Extension will work closely with Maryland communities to help strengbthen local economies and build effective leadership.

After a stringent review process, 23 Extension programs which do not address these eight issues may be eliminated. These ionclude programs in crime prevention, diet and drug interaction, clothing construction, home furnishings selection, and water safety.

Says Oliver, explaining the rationale behind the cuts: "Extension can no longer afford to support teaching programs that are not critical, do not have a strong research tie to the University of Maryland and other land-grant universities, and that are already offered by other organizations."

In addition to redirecting its programs, Extension is proposing major staffing changes.

The most important of these is the transfer of some faculty to three regional centers for research and education: the Western Maryland Research and Education Center at Keedysville, the Wye Research and Education Center near Queenstown, and the Southern Maryland Research and Education facility outside Upper Marlboro.

These three centers will serve as the headquarters of interdisciplinary teams of scientists in natural resources, horticulture, animal science, and other agricultural disciplines.

Says Oliver: "These new centers will allow Extension to rapidly disseminate new technology and information to residents across the state. Not only will we improve the content of our programs, we will also improve our method of delivering them."

Grange Testifies On Agricultural Credit

WASHINGTON, D.C. – "The failure to manage risk is the major reason the Farm Credit System is in its current distressed situation," said Leroy Watson, National Grange legislative representative. Watson, testifying here today before the Senate subcommittee on agricultural credit, said that despite efforts to stabilize farm income the national agricultural economy has collapsed, specifically the underlying equity values that supported farm loans.

Watson said the Farm Credit System's risk management has failed or is failing in six particular areas. They include increased loan levels to individual borrowers, joint liability between system cooperatives, average cost pricing funded by high interest securities, mergers and consolidations, foreclosures to protect security interests on property pledged as loan collateral and lost confidence in cooperative lenders.

The Grange believes government assistance to the Farm Credit System should be minimal and should not alter the fundamental relationship between a local borrower and his/her loan officer. Watson said the Grange opposes any methods of assistance that would deprive FCS associations of local control.

Watson testified that a number of recommendations could be acted on in conjunction with assistance from the federal government. They include a secondary market for guaranteed farm mortgage-backed and farm operating note-backed securities and a halt to large system mergers. Watson also suggested that the agreement of joint liability highlights the risks that individual associations place on the FCS and potentially the U.S. Treasury.

He said that FCS financing and lending policies based on either marginal or average cost financing should include provisions to secure against locking-in unfavorable interest rates. He also said FCS lending policies should take into account the general risk that increasingly large loans to individuals and increased levels of loan leveraging have on borrowers and FCS lenders. Watson also proposed a review through the oversight process be conducted of the form and structure of FCS stockholder equity, its optimum degree of risk, protection of the rights of stockholders as owners/managers and ways to enhance farmer / borrower/stockholder participation in their cooperatives.

Eastern Milk Reviews 1986, Plans For 1987

SYRACUSE, N Y. — Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative is coming off a heady 1986 — with a new headquarters facility, the first refund check to farmers in 18 years, and record profits of $630,000 on sales of $330 million — and is pressing to meet a challenging 1987 in the face of reduced milk supplies brought on by the Whole Herd Buyout and economic pressures that have been forcing more and more dairy farmers out of business

Eastern is anticipating lower sales and proceeds this year, General Manager Michael Donovan said, due mostly to the tightened supply of milk.

Donovan said one of the strategies for the year is to "better balance the seasonality of our milk supplies" by encouraging farmers to cut back in the spring, when there's a surplus, and increase production in the fall, when milk supplies are shorter

"We will be able to save some money if we can eliminate the need to absorb excess milk in the spring," Donovan said, "and we will be able to make more money for our farmers by supplying additional milk to cheese manufacturers and other customers during the fall."

To help accomplish those goals, Eastern is offering farmers extra monetary incentives to change the breeding and milking cycles of their herds.

Eastern President Earl Forwood, a dairy farmer from Hop Bottom, Pa., said the co-op would pay a $1 per hundredweight premium in the fall for all milk in excess of spring production levels. Farmers would also get 40 cents per hundredweight, Forwood said, for all milk exceeding last fall's production.

Because milk production is down nationally, "we now see opportunities to make changes that will help keep our member farmers competitive in the dairy marketplace," Donovan noted, "and at the same time run the co-op even more cost efficiently."

In mid-October, the co-op, which employs nearly 50 locally, moved its headquarters to a larger facility at 2401 Burnet Ave., Syracuse.

The move capped a series of positive notes:

• Eastern had record net proceeds of $631,000 in fiscal 1986, which ended March 31, despite a drop in sales dollars from nearly $338 million to $330 million.

• In June, the co-op announced a patronage refund, or dividend, to farmers, amounting to half of the $631,000 net proceeds. The refund was the first in 18 years for the co-op.

• The Dairy Products Division in Canton, Pa., recorded record sales of $7.1 million, and went on to open its fourth dairy store located in Troy, Pa., last spring. In the fall, it purchased property for a fifth store located in Fulton, N.Y., which will be ready for a grand opening sometime this spring. The division also operates a truck-route-buying service for farmers and rural residents in 11 states.

• In July, Eastern began offering farmers a permanent 5-cents-per-hundred-weight bonus for milk meeting certain quality standards, and in the fall the co-op implemented special seasonal premiums, varying from 10 cents to 25 cents per hundredweight.

• Finally, in October, Eastern received licenses to distribute milk to retail outlets in four Central New York counties — Onondaga, Oswego, Cayuga and Tompkins. The co-op was already licensed to sell bottled milk to institutional and retail outlets in New York's Broome and Tioga counties, and was already marketing products through distributors in 11 other counties, which, combined with its own licensed areas, cut a swath through Central New York from Canada to Pennsylvania.

It acquired two New York cheese plants — in Waverly and Horseheads — in 1982, and leased them to Leprino Foods, one of the largest makers of mozzarella cheese in the U.S., under a 20-year milk supply agreement.

The co-op also operates a New England office in Montpelier, Vt.; a milk bottling plant at Homer, N.Y.; a butter and powder plant at Grover, Pa., and milk-receiving plants at Sunbury, Pa., Dover, Del., and Hinesburg, Vt.

New ADA-DC Staff In Pennsylvania

WILLIAMSPORT — Brian Ward, Executive Vice President of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, has announced the appointment of Paul Nichols and Sue Reynolds to the ADADC's Williamsport office. In their new assignment, Nichols and Reynolds will be responsible for executing dairy promotion programs in Pennsylvania, while maintaining contacts with local dairy producers and manufacturers.

According to Ward, "Over 30 percent of Pennsylvania dairy farmers are contributing their promotion dollars to ADADC. It is important for us to continue our strong promotion efforts in this area."

Nichols has been an employee of the ADADC for over 20 years, during which time he has worked in the industry relations area. In addition to serving as Industry Relations Manager for Pennsylvania, he will continue to oversee similar activities in New York and New Jersey.

Sue Reynolds, a new addition to the ADADC staff, will serve as Industry Relations Representative. One of her first assignments will be to develop the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction Program, which will recognize outstanding dairy farms throughout the Keystone State.

Sue Reynolds will serve as Industry Relations Representative for the ADADC.

Dauphin Co. To Hold Nut Tree Grafting Workshop

DAUPHIN — Things will be a little nutty for the Dauphin County Conservation District on Saturday, March 7 during its Nut Tree Grafting Workshop at the Lower Dauphin High School Vo-Ag Shop. Conservation District director and vice-president of the Pennsylvania Nut Growers Association Jay R. Book will conduct a classroom session and a hands-on grafting demonstration from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Later, Book will host an hour-long walking tour of his 122-acre farm in Conewago Township.

Here's a unique opportunity for the multi-talented gardener/connoisseur to learn how they can grow nut trees in their yard to prepare a delicious dessert of black walnut cake with homemade pecan ice cream. Not only will Book share his knowledge of nut tree grafting, he may also share his favorite nut recipes.

Grafting is a process where a small limb is spliced onto another to produce a top grade nut. The results of grafting create a larger than normal kernel that contains more nutmeat within a shell that's easier to remove. During the walking tour of the Book farm, the host will show the growth of grafted trees, and discuss the planting site requirements of various nut trees, like the Chinese chestnut which is resistant to the American chestnut blight. Chinese chestnut and black walnut are two of 12 species included in the Dauphin County Conservation District's 13th Annual Seedling Sale. To request a seedling order form with full details call the district's office at 558-1090. The grafting workshop is free. Interested persons are asked to call the Conservation District to register. A limited quantity of top grade grafted pecans, hickories and hicans (pecan/hickory hybrid) will be sold at the workshop.
